40,000 Attend Mass at St. Peter's.

VATICAN CITY, May 31.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI. observed his 79th birthday today by strongly denouncing communism and its "false prophets."

The pontiff, who is the oldest ruler in Europe or Asia, after receiving the salutes of Catholic delegates from twenty-two nations, told them:

"Above all, guard yourselves against the dangers and insidiousness of communism, against those who are false prophets, dreaming of an impossible union—a union of truth with falsehood."

A solemn mass in celebration of the birthday was celebrated in St. Peter's, attended by 40,000 pilgrims who came here especially for the occasion from throughout the world.

Aims at Nazis, Too.

The pontiff spoke for fifty-five minutes in Latin to members of the world-wide Catholic Action groups. He spoke in measured, energy-saving tones. He appeared taxed by his exertions.

The Catholic press, he declared, is one of the best forces in combating communism.

Observers recalled that much of the controversy between the vatican and Germany, where a pagan movement recently has gained strength, has centered around the Catholic press. The pope recently organized a world Catholic press exposition.

"I recommend it [the Catholic press] above all to be used constantly as the most powerful auxiliary of Catholic action," Pope Pius declared. His listeners interpreted the statement as an exortation to support the Catholic press in its campaign against "Nazi paganism" and the "Red menace."

100 Americans Attend.

One hundred American delegates and twenty-three cardinals attended the mass, celebrated by the dean of the sacred college, Cardinal Pignatelli di Belmonte.

By happy coincidence the pope's birthday fell on one of the most solemn of the church's festivals, Pentecost, and this fact added to the grandiosity of the celebration.

The great congregation cheered the pope lustily as he was borne into the cathedral with the customary colorful procession. "Viva Il Papa!" roared from thousands of throats.

Strain Becomes Evident.

It was evident to all observers the pope's age is beginning to tell on him and that he found today's long ceremony very much of a strain. When he first entered the church he appeared in considerably better health than he has been on several recent occasions and the voice with which he recited the orations was loud and firm. Toward the end of the service, however, his movements had become slower and more labored, and he had to be helped into the sedia gestatoria when he reëntered it to return to his apartments. On the way out his face, drained of all color and the pious gesture with which he imparted the apostolic benediction, revealed he was worn out by the hour long ritual.

That the pope's health is causing some concern also in Vatican circles was shown by the fact that the plans that were originally made for the pope to bless the crowd gathered in St. Peter's square from the outer balcony of the Basilica were abandoned at the last minute.

Aids Stand Ready.

It was also significant that a small bed shielded by red velvet curtains had been placed immediately behind the papal throne with two priests in constant attendance against the possibility that the pontiff might not have strength to reach the end of the function.

Before the pontiff left the Basilica the cardinals wished him "Ad Multos Annos"—[a long life].

Today's crowd was composed in large part of members of the Catholic Action organization, the vast laymen's society founded by Pope Pius himself. Six weeks ago the organization decided to celebrate the pontiff's birthday in a fitting way and issued a call for a world-wide pilgrimage to Rome.

Today also began a semi-jubilee year. Persons and pilgrimages that were unable to get to Rome in time owing to the short notice will be especially received any time up to May 31, 1937.

LANDON LEADING DOWNSTATE IN TRIBUNE BALLOT

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

First returns from downstate Illinois in THE TRIBUNE'S preconvention poll on presidential candidates yesterday yielded a lead for Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas over other Republican aspirants in the straw voting outside of Cook county.

More than 19,000 straw votes have now been compiled in Chicago and downstate. Of these 8,400 were marked for Republican candidates and Landon's name was marked on about 51 per cent of these G. O. P. straws.

The results of the poll to date are:

Candidate.	Previously reported.	Yesterday's totals.	Totals to date.	Pct. of Rep. vote.
REPUBLICANS.
Borah	761	571	1,332	15.8
Dickinson	92	92	184	2.2
Taft	87	87	174	2.0
Vandenberg	291	212	503	5.8
Others	128	54	182	2.2
DEMOCRATS.
Roosevelt	6,621	4,004	10,625
Others	97	58	155
Grand total straw vote	11,634	7,562	19,196

The downstate vote yesterday came mainly from the 11th and 18th congressional districts. Straws from Kankakee, Watseka, and Hoopeston, in the 18th, gave the Kansas governor almost one-half the Republican vote.

Landon Far in Lead.

The Republican vote in the presidential primaries for Senator William E. Borah and Frank Knox combined was 5,000 greater in the 18th than the vote for President Roosevelt. It is a district where Borah in the two-man primary race beat Knox by 10,000. Yesterday in 1,128 straws from these three communities Knox got a few more votes than Borah, but Landon, who was not a candidate in the April primaries, got more votes than Borah and Knox combined.

In four cities in the 11th congressional district — Aurora, Batavia, Elgin and Joliet—Landon in yesterday's straws got almost as many votes as Knox and Borah combined. This is a G. O. P. district and one of the ten downstate districts carried by Borah over Knox in the primaries.

Primary Confined to Two.

The sentiment expressed by the straws for Landon might seem to indicate that in the two man Borah-Knox presidential preference primary race the Republican voters had no opportunity to express themselves on the question, "Whom do you prefer for the nomination for President?"

In the poll to date, President Roosevelt has 55.4 per cent of the total 19,000 straws compiled in Chicago and downstate. In Chicago his proportion is a bit larger—he has about 56.5 per cent of all the straw votes cast. He has 47 per cent downstate. In the presidential primaries — Knox-Borah-Roosevelt — Roosevelt had approximately 72 per cent of the Chicago vote cast for all candidates, Republican and Democrat. In Chicago 286,660 votes were cast for Borah and Knox in the April primaries and 752,584 for Roosevelt.

Theaters Are Canvassed.

The first day's poll in Chicago was made by 40 canvassers—mostly college students — among the crowds which lined the route of the Memorial day parade on Saturday. The Chicago straw votes compiled yesterday were gathered from theaters and from the crowds at the Cubs' baseball park. The 40 canvassers also circulated the straw ballots during the day at churches, results of which will be published tomorrow.

Meantime four squads of picked canvassers, each in charge of an experienced TRIBUNE reporter, were traveling downstate gathering straws from the countryside. The sole purpose of the poll is to determine in advance of the two great national political conventions, Republicans at Cleveland on June 9, and Democrats at Philadelphia a fortnight later, just what the voters of Illinois and Chicago are thinking on the absorbing question of the hour, "Who is your choice for nomination for president?"

THE BIG MONTH

BULLETIN.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD THE S. S. QUEEN MARY EN ROUTE TO NEW YORK, May 31.—Undismayed by eleven hours of fog which lifted at 2 o'clock this morning and which reduced the giant British liner to half speed for part of the time, Commodore Sir Edgar Britten today threw the Queen Mary into high.

The ship tonight was racing at an estimated speed of 33 knots for Ambrose light in an effort to smash the French liner Normandie's record for the fastest trans-Atlantic crossing.

There was a good chance she would capture the blue ribbon. Despite the fog the Queen Mary traveled at an average speed of 27.12 knots in the last 25 hours and covered a distance of 678 nautical miles. To do this she must have been hitting at around 33 or more knots after the fog lifted.

Lurches and Rolls.

The fact that Commodore Britten announced the liner would reach quarantine at 10 a. m. [Chicago time] tomorrow instead of noon, as previously announced, indicated the bridge believed the ship has the record sewed up, despite the handicap of fog.

The bridge wants to smash the record run from Cherbourg breakwater to Ambrose light, rather than from Bishop's Rock to Ambrose light, the run on which the Normandie's record of an average speed of 29.98 is based.

[The distance from Cherbourg to Ambrose light is about 193 nautical miles farther than that from Bishop's Rock to Ambrose light. The Normandie's record for the crossing is four days, three hours, five minutes.]

At noon the Queen Mary had traveled 2,517 miles at an average speed of 29.15 knots. This is less than the Normandie's speed, but at the rate the engine rooms were crowding on steam the liner can make up for lost time and bridge the gap to the Normandie's figure without difficulty.

Great Welcome Awaits Ship.

New York, May 31.—(AP)—A sky, land, and water greeting awaited the new liner Queen Mary as Great Britain's trans-Atlantic pride plowed westward tonight at speeds estimated to bring it into the harbor early tomorrow afternoon.

In addition to the 12 work-a-day tugboats that will puff down the bay to ease the huge vessel into a new $5,000,000 pier in the Hudson, there will be dozens of official and other craft in the welcoming fleet at quarantine.

Standing room in Battery park and at various piers in the North river was expected to be at a premium, with many persons utilizing high windows and roofs of waterfront office towers for a landsman's view of the arrival.

Two giant airliners, carrying plane company and radio executives, were scheduled to soar overhead to transmit a sky welcome, from amid dozens of smaller aircraft.

2,000 Charter a Steamer.

Two thousand members of British clubs and societies chartered a special steamer. The official city cutter was reserved for Mayor F. H. La Guardia and a committee headed by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, Columbia university president.

The Queen Mary's return to Cherbourg and Southampton was set for 10:30 a. m. Friday, with a series of receptions aboard ship to fete her officers and builders during the interim.

GOLFER MAKES HOLE IN ONE, BUT HE DOES NOT TAKE THE HOLE

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, May 31.—The members of a foursome which played golf here today will have something to talk about for a long time.

One of the players, W. Harman, bravely stepped up to his ball on the tee of a 200 yard hole, took a mighty swing, and holed out.

"Try to beat that," he said.

One of his opponents, M. Godby, teed up.

"I'll have to be satisfied with a half," he admitted.

Then he swung and holed out.

Two Break Into Night Club; Set $10,000 Blaze

Two men broke in the front door of the Paddock club, 100 East Superior street, a three story brick building, at 10 o'clock yesterday morning, sprinkled ten gallons of gasoline about the lower floor, threw a lighted match on some papers and hurried away. The fire destroyed the interior of the building, causing a loss estimated at more than $10,000.

The proprietors of the place said the fire was an act of vengeance, the aftermath of a fight started by four men in the club a few weeks ago. Police were inclined to this theory, although there were guesses that gambling was involved in some way.

Owners Deny Gambling.

The owners are Frank Howard, formerly a partner in the Paramount club before it lost its license because of gambling there last New Year's eve, and Joe Epstein. They denied that there had been gambling in the place.

Howard, Meyer Epstein, father of Joe; Joe Cardomas, a porter, and Lawrence Katz, cashier, were questioned at the detective bureau by Fire Attorney Thomas J. Sheehan, who released them with instructions to report to his office today.

Refuses to Admit Pair.

Meyer Epstein said he and Cardomas were the only ones in the place at the time of the fire. He said two men rang the doorbell and announced they had a package for Frank Howard, but that he declined to admit them, fearing they were robbers.

A few minutes later, Epstein said, he heard a crash, and he ran to the head of the stairway. The callers had broken in the front door and dumped in two five-gallon tins of gasoline, which was in flames.

Believes Revenge Motive.

Howard told Attorney Sheehan that two or three weeks ago a male customer struck a girl cashier, Billie Barnell. He was ejected and a few nights later returned with three men companions who set upon Epstein with pistol butts, inflicting injuries which necessitated fifteen stitches being taken in his scalp. He said the four men were finally thrown out after a general fight that resulted in considerable damage to furniture and glassware, and injury to several employés and patrons. The four visitors also were beaten up. Howard said he believed them responsible for the fire.

Howard said the club represented an investment of $16,500 on which he and his partner still owe $7,000. He said they had $10,000 insurance.

Twelve passengers and three members of the crew of a huge air liner of the Transcontinental and Western Air Lines had an almost miraculous escape from death when the ship struck a tree and a house at 6045 South Kilbourn avenue last night and then settled down with a thud in a vacant lot.

The pilot of the plane, Wesley L. Smith of Crawford, N. J., was aiming for the lot in a desperate effort to make a safe forced landing, and he made it by amazing skill and good luck.

The fifteen persons on board were all injured to some extent, but none, according to physicians, appeared to be in a critical condition. The cabin of the craft sustained the shock without cracking, although the front end containing the motors was wrecked. Pilot Smith shut off the ignition and gasoline flow, preventing fire from breaking out.

Story of the Crash.

It was about 10 p. m. when the plane reached the vicinity of the city airport, where it was to have landed. Its flight began in Newark, N. J., at 4:30 p. m. and was due to end at 9:15 here. Head winds delayed the passage, however.

Smith had already circled the airport once, but had been warned by radio to hold off for another plane's landing. As he drew away from the field he was unable to gain altitude and realized as he neared the 61st street and Kilbourn avenue intersection that he must make a forced landing. He was proceeding southeast then.

"When Smith saw that little lot," asserted George Houle, co-pilot, "he aimed for it. He couldn't avoid hitting the tree and the house, but it turned out all right."

Tears Off Part of Roof.

The house, in front of which stands the tree involved in the crash, is occupied by Earl Marlatt. It was the right wing of the plane that struck the tree. This wing was ripped and the force of the collision caused the whole liner to turn, as if on a pivot, from left to right.

The impact tore a portion of the roof off the Marlatt home. Then, continuing its spin, the ship settled down in a vacant lot whose southern border is 61st street. South of the Marlatt place is the home of Alfred Webb at 6047 South Kilbourn avenue. This house, however, sits far back in its lot and was not struck by the ship.

As the plane finally settled, it was facing west. Its left wing just reached the sidewalk at 61st street and the damaged right one was almost in touch with the Webb house. Its tail was directly under light wires strung at the eastern extremity of the lot on poles and its nose was pointed to Kilbourn avenue.

An Amazing Escape.

"Why, the plane is almost an exact fit for that lot," averred one observer. "A lot of terrible things could have happened and didn't. A little lower and the craft would have collided fully with the Marlatt house. If it had skimmed a little farther east

NEW DEAL WILL SET NEW MARK FOR BORROWING

Billion More Sought by Treasury.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—The whole question of bolstering up the New Deal with fresh money to spend came into sharp focus today when Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. announced details of the $2,050,754,400 June financing program, which includes the heaviest borrowing in the peacetime history of the country.

The New Deal will ask investors to buy $600,000,000 in bonds and $400,000,000 in treasury notes, the funds to be used to foot government spending beyond income and the costs of paying the bonus to the veterans.

In addition to this deficit, financing holders of $1,050,754,400 worth of maturing notes will be offered either the new notes or bonds in exchange. In other words, the administration will postpone meeting obligations falling due by the refunding plan.

Two Changes Emphasized.

Brushing aside such factors as the public debt, already at a record high and soaring toward the 35 billion dollar mark, Mr. Morgenthau emphasized two changes in the terms offered as compared with those of the last financing in March as proof that the government's credit was still strong.

No. 1 change was that the new bonds will be callable in 15 years and payable in 18, an increase of three years in the maturity over the last bonds floated, while the interest rate will remain unchanged at 2¾ per cent.

No. 2 was that the new issue of notes will bear 1⅜ per cent interest, or a reduction of ⅛ per cent in the rate. As before, the notes will fall due in five years. Both the bonds and notes will be dated June 15.

Outweighing Mr. Morgenthau's arguments were the grave implications of the colossal national debt. The top figure on the debt total by the end of the fiscal year, June 30, is $35,131,000,000.

Treasury Estimates Shown.

Debt to date	$31,644,000,000
New borrowing	1,000,000,000
Bonus costs	2,237,000,000
Treasury bills	250,000,000
Total	$35,131,000,000

This total will be reduced by the amount that the veterans cash in on their baby bonds during the last two weeks of June. It was learned that the treasury expects at least $500,000,000 worth of the bonds will be cashed on the demand of the veterans. The current borrowing is expected to take care of cash needs of the government up to next Sept. 15.

Fears of many economists that the country cannot long continue to finance New Deal borrowing and spending before the monetary system cracks wide open have been airily waved aside by President Roosevelt, who has said that the nation can stand a much larger debt.

Danger Signs Ahead.

The debt must some day be met by extracting funds from the already burdened taxpayers or the government will follow the more devious courses of repudiation and ruinous inflation.

The cheaper money rates pointed out by Mr. Morgenthau are the direct result of continued federal spending. The easy money spent and distributed lavishly by the New Deal finds its way back into commercial banks, which are bulging with idle funds and which are carrying reserves in excess of legal requirements amounting to approximately $3,000,000,000 with the federal reserve system.

Because of the pressure of the idle funds, which have little outlet in increased borrowing for capital improvements or current needs for industry or other private purposes, it is deemed certain that the new treasury issues will be heavily oversubscribed.

Credit Inflation Threat.

The new securities will sponge up some of the excess reserves for a time, but as the spending continues the reserves will increase. The federal reserve board has admitted that there is danger of an enormous credit inflation being built up on the base of the excess reserves but has refused to take any action which would disturb the treasury borrowing at low rates or have an adverse effect on the obligations already outstanding.

thau was asked whether if the issues were not sold he would use the $1,800,000,000 stabilization funds to purchase the securities. He declined to comment.

It has never been denied that the fund has been used in the past, when government bonds sagged on the market. Use of the fund for this purpose in any large amount would be clearly inflationary, since it is "made money," resulting from the "profits" of New Deal dollar devaluation.

Claims Safeguards.

Secretary Morgenthau declared that every possible safeguard had been adopted to protect the "legitimate bond buyer" and curb speculators who have padded their subscriptions for government securities in the past. This padding has produced oversubscriptions.

A letter outlining instructions for carrying out this protection was sent by Mr. Morgenthau to the presidents of the 12 reserve banks. It was discovered that the written instructions were identical with the oral regulations governing other financing operations with the exception of one provision. This was that the cash deposit on subscriptions of the public, other than the banks and trust companies, was raised from 5 to 10 per cent.

Conditions Set Forth.

In his formal announcement, describing the conditions under which the financing would take place, Mr. Morgenthau said:

"The treasury bonds and the treasury notes will be accorded the same exemptions from taxation as are accorded other issues of treasury bonds and treasury notes, respectively, now outstanding.

"The treasury bonds will be issued in two forms, bearer bonds with interest coupons attached and bonds registered as to both principal and interest; both forms will be issued in the denominations of $50, $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000 and $100,000. The treasury notes will be issued only in bearer form with coupons attached, in the denominations of $100, $500, $1,000, $5,000, $10,000 and $100,000."

Requirements Described.

The applications will be received at the federal reserve banks and branches and at the treasury department in Washington. Applications from banks and trust companies for either issue for their own account will be received without deposit but will be restricted in each case to an amount not exceeding one half of the combined capital and surplus of each institution.

Cash subscriptions from all others must be accompanied, if for $5,000 or less, by payment in full; and if for more than $5,000, by the payment of the 10 per cent deposit, but not less than $5,000.

The exchange subscriptions must be accompanied by a like face amount of the maturing issues. The two issues to be refunded are 1⅛ per cent treasury notes falling due in the amount of $686,616,400 on June 15, and 3¼ per cent notes maturing on Aug. 1 to a total of $364,138,000.

DISCOVER ITALIAN POSTERS INCITING HOLY LAND ARABS

4 Slain in New Palestine Disorders.

JERUSALEM, May 31.—(AP)—British police said tonight they had unearthed a collection of posters in hand printed Italian declaring all Jews are "communists and enemies of Europe and Christianity" after renewed disorders cost four more lives.

Leaders of the British forces in Palestine met to discuss steps to halt the continuing Arab-Jewish disorders, now in their seventh week. Admiral Sir Dudley Pound, commander of the British Mediterranean fleet, conferred with the heads of the Palestine garrison, air force, and police.

Three Arabs, one a woman, were killed by police fire at Jaffa. A Jew was slain in the Jerusalem suburb Lifta. He was Franz Bordshadt, 45, a recent settler from Germany and the official collector for the German Settlers' association. The murder was taken as an effort of Lifta villagers, accused of lukewarmness, to show that they are with the Arab cause. They had been excluded last Friday from prayers in the mosque of Omar.

Fire on Police Patrol.

The Jaffa slayings, which brought the total casualties during the disturbances to near the 70 mark, occurred when a crowd of Arabs began taking pot shots at a police patrol. In the exchange fire from constables' guns, a woman in the vicinity was killed. The two other Arabs were among the party of attackers.

An Arab committee in charge of a general strike called April 19 issued a manifesto deprecating the use of violence. The council yesterday called upon its constituency to ignore the pleas of the British high commissioner for the termination of the general strike.

Arab mayors meeting at Ramleh decreed a strike of municipal service workers in Jaffa, Hebronfi Jenin, Nablus, Ramleh, and Tulkarem, predominantly Arab towns. The principal service affected will be street cleaning. The move was taken to show that Arab resistance is not weakening.

Engage in Gun Battle.

Comparative quiet reigned in the various settlements of the Jewish community which had yesterday been the victim of widespread arson and destruction of property. Shots were fired, however, in Haifa, Hedera, Schunath Borochov, and Nachlet Isaac near Tel Aviv.

Police guarding the Jewish settlement of Ain Harod engaged in a gun battle with Arab snipers nestled in the hillside of Mount Gilboa.

One thousand rifles were captured today by French frontier guards on the Syrian border, it was reported here. Three cars had attempted to smuggle the arms into Palestine.

League Takes Up Problem.

GENEVA, May 31.—(AP)—The league of nations mandates commission will meet tomorrow in secret session on the Palestine situation with a report before it from the Jewish Agency for Palestine urging an increase in Jewish immigration to safeguard the Jewish homeland from further attacks.

A letter from Dr. Chaim Weizmann, president of the agency, accompanying the annual memorandum told Great Britain, the mandatory power, that Arab attacks could not shake the determination of the Jewish people to "rebuild its national home in Palestine."

ITALY TO MOBILIZE MILLIONS OF MEN AS WARNING TO LEAGUE

ROME, May 31.—(AP)—Italy is arranging a "demonstrative mobilization" of several million men to coincide with a meeting of the council of the league of nations June 16, well informed circles said today.

The army mobilization, it was said, would concentrate on the northern borders and would last only a few days.

It will be a sort of warning to Geneva that Italy is ready for any eventuality in case the league continues sanctions, these sources explained.

SEEKS TO QUASH KIDNAP WARANT FOR ANN HARDING

MONTREAL, May 31.—(AP)—Roland Rich Woolley, the attorney who arranged Ann Harding's midstream boarding of the Duchess of Atholl off Quebec Friday night, said today the warant sworn out by her former husband, Harry Bannister, charging the actress with abducting their child, Jane, was "nothing to worry about."

"I am taking action to have the warant quashed at Quebec City tomorrow," he said prior to boarding a train for Chicago.

Woolley said he had been in constant touch with Miss Harding by wireless and had advised her the Quebec warant could not be served in England.

"Bannister would have to start initial proceedings there," he said.

Duce Decorates Sons and Son-in-Law for Bravery

ROME, May 31.—(AP)—Premier Mussolini awarded silver medals of valor today to his sons, Vittorio and Bruno, and his son-in-law, Count Galeazzo Ciano. All won the awards for distinguished service in the air force at the beginning of the Ethiopian campaign. A large crowd attended the ceremony at Centocelle airport. Robert Farinacci, former Fascist party secretary, also was decorated.

BILL DEMANDS STATE PROBE OF HUEY LONG DEATH

Baton Rouge, La., May 31.—(AP)—The Louisiana legislature was asked tonight to investigate the fatal shooting of Senator Huey P. Long.

A concurrent resolution was introduced in the house by Representative Ben R. Simpson of Caddo parish, calling for legislative creation of a six member commission to investigate the fatal wounding of Long in the state house the night of Sept. 8, 1935.

The resolution to become effective must be passed by the house and then concurred in by the senate. It must lay over, under the rules, and can be voted upon tomorrow.

After Long was shot, his friends and political followers said he was the victim of a conspiracy, but no results of any investigation have been announced officially.

FUGITIVE EMPEROR QUITS GIBRALTAR ON VOYAGE TO ENGLAND

GIBRALTAR, May 31.—(AP)—Emperor Haile Selassie, in his own words "feeling much better," sailed today for England.

Before boarding a ship, the fugitive emperor said: "While not feeling what you might call good, I feel much better than when I landed."

The Negus said he passed a sleepless night. He gave gold coins bearing the image of the late Emperor Menelik of Ethiopia to detectives who guarded him while he was in Gibraltar.

Malaku E. Bayen, a former student at Ohio university, is traveling with Haile Selassie as his financial secretary.

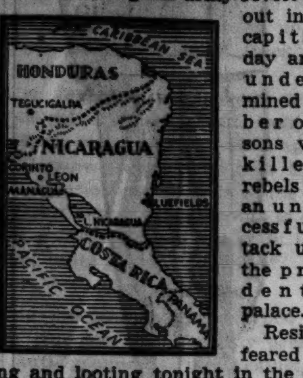
NICARAGUA ARMY BEATS OFF REBELS IN PALACE BATTLE

President Is Besieged by Revolting Troops.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, May 31.—(AP)—A Nicaraguan army revolt broke out in the capital today and an undetermined number of persons were killed as rebels made an unsuccessful attack upon the presidential palace.



Residents feared sacking and looting tonight in the event lights were shut off by the rebels, but loyal officials claimed they were in military control of Managua and its environs.

President Juan B. Sacasa and his candidate for the presidency in the forthcoming election, M. Arguello, were in the palace on Tiscapa hill when it was attacked by rebel forces in the national guard. Five persons were reported killed in the unsuccessful onslaught in which machine guns were used.

Guards Rushed In.

Unconfirmed reports of other fatalities in Campo Marte, at the foot of the hill, and of victims of stray bullets in other parts of town could not be checked.

Truckloads of guards were being rushed about Managua tonight to take stations at strategic points in and out of the city. Gen. Anastacio Somoza, head of the national army and opponent of Sacasa's plans for the coming election, was expected here any hour from Leon.

[Gen. Somoza was reported to have unsuccessfully attempted last night to seize the fort at Leon, which was defended in a bloody combat.]

Ex-President with Rebels.

Former President José Maria Moncada was with the national guard rebels who attacked the palace. The insurgent military leaders contend that uprisings throughout the country are the result of the government's attempt to sponsor a biparty agreement to enter only one presidential candidate in the election.

For the last few days forces at the palace and national guardsmen with Moncada at the bottom of the hill have been in a state of tension. Sporadic shooting this morning set off the actual revolt.

Diplomatic representatives of the United States, Mexico, and Central American countries were reported to have appealed to both sides for a cessation of hostilities.

Take Refuge in Forts.

Gen. Somoza is reported to have gained control of a large number of towns. Many civilians have taken refuge in government forts.

The revolt broke out in Nicaragua three days ago. It was concentrated in eastern towns and municipal authorities were removed in several cities, including Bluefields, important Caribbean port.

A government spokesman said on Thursday that rebels within the army were attempting to put Gen. Somoza in the presidential palace. Army detachments taking part in the revolt were trained by United States marines, withdrawn in the last few years.

WARNS AGAINST THE HULA HULA

'$1,000,000 Legs'

Hollywood, Cal., May 31.—(AP)—Toni Lanier, known in pictures as "the girl with the million dollar legs," returned from a Hawaiian holiday today and warned American girls against dancing the hula hula. "Hula dancing," she said, "makes the calves bulge. When the girls of this country become as 'leg conscious' as the men are, we'll have healthier women and lovelier legs. There's no excuse for misshapen legs."

START TO BATHE PYTHON; 2 GO TO DOCTOR INSTEAD

But Not Until Five Others Loosen the Snake.

Cleveland, O., May 31.—(AP)—Frank J. Loughney, 47 year old reptile expert, stroked the neck of a 28 foot regal python in a makeshift reptile house today, muttering words intended to make it docile.

Cliff Wilson, 45, owner of the python, was close by, awaiting an advantageous moment to slip a muzzle over the snake's mouth, preparatory to bathing it.

Suddenly the python struck from half its length. The snake battled the two men for 45 minutes. The fight stopped only when three friends, two of them snake experts, and two policemen pulled the coils from about Loughney's body and Wilson's hand from the python's mouth.

Fingers Get Stitched Up.

Attendants at Charity hospital sewed up three fingers of Wilson's right hand and treated all but one of Loughney's fingers for deep cuts. They suffered no broken bones.

Max H. Kimerer of Miami, Fla., one of the three friends who rescued the pair, said, "We were afraid the police would shoot the snake, but G. A. Lyons and I put them to pulling at the coil around Loughney's legs and Markell and I went after the loop around his body."

Bathing Job Still Undone.

Ten minutes later Loughney, who was scarcely able to move, was freed. He, Kimerer, and Lyons of suburban Lakewood then pulled the snake's mouth open wide enough to allow Wilson to remove his hand.

"Now we not only have to wash that snake," said Loughney, "but we have to get into its mouth and see if Wilson's hand loosened any of its teeth. These things are delicate, you know, if they aren't properly cared for."

Route 30, half a mile south of Algonquin in McHenry county. Giebel was riding in the automobile of Charles F. C. H. McCORMICK, 77, IS REPORTED SERIOUSLY ILL

Cyrus H. McCormick, who resigned last September as chairman of the board of directors of the International Harvester company, was reported seriously ill last night at his estate, Walden, at 1100 East Ringwood drive, Lake Forest.

Mr. McCormick was stricken Saturday while attending a flower show held on his estate. His 77th birthday was May 16. One of his sons, Cyrus Jr., came home from Santa Fe yesterday and the other, Gordon, is on his way from Honolulu.

Mr. McCormick was elected president of the McCormick Harvesting company in 1884 upon the death of his father, Cyrus H. Sr., founder of the firm. When the International Harvester company was formed in 1902 he was elected its president. He resigned in 1918 and was elected chairman of the board.

Mashpee, Mass., May 31.—[Special.]—A forest fire of asserted incendiary which had destroyed one home and threatened to wipe out Mashpee village still was raging tonight on a three mile front after it had swept more than 2,000 acres of woodland and marooned hundreds of motorists on the main highway. The fire fighters, many of whom had been without rest since Saturday, faced another all night vigil, as the town still was in danger.

BROOKFIELD ZOO ADDS FACILITIES TO AID VISITORS

More Parking Space, New Picnic Grounds.

Improved facilities for visitors to the Chicago Zoölogical gardens at Brookfield were announced yesterday by Director Edward H. Bean. They include increased parking space, additional picnic grounds, and improved labels on the animal and bird cages. The number of specimens also has been increased.

Ten large parking lanes to accommodate 3,000 automobiles have been opened in the parking lot near the north entrance to the zoo on 31st street and a new parking area south of the grounds will provide space for 1,200 more cars, Mr. Bean said. Attendance yesterday was 34,985.

A proposal to permit buses to carry visitors through the park was rejected, he said, because it would conflict with one of the main objectives of the project, that of safety for spectators, particularly children.

Transportation Easy.

"No wheeled vehicles are permitted in the park except such service cars and trucks as are absolutely necessary," he said. "These drivers are instructed to drive slowly and to stop when approaching any group of children. The park is level, the walks are smooth, and most visitors do not find it difficult to walk from exhibit to exhibit. Wheel chairs, baby carriages, and strollers are provided for those who desire them."

Mr. Bean said there is no better labeled collection of animals in the United States or Europe.

Big Crowds Can See Labels.

"The society," he explained, "has gone to great pains in arranging its labels so that they may be seen readily no matter how large the crowd.

"All exhibits are labeled with English and Latin names as well as the country from which the specimens came. Many of the principal exhibits have descriptive matter giving special information about individual animals.

Four new animals were exhibited to Brookfied visitors yesterday. They are two sloth bears, which have been placed on the monkey island; a female Eland antelope from South Africa, and a female Malayan tapir.

WHERE PLANE CRASHED IN LOT

LIGHTNING HITS TWO BUILDINGS IN BRIEF STORM

Thousands of pleasure seekers took advantage yesterday of the second day of perfect holiday week-end weather. They thronged the beaches, parks, playgrounds, golf courses, forest preserve, and highways leading from the city until an electrical storm early in the evening drove them to shelter.

During the brief storm, which was accompanied by thunder and rain, lightning struck two buildings. It splintered a stone cross and knocked a small hole in the roof of St. Stephen's parochial school, 517 North Sangamon street. Another bolt struck the rear of the Reed Candy company, 1245 Fletcher street, and burned out the electrical system of the plant.

BLAST RIPS STUMP; KILLS WATCHER.

A federal investigation and an inquest before a jury of aviation experts will be started today to determine the cause of the airplane crash Saturday evening at Westchester airport on Wolf road, which killed Anthony Otradovec, 25 years old, 2212 South Cicero court, pilot and owner of the plane, and Barney Bertino, 19, 3136 Polk street, aviation student and passenger with Otradovec. The federal investigation is to be conducted by Maj. George Vest, supervising inspector of the central states for the department of commerce. The coroner's jury of aviation experts was ordered by Coroner Frank J. Walsh.

John Concannon, 77 years old, 7724 South Marshfield avenue, died yesterday in the Little Company of Mary hospital of injuries incurred May 26 in a street fight with Martin Tully, 60 years old, 8220 Perry avenue, his brother-in-law.

PILOT DROPS AIR LINER IN A CITY LOT, SAVING 15

it could have become entangled with the electric lines, and that would have been awful. As it is, a combination of extreme skill by the pilot and good luck saved everybody's life."

Marlatt's sons, Robert, 15 years old, and Glenn, 12 years old, were asleep upstairs and were awakened when the roof was ripped away above them. They would have been in great danger if the plane had struck a little lower.

Marlatt and his wife and other persons residing in the vicinity hastened to the ship after it had pancaked so fortunately into its restricted stall. They found the co-pilot lying on the ground. He had been hurled out as the plane struck.

Save Passengers! Is Cry.

Houle's injuries were more severe than those of any one else on board. His left arm was broken and apparently his left leg was fractured. He also had a head injury.

Several of those inside were dazed. These were given assistance by Smith and by Miss Grace Davidson of Vandergrift, Pa., the stewardess. Although she suffered a severe bump on the head, she pushed and carried some of the passengers who had recovered from shock less quickly to the open air. Not one of them was fully unconscious, however, and the work of removing them was facilitated.

Crew Is Praised.

When the word went out that a huge ship had crashed, the police and fire departments hurried extinguishing equipment and ambulances to the scene. Eight of the injured were taken to the Holy Cross hospital and seven to the emergency hospital at the airport.

All, after they had been treated, were able to talk and were loud in their praises of the crew.

Maurice Haas of Milwaukee, one of the Holy Cross group, said that he had noticed flames coming from one of the engines just before the tree was struck. He and R. D. Marshall of New York asserted that Smith did everything possible to avoid the crash and that Miss Davidson had acted the part of a heroine in helping the passengers.

On Non-Stop Flight.

The plane is one of the new Douglass type with twin motors and has a capacity of fourteen passengers. Its passage from New York to Chicago is scheduled as non-stop.

Some of the passengers were so slightly hurt that they continued their journeys westward by air. One of these is Miss V. W. Markel, 318 South Kingsley drive, Los Angeles. She took off again shortly before midnight.

"It was marvelous that nothing worse happened," she asserted. "I had only a few scratches. We came down so beautifully. Just before it happened I was having a splendid time watching a spectacular electrical storm."

Passenger Praises Pilot.

Maurice B. Ades of Minneapolis, an official of the Schenley Products company, whose back was wrenched in the landing, paid tribute to Pilot Smith for his "wonderful job in making a miraculous landing."

"Our takeoff at Newark seemed to be bad," said Ades. "We hit the ground two or three times and the motors did not seem to be working right.

"We passengers were watching an electrical storm to the south of the city as we circled the field here. Then the plane suddenly veered southeast, we hit a tree, the roof of a house, and pancaked.

"We were all shaken up and in a daze for a moment. Some one on the outside, apparently fearing the ship would catch on fire, knocked out a window and I crawled out that way.

"It was a wonderful job of landing on Smith's part. His sole thought seemed to be to save the passengers from injury or death regardless of the plane."

List of Injured in Plane Crash

Following is the list of twelve passengers and three members of the crew of the TWA plane which crashed here yesterday, and the hospitals to which they were taken.

OPPOSING JAPAN EQUAL TO SUICIDE, CHINA IS WARNED

Blowing Up of Railway Is Branded Sabotage.

TIENTSIN, China, May 31.—(AP)—Japanese newspapers warned China today it would be "disastrous" to oppose the Japanese army in North China following the blowing up of a bridge and a portion of track on a railway line.

The Japanese newspapers, as one expressed the sentiment, said the sabotage was "clearly aimed against the Japanese army in North China. The situation generally is worse than in Boxer times. An attempt to overturn a Japanese military train is for China tantamount to suicide."

Warn Students.

The newspapers also warned Chinese students, who recently declared an anti-Japanese strike, against the "instigation of untoward events," asserting "consequences disastrous to the entire Chinese people can only result."

Japanese sources indicated they believed the railroad bombings were a result of Tokio's sending military reinforcements into this area. Chinese sources hinted the Japanese were back of it in an effort to create an "incident."

Predict Clashes Soon.

While the Japanese newspapers were warning the Chinese, the North China newspapers simultaneously predicted that fateful events are looming.

"The last two days' events constitute only a salute announcing the unveiling of the next scene of the political stage in North China," said one.

Forces of Chinese police guarding schools and streets were increased.

PRISON SLAYER KILLS SELF WITH HIS LAST BULLET

Baton Rouge, La., May 31.—(AP)—Wilfred Lindsly, 23 year old fugitive convict sought five days for the slaying of a state penitentiary official and his wife, died today in a gun battle with a twelve man posse.

The coroner said Lindsly committed suicide with his last bullet. One member of the posse, an oil field watchman, was shot in the leg.

Lindsly, who escaped from the state prison farm after killing Capt. Nelson L. Himel and Mrs. Himel last Wednesday, was trapped in a wooded section near the farm.

Wade Fournet, a prison official, said Lindsly had kidnaped a prison guard named Hamilton and held him in the woods until this morning, when Hamilton escaped and led the posse to the fugitive's hideout.

When the posse men sighted him, Lindsly emptied his rifle at them and then continued to exchange shots with a pistol. Apparently realizing that escape was impossible, he sent his last bullet into his own head, the coroner said.

Worst Floods in 30 Years Sweep British Columbia

PRINCE RUPERT, British Columbia, May 31.—(AP)—The worst flood waters in 30 years swirled down the Skeena and other northern rivers tonight, spreading destruction and wiping out all communication except that by wireless in northern British Columbia. Railway officials said train service would be cancelled indefinitly in some sections. The little village of Ush was reported under four feet of water, while its inhabitants fled to higher ground. Hazleton was in darkness as flood waters crippled the power house.

MRS. ZIONCHECK IN HIDING AFTER HIS JAIL VISIT

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—Representative Marion A. Zioncheck of Washington state returned to his apartment tonight after what he said was a day of search for his wife.

Mrs. Zioncheck, who was married to the representative a month ago, left their apartment yesterday after a series of incidents including an encounter with the lessee of the apartment.

Zioncheck was arrested a few hours later on a charge of disorderly conduct. A $25 bond brought his release at dawn today.

Lucius C. Q. Lamar, son of an attorney for the representative, tonight said Mrs. Zioncheck was resting at the home of friends. Lamar first said Zioncheck knew where his wife was, then amended it with "I couldn't be sure that he does."

In a hospital today was Mrs. Benjamin S. Young, magazine writer, who sublet her apartment to Zioncheck and has sought since his return from a Caribbean trip to evict him. Her physician said she was being treated for bruises, nervous shock, and an injured hip.

DRAFT LIBERTY PLATFORMS; ASK CONVENTION O. K.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 31.—[Special.]—Raymond Pitcairn, national chairman of the Sentinels of the Republic, made public here today a series of platform recommendations, embodying a return to the "American ideal of individual liberty," which his organization is urging the two major political parties to adopt in their national conventions in June.

A major recommendation is one to restore to the unemployed their right to be selp supporting, to be accomplished chiefly by the withdrawal of the federal government from private business, and the establishment of a sound currency and a balanced budget.

"A managed currency," reads Mr. Pitcairn's statement, "is compatible only with a managed people. It discourages all long range individual enterprise, menaces the savings and insurance of our people, and jeopardizes the investments of our charitable and educational institutions. It is a long step toward regimentation and dictatorship."

FIFTH DISTRICT ELECTS JUSTICE AT POLLS TODAY

Stone Only Republican on Supreme Bench.

Peoria, Ill., May 31.—[Special.]—One of the most remarkable judicial campaigns in the history of the state closed tonight in the Fifth Supreme judicial district. The election will be held tomorrow. There has been no evidence of schism or bitterness. Chief Justice Clyde E. Stone of Peoria, who is seeking a third term on the Supreme bench, and who has a backlog of twenty-six years of judicial experience, has the full support of Republican organizations in the ten counties comprising the district.

On the other hand, Josef L. Skinner of Princeton, prosecuting attorney of Bureau county and chairman of the Democratic central committee of that county, has the support not only of the Horner state pay rollers, but of district representatives of the national administration.

Skinner Horner Democrat.

No attacks have been made in this campaign on Justice Stone's judicial record. It has not even been discussed by his Democratic opponent. The sole argument advanced in support of Skinner has been that he is a Horner Democrat and that Stone, having been a member of the Supreme court eighteen years, should get out and give a Democrat his seat.

In short, the allied Horner-Skinner-New Deal forces are putting the judiciary upon a shrievalty basis, and are arguing that in these times, no "job" paying $15,000 a year should go to a Republican. Justice Stone is the only Republican member of the Supreme court. He has served twelve years longer than any of his associates. It is time for him to retire; thus runs the campaign argument against him.

No Defense Called For.

Neither Justice Stone nor any of his adherents has been asked to make a defense. Mr. Skinner sees an opportunity to break into the Supreme court under a Horner-New Deal barrage and has made his campaign solely on the theory that Stone can be smothered with Democratic votes.

Whether Gov. Horner has specifically ordered state employés to work for Skinner over the week-end is not definitly disclosed, but state pay rollers are swarming over the district and are under instructions from Springfield to report on their activities. For this purpose blanks have been supplied for them to fill out. Both Stone and Skinner have from two to four workers in each precinct of the latter counties.

The general opinion here is that Stone will win, but Stone supporters fear overconfidence and the combination of pleasant weather and state pay rollers in a June election.

520,000 DEMAND RUMANIAN KING BANISH MISTRESS

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 31.—(AP)—In gigantic country-wide demonstrations, 520,000 farmers of the Rumanian Peasant party protested today against the influence of Mme. Magda Lupescu in the government and urged official prosecution of Nazi organizations.

It was the greatest mobilization of the Peasant party, headed by Ion Mihalache, in the history of the nation. In the capital, 120,000 marched for five hours through the main streets, while parades and protest meetings in which 400,000 participated took place at other points. Mihalache, speaking in Bucharest, demanded the immediate resignation of the government of Premier George Tatarescu, which he said was in terror of the Nazis. Mihalache strongly requested that the king's intimate friend, Mme. Lupescu, should be banshed from Rumania.

"The roads between the king and he peasants," Mihalache said, "should no longer be barricaded by the court camarilla."

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—Declaring for profit sharing in all employment by all labor in the country, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, leading "dark horse" in the contest for the Republican nomination for President, outlined his views on politics, economics, and international relations in an interview tonight.

In response to questions the Michigan senator developed a novel proposal of social security. He suggested that the federal government exempt from taxation all funds devoted by employers to unemployment benefits, retirement wages, and profit sharing.

Faith in Nation's Judgment.

Because he has not actively pursued the nomination for President it has been said that Mr. Vandenberg has doubts that Mr. Roosevelt can be defeated and is more interested in 1940. When asked if he is waiting for 1940 Senator Vandenberg replied:

"I am not waiting for anything. There may not be much worth waiting for in this country if we do not win next November. But no defeatist complex possesses me at all respecting 1936. I have entirely too much faith in American common sense. If the Republican convention produces an aggressive, fighting leadership which knows what is wrong with Washington and isn't afraid to say so in specific terms; and if the convention produces a rationally liberal platform which fits our traditions to our necessities, the Republican party can win and will win.

"Heaven help the country—and particularly the next generation, to whom we are charging all of our bills—if the Republican party fails this prospectus. It is our most critical responsibility since 1860."

Revives Coalition Plan.

At the close of the interview the senator revived his suggestion of a coalition government of Republicans and Democrats in the next four years. The interviewer said he assumed Mr. Vandenberg believed the Republicans could win on the lines he had indicated.

"Excuse me," said the senator. "I interrupt you to say that it will not be a Republican victory in any ordinary partisan sense of the word. It will be a joint victory of Republicans and Democrats against a common enemy, which in effect is a third party—the Roosevelt party. It will be a coalition victory; and it ought to be in effect, if not in form, a coalition administration under Republican auspices to save the American system."

In response to another question, the senator said he had not sought delegates at Cleveland because "plenty of other able Republicans, whom I highly honor, have been taking the issues to the people" and he thought he could render the best service by "pursuing these same major attacks and disclosures" in the senate.

Points Way to Victory.

"All I want at Cleveland," he added, "is a leadership and platform which will deserve the confidence of the American people; which will be adequately equipped for battle; and which thus can win in November and restore the republic."

Asked to define a liberal, Senator Vandenberg said that a liberal "is a fundamentalist who declines to be static."

"A liberal," he went on, "knows that all change is not progress. He also knows that all progress is not heresy. So he blends the two. For example, he believes there must be a constantly broadening sense of social responsibility in government. But he also believes that we can meet this responsibility without floundering into New Deal collectivism or state socialism."

"Do you mean that you do not consider the New Deal to be 'liberal?'" he was asked.

Denies Roosevelt Is "Liberal."

"Well," replied the senator, "there certainly is nothing truly 'liberal' about ripping into the constitution of the United States or contemptuously referring to it as an instrument of 'horse and buggy days,' as the President has done. There is nothing 'liberal' in asking congress to ignore the plain implications of the constitution, as the President did with the Guffey bill."

"Just what do you mean?"

"I mean he told congress not to allow any doubts about its constitutionality to interfere with its passage. The man on the street may not know it yet—but the constitution and the Supreme court are all that finally stand between him and his loss of free speech, free press, free assembly, free petition, free elections, free religious worship, and a thousand other precious rights which still distinguish America from old world dictatorships.

"Government by Decree."

"Liberals will preserve these rights even with their lives. The New Deal represents 'government by executive decree' more than government by representative democracy. We have seen a lot of devices which call themselves 'liberal'; but in actual practice the administration has repeatedly deserted liberal principles—and they had better be recaptured pretty soon or they may be gone forever."

The senator attacked the pending tax bill as a "final assault on thrift and prudence" and then was led into an exposition of his suggestion of the use of the taxing power to promote social security. He accepted the "principle of public responsibility" for social security, but pronounced the present act "full of flaws and obviously unworkable."

Urges Rewards for Industry.

"But even in this general field of industrial relations," he said, "I will confess that I would like to see more emphasis upon a great voluntary coöperative experiment. Such an experiment might coördinate government and business—not as master and servant, but as partners—in a voluntary program to put all labor on a direct profit-sharing basis in the United States, and ultimately to strive toward an annual wage. Federal tax exemptions and rewards might logically be the government's part in dealing with the funding thus dedicated to social progress by private industry. I believe we might anticipate an amazing voluntary result."

The government, Mr. Vandenberg thought, should encourage such voluntary agreements as the railroads and their employés have reached for "retirement wages" for labor displaced by consolidations.

"But how can the government encourage it?" asked his interviewer.

Profit Means Popularity.

"By using the taxing power for constructive business rewards instead of for business punishment, as is the present administration's deadly habit," the senator replied. "Reward private industry for voluntary social progress—whether in unemployment benefits or in retirement wages or in profit sharing. Reward private industry by lifting all taxation from all funds thus dedicated to these great social purposes and to equivalent funds in the employer's hands. Make social progress profitable and you will make it popular."

Senator Vandenberg said he still believes in the principle of the McNary-Haugen bill as the most practical aid to agriculture and is unalterably opposed to the Roosevelt scheme of artificially induced scarcity.

Opposes Entry Into League.

He opposes entrance of the United States into the league of nations. At one time he thought it would be safe for the country to join the world court with proper safeguards. Then he added:

"Subsequent events—not only in Europe but also in respect to our war debt experiences—demonstrated international engagements to be at such low ebb that I entirely doubt the advantage of any such engagements, including the court, until there is some real evidence of renewed international dependability. Unshared idealism is a menace."

Relief he would decentralize and return to the states with federal aid. He urged that private industry be encouraged instead of discouraged.

"But private business has plenty of chances to function today, hasn't it?" asked the interviewer.

Points Out Handicaps.

"Only under heavy and discouraging handicaps," Vandenberg retorted. "How can private commerce be healthy when the government usually treats all business men as though they were public enemies? How can it be healthy when it doesn't know what kind of money its commitments will come due in—until it reads the morning paper and discovers whether the President has issued a new proclamation?

"How can business be healthy when the government is constantly planning punitive taxes to hamstring it? How can it be healthy when it sees no effort whatever to relieve it from still further devastating taxes to pay still further boondoggling federal bills?

"How can business be healthy if it depends upon tarif protection, as many do, when it doesn't know what moment a free trade state department will bargain away all of its essential protection in response to some swivel chair theory of international commerce? How can it be healthy when it doesn't know at what moment the government will go into business against it?"

Points Path to Revival.

"Well then—what can the government do?"

"The best thing it can do is to get off the track and give legitimate business [mark you, I say legitimate business] a chance to make jobs for the unemployed. We must quit creating more problems that we must solve. Even the President says, "We have nothing to fear except fear." Yet his administration studiously keeps fear alive. What America needs is a dose of confidence and a release from political terrorism."

LEHMAN IS PRESSED TO SEEK RE-ELECTION AND HELP ROOSEVELT

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—Despite Gov. Lehman's announced determination not to risk a third term candidacy, efforts to get him to reconsider his decision have been continued, it was learned today, and influential Democrats, supporters of President Roosevelt, believe they may be able to draft him.

Since his announcement of his desire to retire from public life after eight years of service as governor and lieutenant governor, Gov. Lehman has received many letters from party colleagues urging him to run again. friends of President Roosevelt have added their pleas.

The governor has been told that his failure to run may jeopardize the President's chance of carrying his home state and that the loss of New York's 47 electoral votes might result in Mr. Roosevelt's defeat for reëlection.

NEW GUFFEY BILL ASSAILED BY TWO BUSINESS GROUPS

Measure Unconstitutional, They Declare.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—Vigorous opposition to the new Guffey-Vinson coal bill, designed to replace that recently outlawed by the Supreme court, was voiced today by the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers. Both business groups declared the measure should be shelved because it is, in effect, the old act and is unsound, uneconomic, restrictive, discredited, and unconstitutional.

Harper Sibley, president of the chamber, and James A. Emery, general counsel for the manufacturers' association, recalled, in almost identical language that the most widely discredited phase of the defunct NRA was price fixing through codes. The new Guffey-Vinson bill, they said, like the old bill, is designed to establish price fixing by levying a prohibitory tax on products of mines which do not submit to its provisions.

Court's Decision Cited.

"Grave questions as to the constitutionality of the original act were widely held at the time of its enactment," Mr. Sibley said. "How well these doubts were justified was demonstrated by the decision of the Supreme court on May 18, when the court held the interstate commerce power does not extend to the operation of coal mines. There would appear to be no less doubt over the unconstitutionality of the new bill."

Mr. Emery spoke for the directors of his association who have voted to oppose the new coal control bill.

"It is time," Mr. Emery said, "that we began to analyze these stopgaps drafted hurriedly in an attempt to make permanent law of the things that are beyond control of congress and of the federal government; things which must, in the end, be harmful to the nation as a whole. Those who object to the new Guffey-Vinson bill did not even have an opportunity to present their valid reasons for objecting."

See Monopoly Creation.

Both groups argued that the bill in no way meets the Supreme court's objections, forcibly expressed in both the NRA and Guffey decisions to control of purely local actions. The proposed bill, they said, also seeks to create the greatest monopoly in the history of the country—a monopoly controling the price of a basic commodity in that through price control it would exert a control on production.

The proposal clearly violates the principle reiterated by the Supreme court in Ne wDeal decisions, it was said, that a tax may be levied only for the purpose of raising revenue. The tax in the proposed bill was held to be a penalty tax designed to force coal producers into doing something they otherwise would not do.

THREE WOUNDED AS MINE STRIKE ORDER IS DEFIED

Birmingham, Ala., May 31.—(AP)—Three iron ore miners were wounded tonight in a gun battle at the Muscoda mine of the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company, shortly after union leaders announced a strike in shafts supplying ore to Birmingham steel mills.

Chief Deputy W. T. Kemp of Bessemer said the three wounded men were members of the "brotherhood" union which had declined to join the walkout ordered by the International Union of Mine, Mill and Smelter Workers.

The wounded men were in a truck en route to mine No. 6 at Muscoda when the battle opened. Shots were fired from a hillside, Kemp said, and miners in the truck returned the fire.

One of the wounded, a colored man, was taken to a hospital in a critical condition. The others wounded, both white men, were not seriously hurt. All were struck by charges from shotguns.

The strike was voted when the company posted notices putting the miners on a tonnage pay basis.

SAVE TWO DOGS MAROONED ON A LEDGE NINE DAYS

LYTTON, B. C., May 31.—(AP)—Two mongrel dogs, worth nothing to their Indian owners who tried to drown them, were rescued today from the perch they had occupied for nine days on a precarious ledge above the swirling waters of the Fraser river.

The rescuers were R. Pingle and Ray Washpock. The latter was lowered by a rope 150 feet down the face of the canyon wall while Pingle stood watch at the anchor end of the rope. Washpock grabbed the dogs and was hauled to the top of the canyon.

The men announced they would claim ownership of the dogs and took them to their cabin, 11 miles south of here, to begin feeding the starved animals.

The dogs swam to the ledge nine days ago when an old rowboat in which they had gone adrift capsized in Cisco canyon a few hundred yards above this town.

For Digestion's sake... SMOKE CAMELS

Smoking Camels stimulates the flow of digestive fluids...increases alkalinity

Life sometimes pushes us so hard that we feel too worn-down really to enjoy eating. Science explains this by saying that hurry, mental strain, and constant tension reduce the flow of the digestive fluids.

Evidence shows that smoking Camels increases the flow of digestive fluids...alkaline digestive fluids...so vital to the enjoyment of food and to good digestion.

RADICALS' RULE OF FRANCE SET FOR FIRST TEST

Blum Cabinet Will Take Office Tomorrow.

PARIS, May 31.—(AP)—France's new chamber of deputies, the first in the history of the third republic to give a "paper majority" to a Socialist premier, opens tomorrow with Leon Blum preparing for office.

The first session is expected to be a brief formal meeting with real work beginning Tuesday—the day union officials warned that new strikes would begin in the metallurgical industries.

Blum, speaking at a Socialist congress tonight, said: "The social panic which has replaced the monetary panic—strikes—is inevitable. We expected to meet difficulties on assuming power. We will solve them quickly, proving ourselves worthy of the working class."

Urges 40 Hour Week.

The Socialist leader placed the hope of a 40 hour week before the thousands of strikers. He said critics who talked of possible repercussions of the strike, "forget too quickly that the workers have just sent into office a government whose first act will be to ask for a 40 hour week."

Blum said he would lead "not a pure Socialist government," but a government of the Popular Front—the union of communists, Socialists, Union Socialists, and Radical Socialists that won an electoral victory last month.

"The reactionary press," he said, "compares me to Kerensky making his bed with Lenin. I hope the government which the French Socialist party is leading will not be a Kerensky government, but if it is you may rest assured that France has no Lenin to succeed it."

[Alexander Kerensky, Socialist leader, was premier of a coalition government in Russia during part of 1917, but was driven from power by the bolsheviki. Nikolai Lenin, who succeeded him as premier, was a leader in the establishment of the soviet form of government.]

Must Get Confidence Vote.

Political observers said a night session of the chamber of deputies Tuesday might permit Premier Albert Sarraut to submit his resignation with the Blum cabinet taking over the following day.

The new government is expected to take the first parliamentary hurdle—a confidence vote—with ease, but what worries political circles is how far parliament will go with the new premier.

Must Manage "Popular Front."

France's multiparty system has given the lower house the powers of a political firing squad before which many a hopeful government has fallen with little or no warning. Blum, according to rightist deputies, is no exception.

Reds Are a Problem.

On the extreme left the communists, surprised winners of 72 chamber seats in the elections, refused to take part in the government, but promised to support it "if" the cabinet adheres to the program of the popular front for higher prices and wages among other things.

The Union Socialists under Joseph Paul-Boncour with 36 votes and the dissident communists with ten have promised Blum they would remain faithful to the Popular Front. The premier-to-be's chief worry is the powerful Radical Socialist party.

One section, under former Premier Edouard Daladier, has promised to follow Blum while another under the theory that the "center rules the parliament," has served notice that it will not follow "a communist-Socialist dictatorship."

G. O. P. CHIEFS FIRM FOR AN UNPLEDGED NEW YORK DELEGATION

New York, May 31.—(AP)—Leaders of the New York delegation to the Republican national convention, largest state bloc, stood firm tonight in their plans to go to Cleveland unpledged, although eight of the 90 have announced they favor Gov. Alf M. Landon of Kansas for the presidential nomination.

Both National Committeeman Charles D. Hilles and State Chairman Melvin C. Eaton said they had not determined how they will vote.

"I can't answer for the whole delegation," Hilles said, "but I feel as Mr. Eaton does, that we should stick to our previous stand that we keep an unpledged, uninstructed delegation until we get to Cleveland."

Workers Prepare to Tie Up More Factories.

PARIS, May 31.—(AP)—Armies of strikers holding metal factories in the Paris region dwindled today, but the government was disturbed by the prospect of a new wave of strikes Tuesday.

Union officials warned the government that workers in a number of factories would begin "crossed arms" strikes when they went to work on that day.

Louis Frossard, minister of labor, announced officials of the striking metal workers' union and factory operators had reached an agreement on "most points" of collective contracts after a meeting. He said he hoped the formula for ending the walkout in airplane, munitions, and automobile factories could be signed Thursday.

Ask Men to Quit Factories.

The operators asked the strikers to evacuate the factories where they are encamped, and promised to answer the unions' demands by 5 p. m. tomorrow.

Independent settlements, hastened by workers who want to enjoy a legal holiday tomorrow, left 8,000 weary strikers encamped in factories, hoping for a truce to permit evacuation.

A garrison holding the Licorne automobile plant in the suburb of Courbevoie sang throughout the night and disturbed the sleep of a factory manager who was a prisoner in his private office. Four executives were held for the night behind picket lines in two other plants.

Reds Furnish Food.

Some garrisons of strikers were supplied with food and drink by communist municipalities. At other factories the strikers pooled their resources and commandeered trucks of the companies to transport supplies.

Workshops of the Lavalette plant at St. Ouen, where strikers have been encamped since May 26, were turned into apartments. Wives and families of the workmen moved in with cooking stoves, cots, and sheets, and even radios.

Doors of all affected factories are guarded by union pickets, some of whom allowed strikers to go to corner cafés for an occasional drink. Tradesmen did a rushing business in renting mattresses and other conveniences.

INDIANS OF PANAMA AWED BY AIRPLANE; INCLUDE IT AS GOD

Washington, D. C., May 31.—[Special.]—Evidence that the Choco Indians of the Chuncunaque river district of eastern Panama, after watching with awe the airplanes that have flown over their jungle villages during the last two decades, have deified the airplane has been received by the Smithsonian institution, it announced today.

A collection of ethnological objects assembled by Capt. K. S. Anderson of the United States army contains five elaborately plainted balsa wood carving of airplanes.

"Details of the shape and structure of a plane are reproduced with considerable fidelity," the Smithsonian's announcement said. "Even the insignia are painted on the carvings."

The Choco medicine men, the Smithsonian points out, surround themselves with statues of the Choco gods, and the discovery of the carved model of the airplanes is accepted by ethnologists as strong evidence that aircraft now have been enshrined in the Choco Parthenon.

"WINE BY HOUR" NETS THIS CAFE A RUSHING TRADE

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

BUCHAREST, Rumania, May 31.—"Wine by the hour" is the slogan a Bucharest wine shop proprietor has discovered to lead to wealth and local fame during the government's "wine propaganda week."

His wine cellar, which is in the working class suburb of Dudesti, has turned to "taxi drinking" as the best method of exploiting the government's propaganda. The proprietor has put out a placard reading "The finest wines from Dragashani—25 lei per drinking hour" [twenty-five lei is about 18 cents].

On entering a patron receives a ticket noting the time he starts to drink. He pays no more until he has been there longer than an hour.

Chicago Gunman Walks Away from Stateville Farm

One hundred guards and deputies were searching in the vicinity of Stateville prison last night for Arne Anderson, 29 year old Chicago stickup man, who walked away from the prison honor farm. Anderson was sentenced in February, 1933, to 1 to 10 years and was to have been freed next March.

REPORT A. F. OF L. MAY SUSPEND 9 RICHEST UNIONS

Units Involved Have Over Million Members.

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—The executive council of the American Federation of Labor was reliably reported today to be planning to suspend its nine richest and strongest unions, which have more than a million members.

The craft union group led by William Green, federation president, was said to be prepared to read out all of the industrial unionists who follow John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, and to be willing to sacrifice a third of the federation's membership and a much greater portion of its finances rather than effect a compromise.

Green and Lewis at Odds.

Green wants to continue to organize industry by skilled groups while Lewis would seek to unite all workers, skilled and unskilled, by industries into one big union.

The craft unionists, it was learned, intend to suspend the charters of the nine industrial unions at the July executive council session, a power granted the council under the A. F. of L. constitution.

Its next move will be an attempt to expel the suspended members at the next convention of the entire federation, depending on whether the necessary two-thirds majority required for expulsion is obtained. The industrialist group, it was said, will fight this procedure.

Rift Threatened Two Years.

The rift, which broke into open rebellion last week when the Lewis group turned down a command from Green to dissovle their committee for industrial organization, has threatened for more than two years to split the federation.

Hope that George Harrison, president of the railway clerks, would succeed in making peace between the two groups faded when the Green ultimatum, handed two weeks ago to the Lewis faction, was signed by a committee headed by Harrison.

The groups in the powerful industrial combine inclues Lewis' 400,000 miners, Sidney Hillman's Amalgamated Clothing Workers, David Dubinsky's International Ladies Garment union, the oil workers, typographers, flat glass workers, hat, cap, and millinery workers, mine, mill, and smelter workers, and textile workers.

FLOOD TOLL 8 DEAD IN DUST BOWL AREA IN COLORADO, KANSAS

Granada, Colo., May 31.—(AP)—Eight deaths caused by rain flooded streams were counted today in Colorado and Kansas.

The latest victims were four occupants of a farmhouse near Spring field, Colo., in the southwest's once-denominated "dust bowl." There the waters of Butte creek drowned Simon Gonzales, 30, his wife, their three year old daughter, and John Grazie, 65. Gonzales' body was recovered.

A. C. Baumgartner was drowned on his farm near Pritchett, Colo.

Don Gates, 27, Denver, was drowned near Stratton, Colo., and Mrs. John Dyatt died of shock.

Inquiry Into Black Legion Will Open Soon.

Detroit, Mich., May 31.—[Special.]—Plans for a one man grand jury inquiry into attempts of the Black legion to set up a political reign of terror throughout Detroit's metropolitan area will be completed tomorrow at a conference between Attorney General David H. Crowley and Circuit Judges James E. Chenot.

Judge Chenot, who will sit as the grand jury, is expected to begin the hearings Wednesday or Thursday following the examination of 12 men charged with the murder of James A. Poole, the slaying which exposed the terrorist society.

2 Judges to Be Called.

Among those who will be subpenaed to testify at the inquiry are two local judges and a prominent politician of Wayne county [Detroit]. Crowley has been informed, he says, that the judges attended a Black Legion meeting, that one of them took the oath, and that the politician attempted to intimidate Mayor Frank Couzens of this city.

Crowley, who is intervening as a joint prosecutor in the examination Tuesday of those charged with Poole's murder, also will confer Monday with Prosecuting Attorney Duncan C. McCrea about that phase of the Black Legion investigation.

Crowley today asked Canadian authorities to investigate the hanging of a Wyandotte steel worker May 14 for possible connection with the Black Legion. The body of Roy Piedpock, 32 was found hanging from a rafter in a shanty on Fighting Island, which is in Canadian waters.

Death Called Suicide.

Although Wyandotte police believed Piedpock committed suicide, other authorities cited evidence that the Black Legion had been active in Detroit's downriver suburbs, and requested further investigation.

Mrs. Nellie Pidcock, the widow, said her husband told her shortly before his death, "They're going to get me, and they'll get you, too."

Canadian provincial police said they believed Pidcock swam to the island, a mile and a half from the mainland, and hanged himself. Capt. Marmon said a witness told him of seeing two boats circling the island about the time of Pidcock's death, "apparently taking something to the island."

Two new suspects in the Poole slaying conspiracy remained in custody today awaiting prosecution with the others. They were Virgil Morrow, 29, and Albert Stevens, 52. Morrow admitted driving one of the cars in the procession that started out to lynch Poole the night of May 12, according to homicide squad detectives, but said he never reached the scene of the slaying. Stevens, the detectives said, confessed being in Morrow's car.

McCrea intends to prosecute all those who were in the cavalcade, although only seven actually were present at the murder, the others having got lost on the way.

BOY TAKES CAR AND $10.

Police were seeking Edward Stephany Jr., 12 years old, 211 Custer street, Lemont, who disappeared from his home early yesterday in an automobile and $10 taken from his father's pockets.

URGE DICTATOR RULE TO CURB ARGENTINE REDS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, May 31.—A conservative dictatorship to prevent the return to power of the Popular Front of Argentine radicals was demanded tonight in a manifesto issued by the National Front of conservative parties. The Leftists, who were overthrown by the September, 1930, revolution, won the recent elections.

The manifesto of the Rightists who are supporting President Agustin Justo, professed devotion to democratic principles. The supposition that a government of Socialists and communists can arise was declared to be a "monstrous hypothesis which the nation cannot contemplate with indifference."

Universal suffrage "by the ignorant masses" threatens the country "with unbridled demagogy and corruption," the manifesto continued. The country has lost its equilibrium, which must be restored by transformation of the constitutional system, it added, and recommended a "period of transition in which the fundamental institutions of the country can be maintained."

FOUND DEAD ON PORCH.

Meyer Rosenberg, 80 years old, 1151 South Mozart street, was found dead of a heart ailment yesterday on the rear porch of the home of Nathan Feldman, 1719 Roosevelt road, where he had been visiting.

FEUDISTS KILL 2 KENTUCKIANS FROM AMBUSH

London, Ky., May 31.—(AP)—Two men were killed and one was wounded yesterday in an outbreak of feudist violence in Clay county, where warring clans have provoked repeated military occupations and once caused a demand that the county be abolished.

Buckshot roared from the underbrush late last night as Charlie Benge rode his mule to his farm at Goose Creek and Upper Tanyard. Both were slain. Dan Cupp, who was riding with Benge, was wounded.

Benge's death followed by a few hours that of Claude Scott, 40, who was shot by riflemen hidden in the hills while he worked in his garden.

NEW DEAL PLANS 'GARDEN HOMES' OUTSIDE CITIES

Program Would Provide Workers' Plots.

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—A new administration housing program involving development of "garden homes" outside of large cities, was outlined today by Stewart McDonald, federal housing administrator.

Saying that President Roosevelt "is enthusiastic" over the plan, McDonald told newspaper men it was aimed at a gradual movement of industrial workers and similar classes from urban and suburban areas to small homes situated on one to two acre plots several miles from city limits.

Emphasizing that "this is not anything in the way of a benevolent proposition" and that no grants of federal funds were involved, he said it would be accomplished through a broadening of FHA regulations to permit government insurance of mortgages on such property.

This will enable bankers and other leaders to advance funds for the development of these "in between" areas for residential purposes, he said.

"The President believes that whenever possible people should be on an acre to two acres of ground with trees, gardens, and shrubbery," he said.

"This plan has been made possible by inventions and provements in the last ten years. Now we have good roads, electricity, water facilities, and other conveniences for those areas in between the city and the country. Such a program was not possible during the last building boom."

2,055 BUILDINGS RAZED AS UNSAFE BY WPA AND IERC

Workers for the WPA and the Illinois Emergency Relief administration have razed 2,055 old and dangerous buildings in Chicago since the start of a city-wide demolition program June 1, 1934, W. S. Haldeman, director of demolition projects for the WPA reported yesterday to Mayor Kelly. At the present time more than 4,000 are employed in tearing down 102 buildings condemned as unsafe.

The demolition work is particularly in evidence west of Racine avenue from Taylor street south to Roosevelt road, which will be the site of the Jane Addams housing project, and between Vernon and Rhodes avenues, from 37th street to 38th place, which is to become Madden park, a recreation center.

RURAL WOMEN OPEN RALLY IN CAPITAL TODAY

6,000 from Throughout World to Attend.

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)— From all the state and many foreign countries 6,000 rural housewives gathered here today for the third triennial conference of the Associated Countrywomen of the World.

"Townswomen never have done anything like it," said Mrs. Alfred Watt of Canada, president, whose curly hair has grown white in her years of globe stumping on a "give the country woman a chance" platform.

Plan "Experience Exchange."

What the countrywomen will do next week differs decidedly from convention pattern. No resolutions will be voted. No "set speeches" will be made, with the exception of greetings tomorrow from Secretaries Hull and Wallace and from Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

Instead, the farm wives will sit in "exchange of experience" sessions; will view vast exhibits of the rural needlework and crafts of organized countrywomen of all participating nations; will attend "open houses" to be held by all branches of the federal government in which countrywomen are particularly interested.

Some samples of experiences to be exchanged:

Youth Clubs Promoted.

Australian countrywomen maintain seaside homes for convalescents. Canada's Federated Women's institute promotes clubs for rural youth and combats maternal and infant mortality.

By conducting evening classes for young girls Danish countrywomen have helped to check their migration to town to seek factory work. The East Africa Women's league visits native women in prisons and hospitals and provides information to prospective white settlers.

The first meeting of the conference was in Vienna in 1930 and the second in Stockholm in 1933.

SKILLED LABOR ON NEW BUILDING SOUGHT IN VAIN

Rock Island, Ill., May 31.—[Special.]—Representatives of the Chicago Construction company that holds the contract for the new Rock Island High school building, now being erected, today complained to Chicago PWA offices that they are unable to hire sufficient union carpenters because of the shortage of skilled labor in this community. They said the building cannot be completed by the contract date, Dec. 15, unless it is possible to engage from twenty to thirty more carpenters at once.

The project is to provide a $300,000 labor pay roll.

Applications for admission to Citizens' Military Training camps have been received from more than 5,000 young men, Col. E. R. Householder, adjutant general of the sixth corps area, announced yesterday. Funds available to the army for operation of the camps will limit enrollment to approximately 4,000 of those who have applied. The sixth corps area includes Illinois, Michigan, and Wisconsin. Last year approximately 3,700 youths between 17 and 24 years old were enrolled. All necessary expenses of those enrolled are paid by the government.

POWER.

Prior to Watt's steam engine man's only aid to muscular effort was such energy as he could derive from winds and waterfalls. The former was a capricious servant and the latter occurred principally in inaccessible regions. Neither was of much value to him. It is therefore small wonder that the efficiency of the steam engine, with its possibilities of producing power when and where it was needed, was not questioned for 100 years. It is an attribute of science, however, never to be satisfied with accomplishment. Two schools of thought finally appeared. The first studied mass economy through centralization of production, to finally perfect both the steam and water turbine. With their accessorial generation of electric energy and transmission network they have placed the electric light and many labor saving devices in our homes. The second school explored fuel economy to produce the gas, gasoline, and Diesel internal combustion engines that gave us the automobile and revolutionized transportation both on land and sea. Distinctly, its efforts contemplated decentralization of power.

We are too prone to think that the new supersedes the old. This is never entirely true. Water power, as an instance, has not been superseded where the demand for the energy released may be utilized in tremendous volume at the source of the power. At the same time it has the fatal defect of requiring a complicated transportation system to distribute its benefits. Obviously, an expensive pole line to isolated homes, farms, and industries would involve a colossal waste of capital or tax money. One has only to conjure up a western ranch served by a high tension transmission line. Steam will also remain supreme where the industry may require both heat and power, and thus utilize the thermal value of the exhaust. Both of these sources of energy must give way to the Diesel in sections of the country where power demands are either modest or intermittent.

Undoubtedly the cheapest that can be produced, water power suffers from the excessive capital investment involved in its development and the various stages of transformation, with consequent losses through which it must pass before it reaches its market. It is like water transportation in this respect, with its high initial cost and final value only to the bulk consumer. Steam is more versatile because it can choose its location and regulate its power supply. It is still the biggest factor in railway freight transportation and probably will remain so for many years. On the other hand, the internal combustion engine can be operated by the individual just as he now operates his automobile. The gasoline engine gave the country independence in transportation; the Diesel will give it power freedom.

Even in our great cities where cheap power is available many office buildings, hotels, and stores are adopting Diesel power for lighting, air conditioning, and the operation of elevators. Next the farmer, who has taken to motorized machinery like a duck to water and has learned to be his own mechanic and engineer, will Dieselize his farm. The principle is sound because the price of producing a horse power on the spot is not greater than at some distant central plant, and the cost of transformation as well as transmission is omitted. The city dweller or suburbanite can even visualize a small plant in the corner of his own garage to render his home independent of power companies.

Centralization savors of old world policies, of kingdoms and duchies, of regimentation and military servitude. Decentralization spells independence, individuality, and self-reliance, all distinctly American traits. Science has offered another great aid to mankind, perhaps as great as the automobile industry, when the federal government steps in with grandiose plans for the most elaborate centralization of power that has ever been visualized. Business and employment are held in leash while the Tennessee Valley, Mississippi Valley, and Columbia River projects absorb the resources of the country. Outmoded for the purposes intended, they will become white elephants within less than a generation, their huge cost to be carried on the shoulders of the taxpayer while he pays doubly for the convenience of his own power plant.

RENO DIVORCES.

The newspapers reported the other day that Mrs. Marion Alexander Hart, the first wife, received a great deal more, and Mrs. Constance Woodward Hart, the second wife, received a great deal less under the will of Frank G. Hart than he intended them to have. The first marriage was terminated, or so Mr. Hart thought, by a Reno divorce; but the New York court which supervised the distribution of the estate said the Reno divorce was not a valid one. Therefore the first Mrs. Hart's dower rights were unimpaired and the second Mrs. Hart received only one-fourth of the estate which had been willed to her and this share was reckoned after her predecessor's one-third interest had first been subtracted. The sums involved were substantial; Mr. Hart left several million dollars when he was killed last year in an airplane accident.

Lawyers who have given study to the matter generally discourage their clients from patronizing the various divorce mills scattered about the world. The courts of this country, from the United States Supreme court down, have frequently found occasion to declare the product of these mills defective and substandard. Property rights of the subsequent wives are accordingly jeopardized. The children of a subsequent marriage are in danger of being declared illegitimate and therefore not entitled to inherit on equal terms with the legitimate children of the first marriage.

The only certainly effective divorce is one obtained where you actually live. As Mr. Richard A. Knight of the New York bar says in an entertaining article in the current number of Esquire, you can change your domicile to Reno, but you have to do it in good faith. You must honestly move there if you want your divorce to be really binding, or rather unbinding. It may help somewhat if the defending mate formally accepts service and engages Reno counsel; it may help, also, if at least one of the partners actually rents a house in Reno, lives in it and maintains charge accounts at the local grocer to prove that she [or he] has settled there. Residence in Reno for some time after the divorce has been granted will also be helpful, but all of these devices can only serve to make it harder to prove the divorce invalid. They do not make it certain that the divorce will be declared valid if it is ever put to the test of litigation.

WPA PUTS ON A CHICAGO SHOW.

Mr. Hopkins' WPA has made its second great impression on Chicago. The first was in the primaries when it was demonstrated that although a petty politician might be a mighty poor man at public works, give him elbow room at a precinct polling place and he would prove that he knew what he was doing. What a fellow can do in directing operations with picks is no measure of his ability when the activities are centered around ballot boxes, although in both cases the practice is to lean on them.

The second great impression made by WPA is in what has been called street repair. Mr. Dunham of the Chicago park district, a notable local figure in New Dealing, assisted in the street repair by offering Michigan avenue for laboratory purposes. The choice was a happy one. The closing of a stretch of the avenue produced results exceeding all expectations. The trafic disturbance throughout the loop called to mind a giant contortionist who as a crowning feature of his act had arched his left leg back of his head, locked a toe in his right ear, and was unable to extricate himself.

The police did the best they could and might have succeeded beyond any reasonable expectation if some guiding genius had not decided that the time was then ripe to close parts of the loop streets and run marker lines down them and do it when trafic was heaviest. The two inspirations, one in Michigan avenue and the other in the loop streets, combined in no uncertain way to make a circus. Some of the police were so overcome that they had to retire temporarily from the scene and give way to their emotions.

Distracted citizens may find what consolation they can in the report from New York that a similar street repair job on Jamaica avenue through Queens village, costing $500,000, will have to be done all over again because a fifty-seven block stretch has been rejected by the borough engineers as a "disgrace."

MR. ZIONCHECK IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

The Hon. Mr. Zioncheck's principal depredations against other people's privileges, properties, liberties, and immunities seem to consist thus far of bent fenders, sassed policeman, disturbing telephone calls, and some grapefruit bounced off a few Porto Rican beans. That the Washington problem child does these things to call attention to himself is believed to be beyond question. He has acquired a taste for the first page which added to other tastes has been fatal on other occasions to even more disciplined characters.

People have thought that the escapades of Mr. Zioncheck, in whose name the check, as has been observed, is silent, brought congress into disrepute. If by that is meant additional disrepute the ability of a wilder man than the fender bending congressman to do it could be doubted. And Mr. Zioncheck comes under unintelligent criticism. If he does not quit driving like a fool he may kill somebody and be responsible for that, but thus far he has done less damage to the country than his associates on the Hill who do not throw grapefruit at strangers but bombs at their own countrymen.

Mr. Zioncheck dents a few fenders. His associates are taking the air out of the country's tires, taking out the parts of the engine and filling the gasoline tank with water. Mr. Zioncheck is probably the most sensible Democrat in the house of representatives.

Editorial of the Day

BET ON THE TURBAN.

[Illinois State Journal.]

In this contest for popularity between types of women's hats, put your money on the turban. It may run a few heats in slower time than the field, but in the deciding dash it will finish first.

Records of past performances warant this tip. Grandmother can remember various cycles which have featured elaborate and expansive headgear, and she recollects that in each of them the broad brims had only a brief run of popular favor.

Probably the most attractive of the hats grandma wore when a girl had to be discarded because it was constantly becoming wedged between the sliding doors of the old-time Washington street mule car. She couldn't get into a railroad train without removing it, and it was a target for angry protest and worse when she showed up in any group of rubbernecks.

Inhibitions which have always operated to discourage broad brims are intensified in this age of underslung motor vehicles, revolving doors, and narrow entrances to passenger elevators.

Finding parking space for a big hat in a theater is a problem, and even one with a modest brim will not be tolerated by the man behind. Only the girl in the chorus can wear a thoroughly classy headpiece, and she has to don it outside the dressing room.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

Hew to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

"MEN'S SHIRTS Cut Small for Women's Wear." —Fashion headline. Bang, men; there go our shirts. And next the headlines will tell us that our coats and our vests and our trousers are being cut short by the women so they can wear 'em. They've got the automobiles already cut down to their size, those women have. A man can't get into 'em without a shoe horn and somebody outside the car boostin' him. And look at the seats on the busses—a fellow has to fold all up like a jackknife. And what's the answer when women are wearing all our clothes? We'll have to wear their dresses, that's what. Up men, grab your shirts and fight. If we can win this first battle we may have a chance. So fight, men. fight! And let our battle cry be, "Keep Your Shirt On!"

HERALDS IN MEDIEVAL COSTUMES have marched around London proclaiming that King Edward's coronation ceremony will take place May 12, 1937. Which next to the annual birthday party of the Dionne quints in Canada will be the most important event in the calendar of the British empire next year.

REPRESENTATIVE ZIONCHECK is getting so tiresome. Why are all his caperings so solemnly set forth on the front page? It must be because he is a congressman, for his stunts are very old and commonplace. A congressman seems to have taken the place of the mother-in-law and New Jersey mosquito as a stock joke. But the mother-in-law and the New Jersey mosquito jokes were much funnier.

THE DEEPER LOSS.

There is something darker than death,
Whose burden is heavier than lead—
A loss more poignant than breath,
And a stillness surpassing the dead.

No field where the roses are slain
Is ever so barren as this—
No sea is more lonely with rain
Than the turn of a mouth from a kiss;

No house where shutters are folded,
With locks below and above,
Is ever so empty and moulded
As a heart that is emptied of love.

Like a ship that sails in summer
And in winter still staggers a sea,
Or battle and the fate of the drummer,
Or the failure of flowers for the bee,

Is love now dead on its altars
And lovers made strangers by time,
Or faith once strong that now falters
And a heart all barren of rhyme.

ABORIGINE.

'TIS JUNE! June queens, June conventions, June graduates, June poets, June brides, June woods, June vacations, June skies, "and what is so perfect as, etc., etc.?" Stand back, stand 'way back, you ordinary mortals, or you'll be trampled under foot in the great rush. It's the loveliest month of the year and it's here at last. Jump in and get everything out of it you can. It was a cold, hard winter we've just been through. Sometimes we thought June would never come, but it did. June's here. Let us go out in the garden and not eat worms, but dig 'em up and go fishin'.

THE BEHEMOTH LINER Queen Mary arrives today, or maybe it arrived yesterday. See front page. Wonder if she beat the record of the French liner Normandie? If she does there will be a crisis in France and barricades in the streets of Paris. And the Vendome column will come down. But the English are different. If the Queen Mary doesn't beat the record of the Normandie an Englishman will only say, "It's somebody's fault, you know. Oh quite! I shall jolly well write a letter to the Times about it."

LLOYD GEORGE is a wise politician. He is having a roadside shop built near his estate at Church, down in Surrey in England, where he will sell things raised on his farm—eggs, vegetables, flowers, honey, and jam. I would go a long distance to buy eggs and vegetables from a politician. Believing that eggs and cabbages might be hurled at him any time when he came out for a speech he would be sure to sell only fresh ones.

"PRINCES May Be Allowed to Marry Commoners."—Headline. Well, how nice! But what, I ask you, is commoner these days than princes, dukes, earls, barons, and even kings? They won't find any commoners to marry them that are any commoner than they are. Common! Why, I've got a couple of kings washing my car right now, or are they dukes? I can't tell until they get through; dukes work fairly hard, but kings always crawl into the back seat and go to sleep.

RETURN.

Sweet was the memory of the shady hill,
Of tall young forest trees above the town,
Where as a child I lay with empty will
Watching the fronded boughs drift up and down,
Turning my head to see the shadows pass
Over the scattered acorn-cups, and run
Backward and forward on the speckled grass,
Feathered and slashed with arrow-points of sun.
Would I had never come again, to find
So pale a light upon the crumpled moss,
To seek what never was, to weep me blind
With senseless sorrow for another's loss.
This is a place a child held very dear;
The child is dead. I am a stranger here.

THE CHRONIC APPENDIX.

DESPITE the generous amount of information that is available concerning the deadly character of a diseased appendix, tragedies continue to occur. But a few weeks ago a highly intelligent, successful business man called his family physician after suffering for more than 24 hours with a great deal of abdominal distress. On examination the physician found a ruptured appendix with a spreading peritonitis. The friends are now consoling the family although—all too late—every aid to recovery was utilized that modern science could muster.

Some authorities deny the existence of chronic or recurring appendicitis. However, it seems reasonable to assume that any mucous lined blind pouch, such as the gall bladder or the appendix, may become inflamed, partially heal, and again be the seat of bacterial growth. One attack follows another, none possibly severe enough to indicate clearly that the appendix should be removed. In many long series of operated cases the number showing previous inflammation of the appendix will be considerable—some as high as 63 per cent.

The symptoms can often be recognized by a careful study of the history of the patient, who may tell of more or less constant dull pain in the right lower portion of the abdomen, which is made worse by exercise. Sharp pain is not always elicited by pressure. The most characteristic symptom may be back pressure in the digestive tract, which may be the cause of stomach symptoms, notably nausea and vomiting. In fact, French physicians describe what they call dyspepsia of the appendix, characterized by a full feeling which comes on shortly after meals with considerable gas and nausea. These manifestations, however, may not distinguish the malady from disease of the gall bladder. Among the toxic signs are loss of appetite, headache, and a general feeling of fatigue.

Acute inflammation can occur in a chronic appendix—one that has been damaged by previous assaults—and sometimes a patient will disregard the symptoms because they are the same as he experienced for three or four days a year or two ago. Failure to proceed promptly has been followed much too often by disaster, as rupture of a previously diseased structure can and does occur.

Many investigators believe that the appendix may function as a focus of infection, particularly in the development of arthritis, and a case is related in which the joint symptoms were greatly aggravated with each seizure of abdominal pain. A study of the appendix revealed a chronically inflamed organ that contained pus. With its removal the joint symptoms disappeared wholly. Neuritis likewise has been traced to a similar state of affairs.

An accurate diagnosis is often difficult. There is, of course, the patient's history of acute pain, sometimes weeks or months apart, and tenderness in the abdomen limited to the lower portion of the ascending colon. An X-ray may be of considerable help, the patient having taken a barium meal. There are so many confusing disease entities, however, that great care must be exercised. It is usually wise to place the patient under good medical management before operation can be advised with certainty. Conditions that may bring on similar symptoms are ulcers in the duodenum or the stomach, inflammation of the pelvic organs in women, gall bladder disease, enlargement of the kidney with destruction of the kidney substance, and trouble in the ureter, the tube which carries urine from the kidney to the bladder.

Rarely will medical treatment be of much help if the appendix is definitly at fault. If the symptoms are functional or due to some abnormality in the upper portion of the digestive tract they will probably disappear and it will then be clear that the appendix is not guilty. We need to watch for the chronic appendix, but we must not ascribe every type of abdominal discomfort to this structure.

LEPROSY.

A. R. writes: A friend of mine is in a leper's home in Louisiana and she has asked me to visit her. In case I did would I endanger my children? Is leprosy hereditary? How is it contracted? I understand that some of the patients at this home are allowed furloughs after being there a certain length of time. If this patient were to visit my home would it be safe to offer her something to eat in the dishes I use? Why are people with such a dread disease as leprosy allowed out?

REPLY.

Leprosy is not communicated readily and then only under special conditions, such as direct contact with lepers who are personally unclean. Where there is close and protracted association between the well and the sick is the chief factor in the spread of the disease. The danger of infection from leprous persons is greater if there is a discharge from the skin lesions and the mucous membranes. Children run a greater risk.

The fear of leprosy is undoubtedly due to biblical influence. However, among many peoples, especially where the disease is common, a leper is regarded with no greater concern than is a syphilitic with us.

There is no evidence that leprosy is inherited. Like tuberculosis, leprosy runs in families as a result of propinquity.

I would not advise fraternizing with one afflicted, but if treatment is in progress and if the contact is brief no harm will result. Dishes, etc., can be thoroughly cleaned by using soapsuds and hot water.

DEVELOPING ARCHES.

A. F. R. writes: What exercises will develop the arches of the foot?

REPLY.

Exercise is all important in the prevention and treatment of weakened arches. Tiptoe exercise, in which one rises on tiptoe and then eases down upon the outer margin of the foot, have been recommended to develop the muscles most concerned with the longitudinal arch.

Grasping a pencil with the toes and rolling a towel beneath the foot—using the toes only—will strengthen the transverse arch.

HAVE FULL EXAMINATION.

E. N. writes: Does hematuria always denote cancer of the kidneys or may it mean that some other disease is present?

REPLY.

Hematuria [blood in the urine] is a sign of any number of diseases, some of which include: inflammation of the kidneys, nephritis, stone in the kidney, the ureter, or the bladder, scurvy, hemophilia, leukemia, malaria, growths in the bladder or the prostate. You should have a thorough examination in order to determine the cause in your case.

DAY BY DAY IN THE MAKING OF THE CONSTITUTION

BY JAMES MADISON.
[Father of the Constitution and Fourth President of the United States.]

Philadelphia, Pa., June 1, 1787.—William Houston from Georgia took his seat. The committee proceeded to the resolution that a national executive be instituted, to possess the executive powers of congress, etc. Mr. Pinckney of South Carolina was for a vigorous executive but feared that the existing powers of congress might extend to peace and war, which would render the executive a monarchy of the worst kind, an elective one.

Shall the Executive Be One Person?

Mr. Wilson of Pennsylvania moved that the executive consist of a single person. A considerable pause ensuing and on the chairman asking if he should put the question Dr. Franklin observed that it was a point of great importance and wished the gentlemen would deliver their sentiments on it before the question was put.

Mr. Rutledge of South Carolina animadverted on the shyness of the gentlemen on this and other subjects. He said it looked as if they supposed themselves precluded by frankly disclosing their opinions from afterwards changing them which he did not take to be at all the case. Mr. Sherman of Connecticut considered the magistracy nothing more than an institution for carrying the will of the legislature into effect. Mr. Wilson of Pennsylvania preferred a single magistrate. Mr. Gerry of Massachusetts favored a policy of annexing a council to the executive.

Mr. Randolph of Virginia strenuously opposed a unity in the executive. He regarded it as the fœtus of monarchy. We had no motive to be governed by the British government as our model. He did not mean to throw censure on that excellent fabric. The fixed genius of the American people required another form. Mr. Wilson said he was almost unwilling to declare the mode of election of the executive which he wished to take place, being apprehensive that it might appear chimerical. He would say at least that in theory he was for an election by the people. Mr. Sherman was for the appointment by the legislature and making him absolutely dependent on that body. An independence of the executive on the legislature was the very essence of tyranny if there was any such thing.

Mr. Wilson renewed his declarations in favor of an appointment by the people. He wished to derive not only both branches of the legislature from the people without the intervention of the state legislatures but the executive also to make them as independent as possible of each other as well as of the states. Col. Mason favors the idea but thinks it impractical. He wishes, however, that Mr. Wilson might have time to digest it into his own form. The clause "to be chosen by the national legislature" was accordingly postponed. The committee then arose and the house adjourned.

TITLE TO PROPERTY.

Chicago, May 23.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. Can any property be sold with a clear title? 2. If a will is held for a time of three months or so, is there a law that the will must be filed with the Probate court immediately and [3] what penalty is there if it is a law? Five children are left, all of age and married, but are parentless. 4. A property of a lot and a half and a two story frame building is left, cleared from all debts. Two of my brothers are appointed administrators of the will, which is of an Illinois form, and the real estate is also in Illinois. M. C. I.

1. Depends on whether the title is in fact clear.

2. On proper facts, probate can be entirely dispensed with.

3. No penalty is assessed where all parties involved are satisfied to dispense with probate. We cannot give you advice of much value without having your facts more clearly before us.

4. In general, probate is necessary in order to produce a real estate title which a contract purchaser would be forced to accept.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

NO ASSESSMENT CONTEMPLATED.

Chicago, May 22.—[Friend of the People.]—We have received many inquiries from property owners in this section as to whether they will be assessed for the lateral sewers now being installed by the WPA in the section bounded by Irving Park boulevard on the north, Wellington avenue on the south, Harlem avenue on the east, and Cumberland avenue on the west. Any information you can give will be greatly appreciated by the property owners here. E. L.

The lateral sewers now being installed in the area bounded by Irving Park boulevard, Wellington avenue, Harlem avenue, and Cumberland avenue are being constructed by the federal Works Progress administration as WPA Project No. 804, Sponsor's No. 2-s-1. No special assessment is to be levied against the property owners in this area for the sewers constructed by WPA. Furthermore, according to an ordinance introduced by Ald. William J. Cowhey and passed by the city council, no special assessment is to be levied against property in the Forty-first ward without further special action of the city council.

A. J. SCHAFMAYER,
Engineer, Board of Local Improvements.

WAGE PAYMENTS.

Silvis, Ill., May 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I am writing regarding an article published in your column recently. This article referred to the state law in Illinois as to the obligations of a company toward its employés regarding payment of wages. I would like to know if the same law or any other provides also that a company can be made to pay wages due for services rendered in cash rather than accept a check or other draft in payment. If there is a law to this effect in the state it will mean the saving of many dollars to a number of employés. J. D.

Section 20 of chapter 48 of the State Bar Statutes provides: "That no person, firm or corporation engaged in any business or enterprise within this state shall issue, in payment of or as evidence of indebtedness for wages due an employé for labor, any time check, store order, scrip, or other acknowledgment of indebtedness unless the same is payable or redeemable upon demand without discount and for face value, in lawful money of the United States at the office or place of business of such person, firm or corporation."

THE MAKING OF THE CONSTITUTION.

Mount Morris, Ill., May 27.—If you have not already planned to do so, permit me to suggest that you save the type of the articles that are now appearing in THE TRIBUNE relative to the first constitutional convention and reprint them in a booklet later. I make this suggestion because I am one of thousands of people who will be taking their vacations now and will miss these valuable articles unless they can be secured in booklet form later.

MILO D. ZIMMERMAN.

Dubuque, Ia., May 23.—I am very much interested in your series of articles on the day by day proceedings of the constitutional convention at Philadelphia. This will prove a very interesting series, especially on account of the Democratic convention to be held there this summer. If you could collect [illegible] daily articles after they are fin[illegible] [illegible] them at a moderate price, I [illegible] there should be quite a demand for them. Because of the many decisions this year on New Deal acts I believe the articles should be eagerly read.

PETER H. MCCARTHY.

PORTRAITS.

Chicago, May 27.—I'd like to paint a word picture of three women for you.

Woman No. 1 is the slender, underfed, pitiful wife of a veteran. She has six children ranging from 8 to 18 years. Her husband has heart trouble and is unable to work. The relief they receive is about $1 per day for food, but this comes in the form of an order every other week. They have had no butter for four years. Their chief foods are potatoes, canned milk, and cereals.

Woman No. 2 has two daughters in high school. She has a telephone, frequent all-night parties, rich, fluffy pastries, grapefruit, chocolate milk, butter, etc., and one daughter wears a fur coat. Woman No. 2 is also on relief.

Woman No. 3 is myself. My husband works for a moderate compensation which gives us the necessities and a few of the better things, but we cannot afford a telephone nor many of the things No. 2 enjoys, but we, and you, and you help to maintain her. We are the ones in the middle. We are the ones who pay a sales tax so No. 1 can have necessities, and find that No. 2 seems to be getting it for luxuries. It is this condition which has made the writer very bitter toward the sales tax.

Any one in authority who wishes my name in order to make investigations of these two cases can have it, otherwise I prefer it withheld.

THEY ALL COME TO OLNEY.

Olney, Ill., May 26.—Thank you for publishing the automobile licenses of the United States and Canada in the Sunday paper. I keep a record of the licenses that come through Olney on route 130 and 50. Last year I saw all but three and sometimes foreign ones. This will be a help to me in recognizing them.

ELISABETH SHULTZ,

A SHIELD AGAINST PERSECUTION.

Chicago, May 27.—The exposure of the Black legion depredations, with their acknowledged hatred toward creeds and races other than their own, should bring forcibly to mind that equal rights to all classes of people are prescribed by the constitution of the U. S. A.

Our constitution prevents a condition such as prevails in Germany against Jews, against all religions and property rights in Russia, against Catholics in Mexico, and numerous discriminations in other countries where dictatorship has superseded democracy.

To weaken this document by vesting supreme powers in any one person or group of individuals, no matter what the expediency, to enable that person or group to discriminate against any class of people for the so-called welfare of the majority would be establishing a precedent that in the years to come some racially or religiously intolerant President might abuse in other ways.

Why, in the last three years numerous measures which "could not happen" were forced through our legislative bodies by an autocratic party leader regardless of their undoubted unconstitutionality, only to be later declared invalid by the watch dogs of the constitution.

Now, if unlimited discretionary powers were given to the present incumbent of the White House, his intolerance of thrift may appear beneficial to those of us who have either lost all ambition or are too lame-brained to realize what it is all about. But what about a future President with his possible K. K. K. or Black legion type of intolerance?

OTTO H. TRIPPEL.

IMMATURE DRIVERS.

Chicago, May 27.—Much of our safety work is wasted upon young people under 20, who just do not seem to grasp the seriousness of the situation. There are, of course, other reckless groups in the older ages who believe exhortations to drive carefully are meant for the other fellow, but by far the greatest offenders are found in the 'teen ages. One suggestion made to curb this group deserves consideration, that is, the preventing of any one under the age of 20 from driving a motor vehicle which is equipped with a horn or is geared to a speed higher than thirty-five miles an hour, even though the youngster is accompanied by an older person.

The young people may consider such restrictions a hardship. On the other hand, if they will consider their own futures and the welfare of thousands of others, they will willingly make the sacrifice during their immature years and find some outlet for their pent up energies other than smart-aleck driving and promiscuous horn blowing.

H. W.

GARBAGE.

Chicago, May 27.—At the present time there is a WPA project which has to do with the extermination of rats here in Chicago, and a very worthy project it is. But how foolish to spend the taxpayers' money when people are allowed promiscuously to throw garbage in the alleys instead of containers as required by law.

ARNOLD S. HYLDAHL.

SIMILE.

Rockford, Ill., May 27.—A given brain truster, who seems ambitious to be another Rasputin, reminds the casual observer of Victor Hugo's devilfish. Every time it comes up for air some watchful court deals it a resounding whang on the beak, only to see it disappear in a cloud of ink.

LIGHT CIGARET BY STEAM FROM ELECTRIC BULB

Boiler Coil Surrounds Usual Filament.

[Copyright: 1936: By the Associated Press.]

Cleveland, May 31.—(AP)—A cigaret can be lighted in a jet of steam made by a new type of electric light bulb invented in the lamp development department of the Nela Park laboratory of the General Electric company in East Cleveland.

Details of the new development were made public today. The "steam" light is one result of a revolutionary change in structure of electric light bulbs made by a new art of welding metal to glass.

The steam bulb is about the size of a large house lamp. Set like a hood over its Tungsten filament is a copper coil.

Scientist Doubts Feat.

This coil develops a jet of steam the size of a lead pencil almost instantly after the light is switched on. The feat of lighting a cigaret by steam is so unusual that a famous physicist, visiting the laboratory a short time ago refused to believe it could be done until he saw it.

A piece of paper held in the jet curls up, smokes, and turns to black ash. The steam with this burning power has a temperature of 1,100 degrees Fahrenheit.

An exactly similar electric light steam generator already has been put to commercial use for instantaneous, automatic steam sterilization. It was developed to destroy pathogenic bacteria in places where instant sterilization could be used to protect public health. For this purpose a lower temperature steam is produced. It ranges from 660 to 750 degrees Fahrenheit, the usual heat of sterilizing steam.

Sealed at Both Ends.

The "steam engine" light bulb differs in looks from ordinary lamps mainly in having metal seals at both ends. The usual base holds the Tungsten filament and wires. At the opposite end is a hermetically sealed metal door. This holds firmly inside the lamp bulb a copper coil weighing from a quarter to a half pound. The coil is sixteen turns of three-sixteenth inch tubing.

The intake end and the output end of the coil both pass through the metal door. Water runs through the intake.

The Tungsten filament temperature is 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit. It is so hot that the copper coils have to be welded together with silver. Otherwise they would expand like an uncoiling spring. Leaving the coil dry for three or four seconds melts it into a shapeless mass.

YOUTH BELIEVED DROWNED; DRAG ILLINOIS RIVER

Holiday crowds at the Starved Rock state park yesterday watched searchers drag the Illinois river for the body of Tony Petronski, 25 years old, 7422 South Oakley avenue, former Chicago life guard, who is believed to have drowned there Saturday morning while swimming. A party of friends, with him on the holiday trip, thought at first that Petronski was hiding in the woods on the other side of the river because he was clad only in underwear shorts. But when he failed to return at nightfall they told George Malone, park superintendent, of his disappearance.

RADICAL PARLEY DECIDES AGAINST NEW THIRD PARTY

Delegates to a conference in the Morrison hotel of radical third party advocates decided yesterday after much wrangling against the immediate formation of such a party and to leave further developments of such a movement to the "discretionary power" of the Minnesota Farmer-Labor party which sponsored the conference. The delegates and visitors included Socialists, communists, and other radical groups. Their decision was against the advice of Congressman Vito Marcantonio [Rep., N. Y.] and Judge Edward Jeffries of Detroit. Another congressman in attendance was Ernest Lundeen of Minnesota, Farmer-Laborite. Earl Browder, general secretary of the communist party in America, promised to support a third party.

HOUSE SQUABBLE SEEN OVER BILLS FOR HONEST VOTE

Four Sets of Registration Laws Await Action.

BY STANLEY ARMSTRONG.

The Illinois house of representatives convenes at 10 a. m. tomorrow in Springfield and much bickering over controversial subjects was forecast yesterday by legislative leaders following a survey of the position of various bills on the calendar.

At the passage stage are four sets of permanent election registration bills, an amendment to the old age assistance law that was dictated by the federal social security board, and an appropriation for senate expenditures. On second reading is the anti-life saving time measure to which amendments are to be proposed.

G. O. P. Seeks Schnackenberg Bill.

Representative Elmer J. Schnackenberg [Rep., Chicago] and Gov. Horner have identical bills to establish permanent vote registration in Chicago and nine other election board cities. Supporters of the governor, a recent convert to the honest elections cause, are preparing to have the administration bills called first. Republicans are resentful of these tactics, feeling that inasmuch as they have for several years advocated such legislation the Horner forces should join them in passing the Schnackenberg bill.

Chicago Democrats propose in their measures to make permanent registration effective all over the state instead of merely in election board cities and find precedent for their wish in the 1933 bill which was passed by the house and killed in the senate. They may decide, however, to support the fourth set of bills which would put the honest ballot law in effect in all Illinois cities of more than 5,000 population.

Kelly Evinces Interest.

Co-authors of the latter set are Representatives F. W. Lewis of Robinson and Thomas P. Sinnett of Rock Island, two downstate Democrats whose advice often is heeded by the house membership. Mayor Kelly has shown interest in their bills, but whether he will urge Chicago Democrats to lend strength to the Lewis-Sinnett cause is not known.

Both Republicans and Democrats are numbered in the opposition to the federal security board's demand for the elimination of a five year county residence requirement for employés under the old age assistance act. Last week Republicans questioned the senate appropriation bill, claiming that the number of senate employés is excessive.

The time bill in the house would prohibit any city from adopting life saving time in the winter and allow it in the summer only after a referendum. This has beeen interpreted as nullifying the favorable expression of Chicago voters on this question in the past and as attempting to legislate for Chicago before the voters can again register their wishes in the referendum scheduled for November.

Two Amendments Proposed.

Benjamin S. Adamowski of Chicago, Democratic majority leader, has two amendments. One would restore to cities the right by action of its council to take advantage of the additional hour of summer daylight, and the other would permit any city by referendum vote to adopt any time it chooses as a permanent change.

The senate meets at 8 p. m. tomorrow. In its relief session there are bills to place all relief administration in Cook county in the hands of the county bureau of public welfare. Township supervisors are lobbying actively against these measures. Senator George A. Maypole [Dem., Chicago] has announced he will submit a bill for a relief bond issue of $30,000,000.

Permanent registration bills in the senate are on second reading, and attempts probably will be made to advance them. There is pending also the resolution of Senator James O. Monroe [Dem., Collinsville] asking for an investigation of whether the governor loaded the state payrolls before the primary election with between 25,000 and 50,000 political workers.

So SKINNY They Called Him "Raw Bone"

But Seedol Kelpamalt Did the Impossible—Added 11½ Lbs. Doctor Praises This Weight Building Discovery!

"Thanks to Kelpamalt because it has solved the impossible. I was called the "raw bone" of the family, for no matter what I did to gain weight proved worthless. As I recall now, I have taken seven different things to gain weight and almost gave it up. I even lost two pounds on the last one I tried.

Before I started to take Kelpamalt I asked my doctor about it and he praised it very highly. Well, I have just finished my fifth bottle (500 tablets) which lasted about ten weeks. When I started on Kelpamalt I weighed 131½ pounds, and now I weigh 143 lbs., a gain of 11½ lbs. I feel great and every one who knows me makes some good remark about me looking so good.

This letter is lengthy, but I couldn't express my thanks to Kelpamalt in fewer words. Yours very truly," Samuel J. Mitchell, 416 Elizabeth St., Delmar, Del.

Seedol Kelpamalt costs but a few cents a day to use and must get results or money back. Your own doctor will approve this way.

GEN. KILBOURNE, NEW SIXTH CORPS CHIEF, ARRIVES

Maj. Gen. Charles E. Kilbourne arrived in Chicago yesterday from San Antonio to command the Sixth Corps area here, succeeding Maj. Gen. Johnson Hagood, whose voluntary retirement was effective last night.

Gen. Kilbourne was appointed a lieutenant in 1898 after graduating from Virginia Military institute and he first served in the First Volunteer Signal corps in the Philippines. During the world war he served as chief of staf of the 89th division when it was commanded by Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, and he served in France as commander of the artillery brigade of the Second division.

Gen. Kilbourne won the Congressional Medal of Honor in the Philippines and during the world war he was awarded the American Distinguished Service Cross, the French Croixe de Guerre with palm, and the French Legion of Honor.

Gen. Kilbourne is the son of an army officer and his wife, who accompanied him here, is the daughter of Brig. Gen. Harry Clay Egbert, who survived his service in the civil war and was killed 33 years later in the Philippines in 1899. Gen. and Mrs. Kilbourne are at the Whitehall apartment hotel.

Trip and a Job

A new Cinderella is being sought by the National Volume Shoe Manufacturers' association, now holding a convention in the Hotel Sherman. The successful aspirant must have "poise, beauty and personality," and wear a 4-B shoe. The chance for a new Cinderella came when Miss May Moran of Boston announced that she will soon be married. She has held the title since 1932. The winner of the current competition will be rewarded with a trip to Boston and a job there as a model.

BRITISH PREPARE TO SCRAP NAVAL TREATY OF 1930

Tension in Mediterranean Given as Reason.

LONDON, May 31.—(AP)—Almost overlooked in the confusion of broken treaties following Italy's conquest of Ethiopia, another compact, of grave importance to the United States, is headed for the scrap heap.

It is the 1930 London naval treaty, now being shoved into the discard by British initiative before the ink is hardly dry on its as yet unratified successor, the 1936 London naval treaty.

Alarmed by Italian successes in East Africa and Anglo-Italian tension in the Mediterranean, the British government has asked the United States and Japan for permission to break limitation limits of the treaty without invoking the escape clause. Britain wants to avoid scrapping destroyers in excess of a total strength of 150,000 tons before Dec. 31, when the treaty expires.

Wants More Destroyers.

"We believe we have a clear case for increasing the destroyer tonnage allocated to us under the treaty, and we are already in negotiation on this subject with the foreign governments concerned [United States and Japan]," Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin told the house of commons.

Such action, under the treaty likewise frees the United States and Japan from treaty limitations on destroyers and, diplomatic quarters here fear, may provide the starting gun for the long-feared naval race which the powers have attempted to prevent since launching naval limitation in the Washington naval treaty of 1922.

The escalator or escape clause of the 1930 treaty can be invoked by any power believing its position and requirements of national security to be materially affected by new construction of a non-signatory power.

Permission Not Necessary.

Permission is not even necessary to take the escape action. The government making the decision simply has to advise the other parties to the treaty of its decision, the reason thereof, and the proposed increases.

The other signatories thereupon are entitled to make a proportionate increase in the category or categories specified.

All restrictions on the number or total tonnage of all types of warships automatically expires on Dec. 31, when the Washington and London treaties both lapse.

Thereafter every nation can build as many ships of whatever type and tonnage they please, subject only to certain tonnage restrictions contained in the 1936 naval treaty, of which only France, the United States, and Britain were signatories.

A brewery strike was settled when sixteen of thirty-eight alleged Fascists were discharged from the El Aguila brewery. All breweries are expected to resume operations day after tomorrow.

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—Police throughout the nation have been searching for twenty-seven days for William Webster Theile, 15 years old, son of William Theile, financier and a direct descendant of Daniel Webster, it was learned today.

The father, who has had private detectives and city police on the hunt, believes the boy, who is tall for his age, artfully planned his disappearance and thinks he is either on an adventure quest or determined to make his own way in the world.

On the morning of May 3 young William left the Theile estate on Shadow island, Mamaroneck, in the family car with the family chauffeur at the wheel. He carried a tennis racket and a paper bag in which he may have had a change of clothes.

He had told his father he was going to keep a tennis engagement with Jack Lemosine, a chum who lives on Boston Post road near the Pelham Country club and that he would pick Jack up on the way to the club. It developed later that the chum was at Hackley school in Tarrytown on May 3.

GRAND PORTAGE TRADING POST MAY BE REBUILT

Grand Portage, Minn., May 31.—(AP)—The site of the Grand Portage trading post, which more than 100 years ago was the fur trading center of the northwest and Canada, may be perpetuated as a symbol of America's history under a plan devised by national park officials.

The project would be part of the broad plan to select from 2,000 historical areas now under consideration sufficient national monuments among the existing frontier cabins, magnolia-shaded plantation homes of the deep south, and wharves from which sailed clipper ships to the China seas, to typify the five chief periods of history.

At Grand Portage, the ancient wharf or "quay" is still to be seen. Sunk to the level of the lake bed, it is in as perfect alignment as it was in the days of the fur trade.

BRITISH CABINET SHAKEUP LOOMS ON BUDGET 'LEAK'

Prime Minister Baldwin Under Fire.

LONDON, May 31.—(AP)—Great Britain's biggest political scandal in years, allegations that budget secrets escaped in April from the "little black bag," revived rumors today of a cabinet shakeup.

These were heard as Prime Minister Stanley Baldwin studied the report of a parliamentary tribunal's ten day investigation into an alleged leak, to be made public Tuesday.

Gladstone's famous "little black bag" is the traditional means of transporting the budget from the chancellor of the exchequer's office to the house of commons.

Thomas Paves Way.

Already harassed by opposition leaders in full cry for his resignation and by open revolt within his own party, Baldwin faces the task of deciding any line of action to be taken as an upshot of the British "affaire Stavisky."

The resignation of J. H. Thomas, colonial secretary, chief target of fire in the investigation, seemingly has paved the way for a drastic cabinet shakeup, which has long been demanded by the opposition.

It would certainly give Maj. Clement Attlee, fiery little leader of his majesty's opposition in parliament, a battle cry for demanding a general election in the immediate future. But until the tribunal's findings are published the political cauldron can only seethe.

Put in "White Paper."

The report will be published Tuesday in the form of an official government white paper, and Sir John Simon, the home secretary, will present it to parliament.

Set up by a special resolution of both houses of parliament, the tribunal was empowered to call evidence on oath, to order production of private documents and papers, and to impose penalties for disobedience.

Beyond that, however, its scope was limited, and any infringement the tribunal may have discovered on the part of any of the witnesses summoned before it will have to be dealt with through civil courts.

HUNT FALSE ALARM SENDER

Police seek the "idiot" who turned in a false alarm Saturday which caused the collision of a fire truck with the automobile of Acting Fire Chief T. J. Cannaven. A fireman was killed and the chief and another fireman were hurt. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

HUNT 'IDIOT' WHO TURNED IN FATAL FAKE FIRE CALL

Stanton avenue police yesterday were hunting the person who turned in a false alarm of fire Saturday night which resulted in the death of one fireman and injuries to two others in a collision of fire apparatus. "We hope to make an example of the idiot who caused the tragedy," said Deputy Fire Marshal Anthony J. Mullaney.

The fireman killed was Hodd Bond, colored, 38 years old, 6014 Indiana avenue, driver of pressure wagon No. 8. Acting Chief Thomas J. Cannaven, 48 years old, of the 10th battalion, and Fireman John O'Hare, driver of Cannaven's car, were injured. Cannaven was in Chicago Memorial hospital yesterday suffering from a skull fracture, a broken left arm, and internal injuries. O'Hare was in Mercy hospital with a broken right arm and internal injuries.

The false alarm was turned in from 3827 Ellis avenue, and Chief Cannaven's car and the pressure wagon collided at 35th street and Cottage Grove avenue.

W. BUTTERWORTH DIES; CHAIRMAN OF DEERE & CO.

Suffers Heart Attack in New Jersey.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Atlantic City, N. J., May 31.—[Special.]—William Butterworth, chairman of the board of Deere & Co. of Moline, Ill., manufacturers of farm machinery, and former president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, died today of a heart attack while watching a golf match at the Seaview Golf club at Absecon, near here. He was 71 years old.

With Mr. Butterworth were Silas Strawn, prominent Chicago attorney and a former president of the national commerce body, and other friends who had attended a meeting of the national industrial conference board at New York last Thursday. Mr. Butterworth was a member of the board.

Born in Ohio.

He was born Dec. 18, 1864, at Maineville, O., a small town near Cincinnati, where he still owned 150 acres of his father's original farm. His early education was received in the public school at Mount Auburn, O., and at Washington, Ia., where the family later moved.

In 1889 he was graduated from Lehigh university after starring as a football player, baseball pitcher, and performing with the dramatic and glee clubs. That same year he went to Paris with the United States commission in charge of this country's exhibit at the exposition there.

Returning to Washington he served as a private secretary to the commissioner of patents, studying law at night, until 1892, when he was admitted to the Illinois bar. A few months later he married Katherine Mary Deere, daughter of Charles H. Deere, and granddaughter of John Deere, founder of the Moline Plow company.

Named President in 1907.

He went to work immediately for his father-in-law's company as an assistant buyer. On the death of Charles Deere in 1907 Mr. Butterworth was elected president. He retained this position until 1928, when he became chairman of the board.

As head of one of the largest manufacturers of farming equipment in the world Mr. Butterworth became a director of the United States Chamber of Commerce in 1914.

Mr. Butterworth also served as president of the Illinois Manufacturers' association from 1917 to 1920. He was a director of the Moline National bank, the United Light and Power company, and the Illinois Bell Telephone company.

Services to Be Wednesday.

His other memberships included the American and Illinois Historical associations, American Statistical association, the Sons of the American Revolution, the Psi Upsilon fraternity, the Chicago, University, and Saddle and Cycle clubs in Chicago, the Metropolitan, Racquet, and Burning Tree Golf clubs in Washington, and the India House in New York.

Mr. Butterworth is survived by a brother, Dr. Frank Butterworth of New Haven, Conn., and a sister, Mrs. Mary B. Hazeltown of Washington, D. C., in addition to his widow.

Mr. Strawn left tonight with the body. Funeral services will be held on Wednesday afternoon at the First Congregational church in Moline. The directors of the United States Chamber of Commerce will be present.

VENEREAL DISEASES

attack more people and wreck more lives than any other serious ailment!

Because a venereal disease can be contracted innocently, and exist without your knowledge, it's wise to undergo a medical examination!

MOST men and women are inclined to think of pneumonia, cancer, tuberculosis, typhoid, and heart and kidney diseases as the principal causes of disability and premature death among adults.

Yet each year syphilis and gonorrhea attack 1,555,000 Americans—60% more than pneumonia, and 14% more than cancer, tuberculosis, typhoid, and heart and kidney diseases combined!

Thus venereal infections are by far the most common of all the serious disorders that afflict the human race. And, unless promptly and properly treated, they almost invariably result in disabling or life-shortening consequences.

For instance, neglected syphilis may easily lead to heart disease, blindness, deafness, apoplexy, locomotor ataxia, paralysis or even insanity! And neglected gonorrhea may be the cause of a sight-destroying eye infection, sterility, crippling rheumatism, or prostate, bladder and other troubles.

Because a venereal disease can be contracted innocently, and exist without one's knowledge, every man and woman should determine to submit to a protective medical examination. Unless this is done, an unsuspected infection may progress to the point that a cure will be extremely difficult if not impossible.

Better to know than guess!

It's far, far better to know the facts than to guess about your condition. For when a venereal infection is discovered in time, treatment can be started that will either cure the disease or arrest the development of dangerous complications.

So don't delay, but get a thorough physical and blood examination from your family doctor or the Public Health Institute at once! Either can be depended on to give you an honest opinion; in fact, an investigating committee of prominent physicians said of the Institute: "Striking evidence of a desire to serve the patient . . . is the large number classified as No Disease Found."

The friendly, sympathetic men and women physicians of the Public Health Institute specialize in the examination and treatment of venereal infections. To date they have given more than 4,000,000 treatments to almost 250,000 individuals—a record to inspire the utmost confidence in their experience! Each patient is promptly attended in a private room, and for the sake of even greater privacy is known by number instead of by name.

Treatments as low as $1.00

Organized by public-spirited citizens as a corporation "NOT-FOR-PROFIT" under the laws of the State of Illinois, the Public Health Institute offers low cost venereal disease treatment to those unable to pay higher fees. A complete examination for gonorrhea and syphilis, including urinalysis and Wassermann blood test, costs only $3.00, while some treatments for syphilis cost as little as $1.00 and some of those for gonorrhea still less!

Hence it's the height of folly not to make sure you haven't a venereal infection to rob you of your health and cut years from your normal span of life. For not only can dependable medical attention be obtained confidentially at nominal cost, but even persons temporarily pressed for funds can arrange to be treated.

NOTE: The Public Health Institute has no connection with any other Chicago health or medical institute, and should not be confused with those operated for personal gain!

Two Buds to Be Introduced at Ball on Dec. 21

Marjorie Moore and Julia Patterson to Bow.

BY JUDITH CASS.

NEXT Dec. 21 will not be a blue Monday for the debutantes and their beaux and some of the young married crowd, for on that evening, probably at the Blackstone, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Wills will give a ball to introduce to society their daughter and niece, Miss Julia Patterson and Miss Marjorie Moore, who will be among the coming season's attractive debutantes. The supper-dance, as most balls are called nowadays, will be one of the gayest of the season, and very likely Miss Moore's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Ruthven Moore, who live in Hinsdale, will have an active part in arranging the party. Miss Patterson has a brother, Jere Patterson, who is a student at Princeton.

Miss Patterson and Miss Moore are arriving in New York Thursday on the Vulcania after a winter at the Casa Alta school in Florence, Italy. They will spend the summer partly in Chicago and partly visiting about the country, but they plan to be at home all next winter.

Winnetka to Have Full Quota of Buds.

At this early date it seems that Mrs. Wills' daughter and niece will be almost Evanston's only debutantes this season. Indications are, however, that Winnetka will have its full quota of buds. Mrs. Charles L. Trumbull and Dr. and Mrs. William P. Finney are making plans for presenting their daughters, Miss Mary Trumbull and Miss Theodora Finney.

Mrs. Trumbull, Miss Mary, and her elder sister, Miss Lucy Trumbull, have been spending the winter in California, but they are in Evanston now, stopping at the Homestead, until they leave June 15 for their summer home near Traverse City, Mich. When they return in the fall they will occupy their own home in Winnetka, which is rented now, and Mrs. Trumbull plans to have a tea there for the debutante at Christmas time. Miss Trumbull attended the North Shore Country Day school.

Miss Finney arrived at home yesterday from Vassar, where she has completed her freshman year. Before attending college she was graduated from Rosemary hall. Although Dr. and Mrs. Finney and their daughter are native Winnetkans, it is likely that Miss Finney's formal presentation to society will take place in Lake Geneva, Wis., where her parents have a lovely home. Such a party would add considerably to Lake Geneva's summer-end gayety and also would provide a pleasant afternoon in the country for the townsfolk invited.

Caroline Montgomery to Be a Debutante.

The Frederick D. Montgomerys and their sons, F. Dorsey Jr. and James R. Montgomery, and their wives, are looking forward with pleasure to having a debutante in the family this year — Miss Caroline Montgomery. Miss Montgomery, who was graduated from the Mary C. Wheeler school at Providence, R. I., last year, attended Wellesley this year. She will not spend much time in Chicago this summer for she is going directly from college to join her mother at Ogunquit, Me., where the Montgomerys have a summer home. Mr. Montgomery is leaving June 15 to spend the rest of the summer in Maine with his wife and the debutante.

Mr. and Mrs. Dorsey Montgomery have just returned from a trip east. Mrs. James Montgomery is spending most of her days out in Barrington, making ready their new farm for occupancy this summer after school is out.

Mr. and Mrs. Bryan S. Reid have not been able to decide whether they will bring out their second daughter, Miss Margot Reid, this fall, or wait another year, since she is quite young. Miss Reid has arrived at home from Miss Nixon's school in Florence and now is about to undergo an operation on her knee. Her younger sister, Joan, also will have a knee operated upon, and when both have recovered the Reids will move out to their Lake Forest house to be there until August, when they will go to Martha's Vineyard for a month.

The Reids' eldest daughter, Mary Elizabeth, gave up a debut in favor of a wedding last season, for she became the bride of Ralph F. Chatillon early in January.

European travel seems brisker than ever this summer. Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Little of Evanston have decided to take their family to Ger-

Debutante of Next Season

Miss Theodora Finney, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. William P. Finney of Winnetka and Lake Geneva, is to be a debutante of the coming season. She just has completed her freshman year at Vassar. Her debut probably will take place at Lake Geneva.

Front Views and Profiles
By June Provines

A PUBLIC spirited citizen is offering to Chicago a large memorial statue of Alexander Hamilton, to be placed, according to the idea of the donor, at the southern entrance to Lincoln park at Lake Shore drive. In the plan designed as a setting for the statue by Eliel Saarinen, famous Finnish architect, there are a series of terraces and four classic pillars, with the statue resting on a pedestal under a gold dome, the whole to be illumined by flood lighting. The donor's idea is that the trafic should divide at the statue.

Statue—
Diets—
Alliteration—Competition—
Sign.

If, after meetings with proper authorities, a site is not agreed upon, the monument probably will be offered to another city, possibly Washington. We have not ascertained whether the statue is in marble or bronze, but we hope, personally, that the statue remains in Chicago, in spite of having just finished reading "Oscar Wilde Discovers America," in which the esthete made that remark about looking around at the figures which adorn our parks, seeing the frock coat of the drawing room done in bronze, or the double waistcoat perpetuated in marble, adding a new horror to death.

THE various diet experts being slavishly followed by enthusiasts today had a forerunner in Dr. Henry S. Tanner, whose forty day fast astounded the New Yorkers of 1882. The same book recounts Dr. Tanner's dietary experiments upon his wife, and her suit for divorce:

"He had made a bet with friends that he could prove his theory that carrots made people sly, turnips made them amiable, and French beans made them irritable. Each day he made Mrs. Turner eat three pounds of French beans, and when, one morning, she had thrown a jug at his head, he had dashed off gleefully to collect his bet. Then he had come home and put her on a turnip diet to restore her temper. But before the turnips could take hold she had her divorce and was gone."

A WOMAN wearing less handsome clothes than usual spoke of them as "depression duds." Her alliteration brought to mind the answer made by a prominent Minneapolis woman who, appearing last winter in a new fur coat, caused a friend to remark, "My, you look as if you were wearing the sables of sin." To which she replied, "No, merely the minks of matrimony."

THE letter was unsigned, and no check has been made, but a bulletineer reports that the principal of the Abraham Lincoln High school at Council Bluffs, Ia., fearful that movie bank night might prove too great a competition, advanced the date of commencement from Friday, June 5, to Wednesday, June 3.

AS a variant from the familiar "Drive In Eggs" frequently seen on the roadside, there is the sign a Wisconsin visitor noted last week-end, "Night Crawlers Ring Bell."

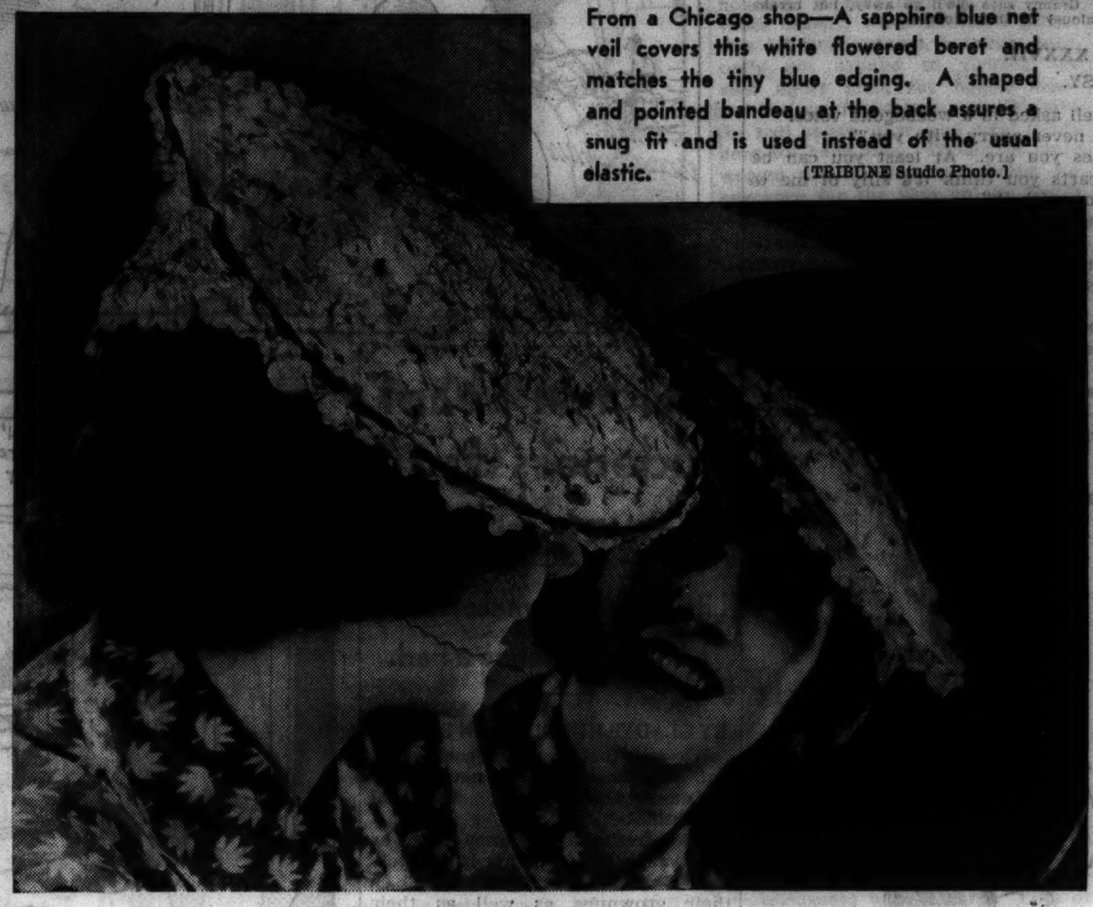
Beret of Tiny White Flowers

From a Chicago shop—A sapphire blue net veil covers this white flowered beret and matches the tiny blue edging. A shaped and pointed bandeau at the back assures a snug fit and is used instead of the usual elastic. [TRIBUNE Studio Photo.]



New Sports Dresses Built for Action as Well as to Decorate the Wearer

BY RHEA SEEGER.

The clothes you find in a shop that specializes in authentic sport clothes always are marked with authoritative details. Golf dresses have sleeves that are so cleverly inset that you can wigwag your arms in the wildest circles and not pull the seams or feel uncomfortable. Tennis outfits, especially sleeveless dresses, are made with tricky back sections that allow for all the freedom and action you can yell for.

Even fishing regalia is designed to the last small but important detail. And swimming or beach clothes will turn the most settled housebound into a beach lizard in record time.

To those who are planning a summer devoted largely to boating the clothes for this grand sort of living are a most enticing collection. You'll like the knitted two piece navy blue suit so well that you'll buy it, and buy the boat afterward just to be able to wear the suit. It's a honey, a good looking duet of slacks and double-breasted jacket of a jacquard weave simulated knit. It's warm without being bulky, and with it you wear the gawdiest striped sweaters or the boldest plaid cotton crash shirts they show you. Take your choice or buy both sweater and shirt. You'll never be sorry.

The sneakers are the best finds of a shop career—navy blue denim affairs with buckskin soles and decorative instep strap. The headgear is optional, either a knitted visor cap with most of the top missing, or one of the funny fish net turban creations flippantly trimmed with two bobbing corks, which stunt is the last word in appropriate accessories.

Ask to see the oil silk suits while you're doing this shop, the slacks and coat get-together of supple transparent oil silk in white, amber, blue, and yellow. The jacket coat keeps you waterproof and when the thing is zipped into position there is a hood to pull up over the hair. It's the big time slicker for rainy or rough sailing, waterproof protection in the grand manner.

Fashion photograph. . . . Tiny white flowers are used to make this summer beret for street or dinner clothes. It fits securely on the head with a pointed back bandeau, and dips or slants alluringly well down over the right eyeline. Fragile sapphire blue lace covers the entire hat and hangs down over the edge of the beret. The edging of the beret matches the blue of the veil. Designed by Lily Dache and available in a Chicago shop.

Good Morning!

Meredith Nicholson's "best seller," written a good many years ago, resolves itself into a mediocre screen spy drama that is "dated" despite strenuous efforts to give it a modern air.

The "House of a Thousand Candles" is a fashionable gambling rendezvous and hotel that serves as blind for the nefarious activities of Anton Sebastian, the owner, who heads an international spy ring.

Sebastian has an ingenious way of issuing orders to the myriads he commands.

Each night he is featured on a radio program and his suave and apparently innocent broadcasts are alive with code messages that are full of meaning to the initiated.

One Sir Andrew McIntyre has a note that must be delivered to Geneva. He realizes the danger and futility of using ordinary means of communication. So—to the man he believes will be watched he gives a decoy note, while to his nephew, Tony Carleton, he confides his real plans.

Tony is to take his girl to the theater. The envelope containing the tickets he receives at the box office will contain the coded message. He is to leave the theater, change clothes in a cab—and so—to Geneva.

All of which is far from being as simple as it sounds. Tony is followed by a beauteous danseuse—spy for Sebastian—and also by his sweetheart who is burned up over being deserted at the theater. Considerable old fashioned melodrama ensues.

I can't grow enthusiastic over "The House of a Thousand Candles" but here's hoping you like it.

Her Husband's Past

By Elizabeth York Miller

SYNOPSIS.

Nell Martin elopes to London with Eric Cameron, an older divorced man, who had been visiting in Wellsport, her home town, ignoring her parents' pleas to marry Dick Holmes, her childhood sweetheart. Eric has two children, Meg, 17, and Robin, 15. Mrs. Beaumont, the mother of Hilda, his first wife, lives with them. Hilda has married again. Granny tortures Nell with constant reminders of Hilda. The family move to Wellsport where Eric has obtained a job. A solicitor's clerk, Skynner, calls and tells Nell that Hilda's husband has died and left her in London destitute. Nell arranges to send her a weekly sum secretly. Meg receives a string of pearls from her mother from London. Eric suggests looking up Hilda. Nell threatens to leave him. Granny says she'll go away, but breaks her leg and has to stay. She arouses Eric to jealousy of Dick Holmes.

INSTALMENT XXXVII.

JEALOUSY.

"And you're not angry with me?" Nell asked in a woebegone voice.

"Haven't I told you before that I'm never angry with you?"

"Yes, you've told me—but sometimes you are. At least you can be annoyed with me. In your heart of hearts you think it's silly of me to feel the way I do about Hilda. I bore you with it."

He smiled faintly, a tender quizzical expression in his eyes. It was the "glamorous look," the half teasing look that always drew her heart-strings. No matter how far away she might try to withdraw herself from Eric; no matter how ruffled and upset she might be, he could always get her back with that look. She shivered to think what life would be like if he were not so invariably kind and understanding. He could have hurt her so much, and she would still have had to go on bearing it because she loved him so much.

She let him lead her to the big chair by the window, and he sat on the arm.

He said: "Couldn't we lay the bogey of Hilda once and for all? Wouldn't it be possible?"

"O, I try and try!" she exclaimed.

"But couldn't we calmly accept the fact that once she was my wife but doesn't exist any more in that sense? Need it cause you such pain and humiliation whenever her name happens to crop up?"

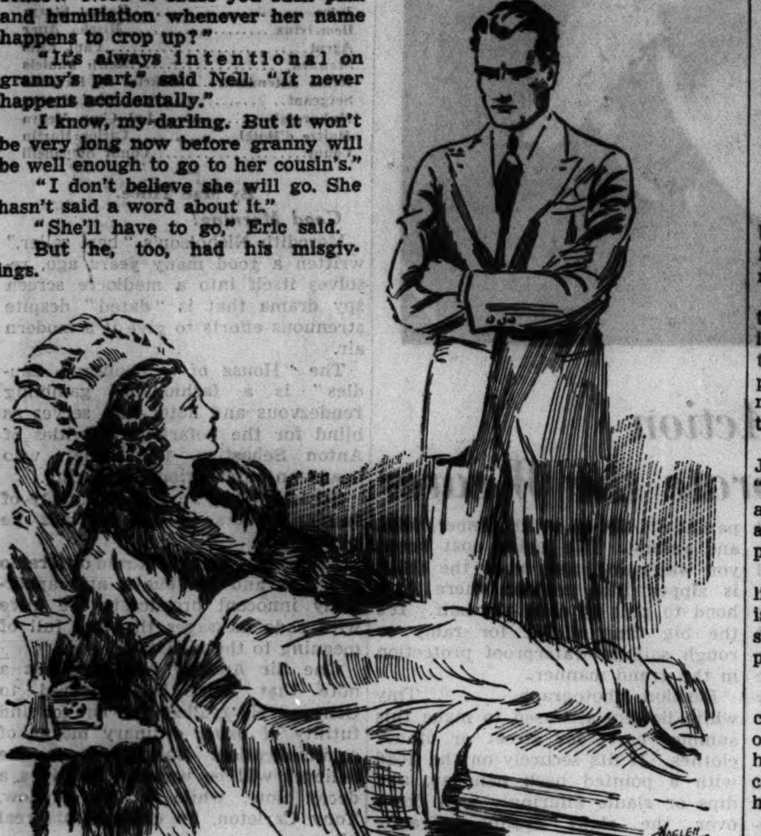
"I know, my darling. But it won't be very long now before granny will be well enough to go to her cousin's."

"I don't believe she will go. She hasn't said a word about it."

"She'll have to go," Eric said.

But he, too, had his misgivings.



"Please remember you're a married woman!"

Considering her age and the nature of her accident, the old woman had made a rapid recovery. She could have dispensed now with the crutches, had she wanted to do so, and gone back to her walking stick. That she still clung to the crutches was a token of her determination not to be budged out of Wellsport.

Nell wanted to say that even if they managed to get rid of granny, there would still be Meg, whose very silence on the subject was a constant reminder of Hilda. Meg, flashing her diamond and ruby ring and adorning herself with her mother's pearls; Meg, so quietly but consistently letting Eric know that she felt he had played a low-down trick getting married again without asking anybody's permission; Meg, whose warmest smile had a kind of frosty look and who made it so plain that she preferred solitude to the company of her father and young stepmother.

Eric trusted his wife and he knew how dearly she loved him, but he no less than Nell had his private bogey.

If granny tormented Nell by reminders of Hilda, she was no less active in letting Eric know that this wife's old admirer was still hovering in the background.

Over and over again Eric told himself that he was several kinds of a fool to pay any attention to those sly little digs of granny's.

What if Dick Holmes had been seen on several occasions loitering about the house? What if he did whistle in feeble imitation of some bird that never was on land or sea?

Granny became more outspoken and said: "The whole town's talking."

"You mean your friend, Mabel Weston," Eric replied. "Isn't she a little soured because young Holmes hasn't singled her out for attention?"

"He would have—" was granny's retort, "if somebody—I—won't—mention didn't keep her hooks on him."

Eric pretended indifference, but these shafts always irritated him.

In the present circumstances it was simply idiotic to try to imagine Nell was carrying on even a semi-flirtatious intrigue with Dick Holmes. Yet she had a queer way of smiling when sometimes jealousy got the better of Eric's common sense and he referred to granny's innuendos.

"So you don't like Dick a little bit, do you, darling?" Nell would say.

"I detest the fellow."

"What have you got against him, actually?"

"He wanted to marry you."

"Then he's the aggrieved party—not you, my love."

"He still wants to marry you."

Nell gave a trilling laugh.

"He can't, can he?"

"All the same, Nell—what does he hang around here for?"

"I don't know that he does. But why don't you ask him?"

"My sweet, please remember you're a married woman."

"You're telling me!"

All very well. "If only she wouldn't be so frivolous and light hearted about it." That was exactly the way Hilda had behaved when he used to protest about her admirers. Hilda had worsted him with her laughter. Until he met and married Nell, Eric had never quite got the mockery of Hilda's laughter out of his ears.

For some reason or other, jealousy, however unwarranted, can always find something to feed on. Eric got a full overdose one night about two weeks later. It was an experience he was never to forget until his dying day, and in the denouement gave him the biggest shock of his life.

They had four tickets for a concert that night. It was to be held in the assembly rooms at the Wellsport hotel.

The question arose as to who was to be the odd one out. Every one had thought it would be granny, but she came down to supper all got up to the nines and told Robin to telephone for a taxi, as she wouldn't be able to walk so far.

Nell said promptly—a little too promptly in Eric's opinion—that she would prefer to stay home.

Meg said nothing, looking from one to another of the family group to let them decide it as they pleased.

Meg had bought the tickets herself. There was a cellist in the program and she knew her father was fond of that instrument. It had touched Eric considerably to be paid this kindly attention by his cold young daughter.

Robin did not offer to stay at home. He didn't care an awful lot about the concert, but there were going to be refreshments afterward and he was very fond of ice cream.

"I don't like the idea of leaving you alone in the house," Eric said to his wife. "I shall stay home."

"Must you?" Meg murmured.

The tone of her voice told him that she was disappointed.

A little belatedly she offered herself for the sacrifice but Eric said no, he would be the one to stay at home.

"La, why don't we get another ticket?" asked granny.

"There aren't any more," said Meg. "Mabel told me they were the last when I bought them."

The taxi arrived and off they went.

GASOLINE ALLEY—THAT MAKES IT UNANIMOUS

WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Animal Instinct

Children Learn Rudeness from Young Friends

Little Troublemaker Can Make Impudence a Fad.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

We say that good is contagious, but sometimes I think naughtiness is more so—at least, superficial naughtiness.

Take freshness, or impudence, or the "yah yah" habit that is so catching. Children will "try it out" on their grownups as well as their playmates. And to a mother who really doesn't snap or scold, it's particularly obnoxious.

"We don't talk that way to Jimmy," one mother will say. Or, "I don't know where Aline gets such a manner and such expressions," another mother will remark in surprise and annoyance.

Usually, all she needs to do is to listen in when her Jimmy or Aline is playing with other children, and she'll discover from where these pert or impudent ways come.

One child will frequently be the cause of it all. I've seen a group of children of from four to six play happily together for weeks, and then change because a little troublemaker has joined them.

Perhaps what I call the "yah yah" atmosphere will develop.

"You can't do thi-is—you can't do thi-is!" a child will exclaim in a sing song voice or, "I'm going to keep this corner of the sandpile for my very own. Nobody can come near it," or, "This is mine—see! I've got the pail. This isn't yours; it's mine."

Or, "You're a dumbbell—you're a silly—you're a cry baby," etc., will begin to be answered by "I am not! I'm a big boy. Your're a dummy yourself," perhaps followed by slaps and tears.

Some of this usually will be carried over into the family, or among other adults. A woman was met the other morning by a small friend, with this greeting, "Hello, Mrs. Dummy-Silly!" In her astonishment she didn't answer, or even look hurt, which was the best thing that probably could have happened. The next day the small boy said as usual, "Hello Mrs. Banks! Can I go walking with you?"

Happily, these are passing phases. But we can do something about them. We can step in with a word or a suggestion when the children are playing and one child upsets things. We should do some ignoring, but also, if necessary, tell our small boy or girl that people who are fond of each other don't talk like that.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—The British ambassador and Lady Lindsay are in New York for the week-end to be present at the docking of the Queen Mary tomorrow.

Applique Quilt Suggests Laundry Duties of Monday

Patterns of this design are 5 cents, stamps or coin. Address Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, or call at one of the Tribune Public Service offices: One South Dearborn street or Tribune Tower.

Monday's Block.

BY NANCY CABOT.

"Monday's Block" is an applique pattern first made about 45 years ago. It was set together with other applique designs indicating the activities of the week. The laundry tree expresses in an unusual fashion the duties of every Monday. A combination of printed and plain materials may be used, and many of the pieces in the scrap bag may be utilized, since all "Monday's Blocks" need not necessarily be alike. For an entire coverlet 32 applique and 31 plain blocks are required.

"Parties for the Bride-to-Be," a booklet of menus and accompanying recipes for announcement parties and showers for the bride-to-be, is on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 3 cents. By mail, 5 cents. Address mail requests to Mary Meade, the Chicago Tribune.

BY MARY MEADE.

The well-thought-of summer hostess, if you'd believe the impassioned comments of veteran week-enders, is a stickler on one point of hot weather hospitality. However casually her guests may be housed and fed, their iced beverages, especially tea and coffee, are prepared and served with the most exacting solicitude.

Good iced tea, fragrant and amber clear, and delicate and good iced coffee, equally sparkling and fine in flavor, aren't just happy accidents. They're brewed tenderly, iced at the proper time and in the proper way—and served often!

So today it's a review of these few all-important directions for the making of really successful iced tea and coffee.

ICED TEA.

Pour a little boiling water into a porcelain, earthenware, china, or glass teapot to preheat it. Pour this out and drop in the measured tea leaves. [One to two teaspoons per glass, according to your individual preference. Tea which is to be diluted by icing is made somewhat stronger than regular hot tea.]

Over the leaves pour freshly boiling water. Water too long boiled in the tea kettle has a flat flavor, due to the loss of gases. Cover the pot and let the tea steep for 3 to 5 minutes. The extra quantity of tea, not long steeping or boiling, adds the necessary strength to the iced beverage.

Strain the tea immediately after steeping, since standing impairs the fresh, delicate flavor. Let the hot tea stand a few minutes to settle the tiny grounds, and pour over chipped ice. Serve as soon as the tea is well chilled.

If your ice supply isn't too bountiful or dependable, you always can chill the hot tea in the refrigerator before serving it, rather than pouring it directly over the cracked ice. Some people hold that this lessens the delicate flavor.

ICED COFFEE.

Whether you prefer to make your coffee by boiling, by the drip or vacuum method, or with a percolator, remember these three pointers: Have the coffee pot absolutely clean and free from sediment; measure the coffee and waterd accurately, and avoid over-long cooking by any method.

Then proceed by either of these two accepted methods. By the first method brew your coffee double strength, using twice as much coffee, not twice as long cooking. Then pour it, while hot, over cracked ice.

The second method is this: Make the coffee only 1½ times as strong as usual. Cool it in a covered jar, and then serve it with just enough ice to add the right chill and tinkle. The first method generally is conceded to make a beverage of better flavor and aroma, but the second requires less ice and the coffee may be made in advance of serving time.

Should Sister Tell Brother of His Wife's Dates with a Rival?

BY DORIS BLAKE.

If you knew your brother's wife met another man surreptitiously for some time, what would your action be? Would you acquaint your brother with the fact or would you maintain silence?

The above poser has been presented to me in my mail.

Twice a certain man's sister has been on the verge of telling him what his wife is doing, and twice the words froze on her lips because of the man's implicit faith in his wife. He loves the woman madly. The sister fears the bad news will drive her brother to suicide. He works like a dog, his sister tells, to give his wife everything she wants. It isn't a case of antagonism toward an in-law, the sister wants us to understand. Until the wife began running around with this man, she was extremely fond of her in-law.

Would it be better to go to the sister-in-law and acquaint her with the fact that you knew what was going on and, unless she abandoned the outsider's companionship, you'd have to report to your brother?

Or, perhaps, without using a threat, you might be able to make the woman see what an idiot she is making of herself?

The thing may have progressed too far now for interference to be of any use, in which case the sooner the husband knew of it the better. But it may be one of those "vanity boosters" in which some women seem to think they must indulge for no good reason.

HAROLD TEEN—TRYING TIMES

According to CULBERTSON

MINIMUM SUIT TAKE-OUT.

When your partner bids one no trump and you hold a biddable five card suit, but only one-half to one honor trick in your hand, bid the suit.

But you must be careful not to bid only two of a suit if you are strong enough to raise the no trump or jump to game in your suit.

When you have a six card or longer suit, or two five card suits, you should take out your partner's no trump bid even if you have no honor trick at all. Now, if your partner bids two no trump, you can show that you have a weak hand by rebidding your suit, and your partner will pass because this bid is a sign-off.

If you have less than one-half honor trick, and no six card suit or two suiter, you usually should pass.

A Vital Asking Bid.

It has long been realized that aces are not the only honors to be located in safe slam bidding. Kings, too, even queens, often are the strategic cards that make or break a slam contract.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	Pass	1 spade	Pass
4 dimds.	Pass	5 spades	Pass
6 spades [final bid]

The moment that North responded with one spade to South's opening club bid, South became "slam minded." But, at the same time, he realized the need for sound investigation into the weakness of his own hand: the diamond suit, with the ace and king missing. Moreover, even if North held one of these vital cards, it also was necessary to determine whether he held the spade ace. There was a distinct possibility that North's response had been based on a holding such as ♠ Q J 9 8 3 ♥ K Q 8 ♦ K 5 4 ♣ 3 2, certainly an excellent spade response, but not slam material in conjunction with South's hand.

Hence, South adopted the simple expedient of finding out by means of his four diamond asking bid. It should be noted that, had North actually held a hand such as the one just given as a possibility, he would have had to sign off with four spades, which South would not have disturbed.

As it was, however, holding second round diamond control and the ace of spades, North was able to make the conventional response of a jump in his own suit to show these precise values. South's six bid then followed as a matter of course.

Obviously, the hand was a lay-down for six-odd, one of North's losing hearts being discarded on the good diamond in South's hand, and the other heart being ruffed.

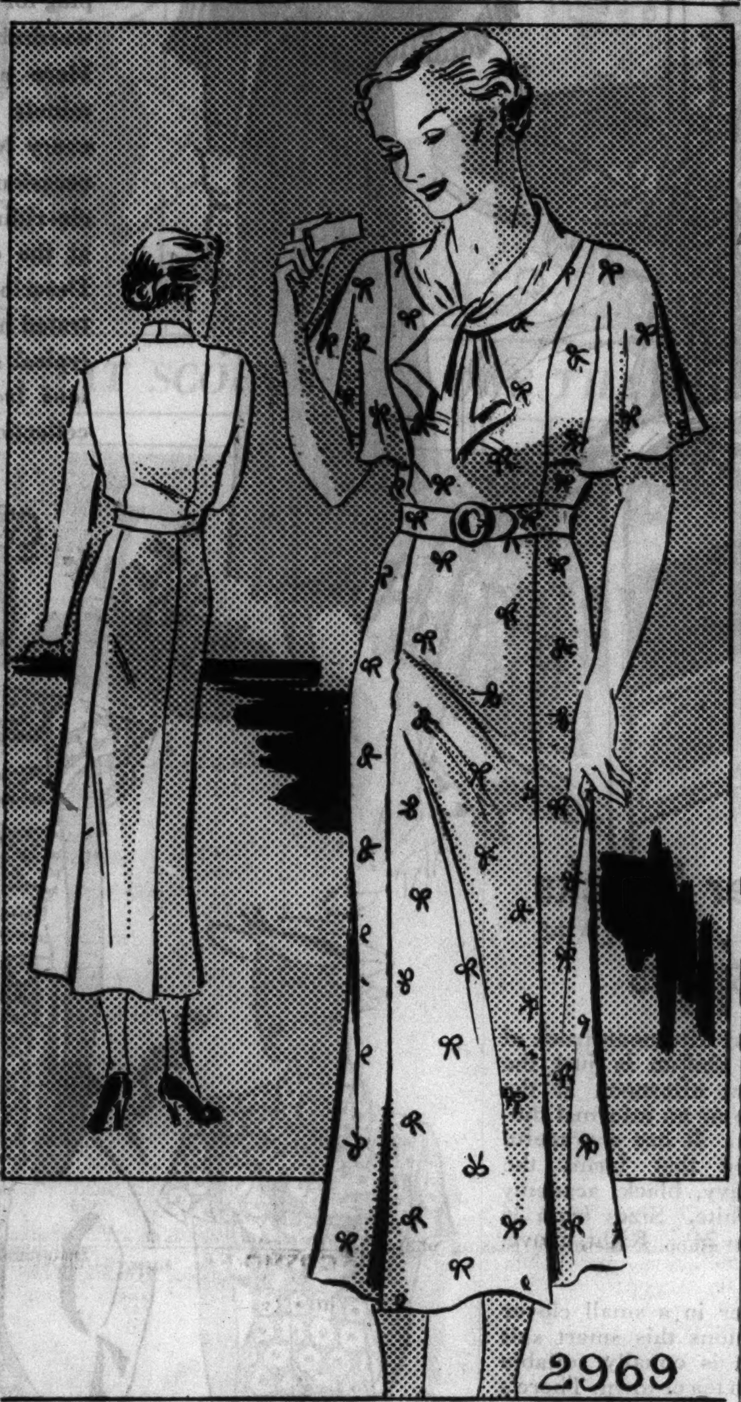
Flattery for Overweight



WOMAN'S DRESS.

Flattery for overweight figures is the most important quality which this frock possesses. The tied scarf collar is softening at the neckline. The cape-like sleeves conceal upper arms which are heavy, thus lending an capelike sleeves conceal upper arms which are heavy, thus lending an illusion of slenderness. Both the back and front of this dress are cleverly paneled from shoulderline to hem, reducing breadth to a minimum and assuring an appearance of height to the wearer, no matter what her stature.

This charming dress is suitable for wear on a wide variety of occasions. Afternoon social events, such as tea, bridge, and matinée, will find it highly acceptable, as will the less formal occasions of hostessing when unexpected callers drop in. If you like a great deal of chic in your house frocks, this pattern will be in good taste as well as attractive for the homemaker to wear all during the day, including the hours she spends in marketing and paying her brief afternoon calls.

Sheer cotton prints, which are available in a wide range of lovely colors and patterns, and which are, incidentally, delightfully inexpensive, are perfect for this dress. Cool comfort and the appearance of being always as neat as a pin, will be among the charms of this lovely dress in cotton sheer.

Cotton shantung, linen and pastel tub silks are other suggestions which will make up nicely and take naturally to the laundry tub.

Ameche Hailed as Winner by Movie Chiefs

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., May 31.—[Special.]—Don Ameche, a young man, who until the movie scouts eyed him, was content with a place on the radio in Chicago, has blossomed into prominence among the new crop of romantic film actors.

With one movie rôle behind him, and that a double barreled rôle, Ameche, who is a hazel eyed, tall youth of 26, is now attracting attention as Loretta Young's Indian lover, Alessandro, in the color film version of Helen Hunt Jackson's "Ramona," which is being made into a motion picture for the third time.

Miss Young, Ameche, and co-members of the cast have been in the San Diego county mountains for four weeks, hard at work on this story of the original Spanish hacienda aristocracy and the Mexicans who became their retainers. They will spend another four weeks there.

Ameche's preceding rôle was that of the two sons of Jean Hersholt in the "Sentimental Sins of Man," in which Jean played the old Swiss bell ringer, and Don was successively both of his wandering sons. That double rôle showed the young man can wear a blond wig with success and that he can enact emotional rôles of different sorts.

Hailing from Kenosha, Wis., where his father, Felix, was a tavern keeper, the young Italian-American was so restless that his college career spread over four schools—Columbia college in Dubuque, Ia., Marquette at Milwaukee, Georgetown in Washington, D. C., and the University of Wisconsin. He played football and basketball indifferently, but excelled in campus dramatics. The college sports, with his vacation work in an auto factory, on pick and shovel road gangs, and in midwest cement and mattress factories, enabled him to present the physique necessary for the rôle of Alessandro, in which he had to learn to do everything that a California Indian youth would have had to do in the early 19th century.

Ameche is now under contract to Twentieth Century-Fox studio, whose producing head, Darryl Zanuck, imported the young man and now hopes he will prove a "find" to compare with such other new and romantic looking additions to Hollywood masculine acclaim as Robert Taylor, Donald Woods, Fred MacMurray, and Errol Flynn.

"From Wisconsin, I quit college to join a stage stock company and finally found myself in New York," he said. "I lived on beans for two months, but I remembered the time when I had worked on a Kenosha city crew engaged in rounding square corners, and stuck with it." He got a rôle in "Illegal Practice," which opened in New York and closed in Chicago, and then he got into radio, taking part in national broadcasts such as "Empire Builders," "Grand Hotel," "Betty and Bob," "The Story Behind the Songs," and "Milligan and Mulligan."

His radio voice aroused the interest of Producer Zanuck's screen scouts. Ameche now has a clause in his contract with Zanuck which permits him to continue radio work on the side. Such clauses are exceptions in the film studios.

Loretta Young has the title rôle in "Ramona," in which Don Ameche as Alessandro, plays her lover. Pauline Frederick waited for one year through repeated postponements of this picture to play Loretta's duenna, and other main places in the cast are taken by Kent Taylor, Jane Darwell, and Katherine De Mille.

An entire tribe—150 men, women, and children of the Mesa Grande Indians—is playing in the picture. The Indians prefer not to use the movie people's telephones and, instead, will ride their ponies twenty miles on errands from the movie camp back to their village. The twenty mile ride consumes half a day.

Health of the Eyes Is Most Important to Their Beauty

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

I am willing to predict that in a short time we women will begin to take more care of our eyes than the average one does today. My reason for the prediction is that I have seen first hand how an absorbing beauty interest heralds an early health interest. Take the matter of the silhouette. Women reduced, and sometimes crazily, when the lean silhouette fad first entered, but they gradually got around to viewing the slim figure from the health angle and eating toward that end. Or, take the nail polish craze, and what it has done for hand skin. Thousands more women are working up a better appearance for the skin on the hands since nail polishes began attracting so much hand notice.

Now eyes, as you know, are being concentrated on from the artificial aid angle, the shadows and mascara, etc. Crow's feet are being viewed from a new urge to have smooth skin around the eye area. So, presently, women will be doing things to keep the eye itself clearer, better in color, and stronger, healthier in appearance. More sparkling, perhaps, is the word to use.

Indeed, there is a goodly amount of campaigning going on right now toward the fresh and rested orbs. You're hearing: "Yes, she is attractive, BUT her eyes look so tired and old." When that sort of thing is being expressed, you can watch for action pronto. The cosmeticians are not overlooking a bet, either. They are visionaries, always just a little in advance of the popular demand. And eye packs, eye washes for the strained and tired looking eye, are noted commonly on cosmetic counters. Those healing pads with their herb leaves are good for the eyes, especially after a long motor trip, or golf or other outdoor session with strong sunlight, high hot winds.

Eye treatments are becoming popular enough to warant salons dictating to the need. So, altogether, we are on the eve, I feel sure, of a healthy eye attitude. On the whole we have become aware of the effects of good lighting on our reading or our work. Some of us are practising the trick of raising eyes from paper or book for a few seconds every little while to rest the eyes. Recently, I met up with a woman who was following instructions on eye care by putting herself to bed at 9 for apromised nine day rest period, sufficient sleep being the eye rest de luxe.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

Summer suggestions:

A visit to the chiropodist, perhaps more than one if the poor feet aren't what they used to be! By all means get straightened around before the hot sun drags foot trouble into your consciousness with a bang. Lots of times small corns that weren't particularly disturbing throughout the winter will kick up like mad at the first heat wave. And then, too, intense heat will often make even the best behaved feet swell to the point where shoes are uncomfortable.

If you take our advice you will have any corrective treatments you need right now to save yourself agony and the mark of that agony on your face and your carriage. Aside from removing all the causes of difficulty the chiropodist can give you good tips on summer foot comfort. He can tell you what to do for the unsightly swelling and can outline simple home care that will meet your particular needs.

He can advise you about shoes, too. It may be that the soft, open sandals are not what you should wear; maybe he'll forbid your favorite patent lether pumps. And it's pretty much of a certainty that he'll frown on extremely high heels.

But in any case you can't do better than to take his advice and his treatments, too. Any pain in the feet, or even nagging discomfort, is a form of cumulative agony as a hot day wears on. Your spirits droop, your shoulders sag—and the harassed, strained expression you can't control adds years to your appearance.

U. S. BEATEN IN DOUBLES AFTER LEAD OF 2 SETS

Australians Rout Budge and Mako.

Philadelphia, Pa., May 31.—[Special.]—One of the most inexplicable collapses of tennis form in memory dealt America's Davis cup hopes a staggering blow today as Donald Budge and Gene Mako let victory escape their grasp and Australia won the doubles to gain a 2 to 1 advantage in the tie at the Germantown Cricket club.

Leading, 4 to 1, in the fifth set and holding forth as invincibly as they had in overpowering their opponents in the first two chapters, the California youngsters ruined what had been a joyous afternoon for 6,500 spectators by practically presenting Jack Crawford and Adrian Quist with the match. Budge and Mako lost the next five games with a net total of 5 points credited to them. The gallery sat stunned as the inspired Australians put them to rout to salvage the contest at 4-6, 2-6, 6-4, 7-5, 6-4.

U. S. Must Win Twice Today.

Thus the United States finds itself faced with the herculean assignment of winning the final two singles matches tomorrow if it is to escape elimination from the cup play in its own zone.

The opening two singles were divided when Budge defeated Crawford and Wilmer Allison lost to Quist, and victory in either of the remaining matches will earn Australia the right to meet the winning nation in the European zone, the survivor qualifying to face England in the challenge round.

Great Day for Australia.

From Australia's standpoint, today was a glorious day of triumph, all the sweeter because victory came almost as an eleventh hour reprieve. By the end of the second set there appeared scarcely the remotest chance for the visitors, so helpless were they to cope with the brilliant attack of the Americans.

It can be appreciated then, how completely jolting was the final denouement, particularly after Budge and Mako had come so close to victory in the fourth set. With the score 5 to 4 in their favor, they gained a lead of 30-0 on Quist's service. Quist's smash made the score 15-30, and then came the stroke regarded as the turning point in the match.

Mako, standing at the net, had a short lob to deal with on his backhand. The Los Angeles youth played it a shade too fine at a sharp angle across court and the ball found the net.

Crawford Scores Service Aces.

This so buoyed the Australian's that they took the next three games with the loss of only one point, Crawford putting on the greatest exhibition of serving of the two days in the twelfth and last of the set by scoring three service aces.

With the match squared at 2 sets all, and the crowd growing apprehensive, Budge and Mako allayed their fears of launching an attack that swept all before them. Crawford and Quist faltered badly under fire and were behind at 0-3 in no time at all.

The Americans carried their lead to 4 to 1 and at this point came the unaccountable collapse.

Quist won the sixth game at Love on service and his opponents' errors, and then Mako faltered badly, permitting the Australians to break through Budge's service from 30-40. Going on the attack with renewed confidence, Crawford and Quist pulled out the eighth game from 0-30 with their volleys and smashes.

America's hopes definitly were sunk in the next game. Mako was broken through at love as the Australians raked the opposing court with volleys. Crawford tossed a perfect lob over Mako's head, and the shaky Americans brought the play to an end with their errors in the tenth.

LOUIS MAY NOT BE AT PEAK, BUT IT WON'T BE LONG

BY HARVEY WOODRUFF.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Lakewood, N. J., May 31.—Joe Louis, who meets Max Schmeling at Yankee stadium June 18, has not slowed down to a walk in his boxing. He does not carry apparent excess weight around his midsection. His workout of seven rounds this afternoon against six sparmates before 2,000 dissipated those reports, possibly circulated as a buildup for the coming bout.

This graduate of THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE's Golden Gloves tournament, less than two years out of the amateur ranks and now the greatest box office attraction in pugilism, is not at razor edge, it is true. He should not be so two weeks before his bout. But any one who relies on the 22 year old colored boy being out of condition against Schmeling had better revise that estimate.

Follows Blackburn's Plan.

Louis is following a careful plan of Trainer Jack Blackburn to bring him up to the battle gradually with two weeks in the mountains and two weeks here. There will be ten daily boxing sessions on the final days before the bout, more ring work than he has had before any of his previous important encounters.

Now about this overweight issue. Louis, apparently sensitive concerning critical comment, asserts he weighed 198½ pounds after yesterday's workout. He did not weigh in after his bouts today. This figure probably is conservative since he plans to enter the ring on June 18 at about 201 pounds. He looked four or five pounds above the publicity figures.

Joe Evades Going Stale.

Those excess pounds, if this correspondent's estimate is correct, will be worked off along with numerous other pounds to be replaced by what Joe calls "solid weight." He makes no pretense that he is now in the condition he expects to be. Fighting condition now would risk the danger of going over the edge into staleness.

Louis' boxing this afternoon was the best of his training sessions, according to those who have been on the scene. It left no marked impression on an observer who has seen him prepare for other bouts, since he extended himself only at intervals. Instead, he practiced defense against the type of weaving attack expected from Schmeling. Louis even clowned a bit without change of expression to the delight of the cash customers, who paid $1.10 each for the privilege of entering the canvas enclosed arena which has wooden seats on all four sides of the ring.

Ruggeriello Gets Enough.

To the crowd, it was a show. It was well staged. Two small colored boys fought three burlesque rounds followed by two other 3-rounders of real intention. Then followed Louis and his sparmates, Salvatore Ruggeriello, Young George Godfrey, Lou Poster, Eddie Malcolm, Frank Wolanski, and Roy Williams, the latter of Chicago.

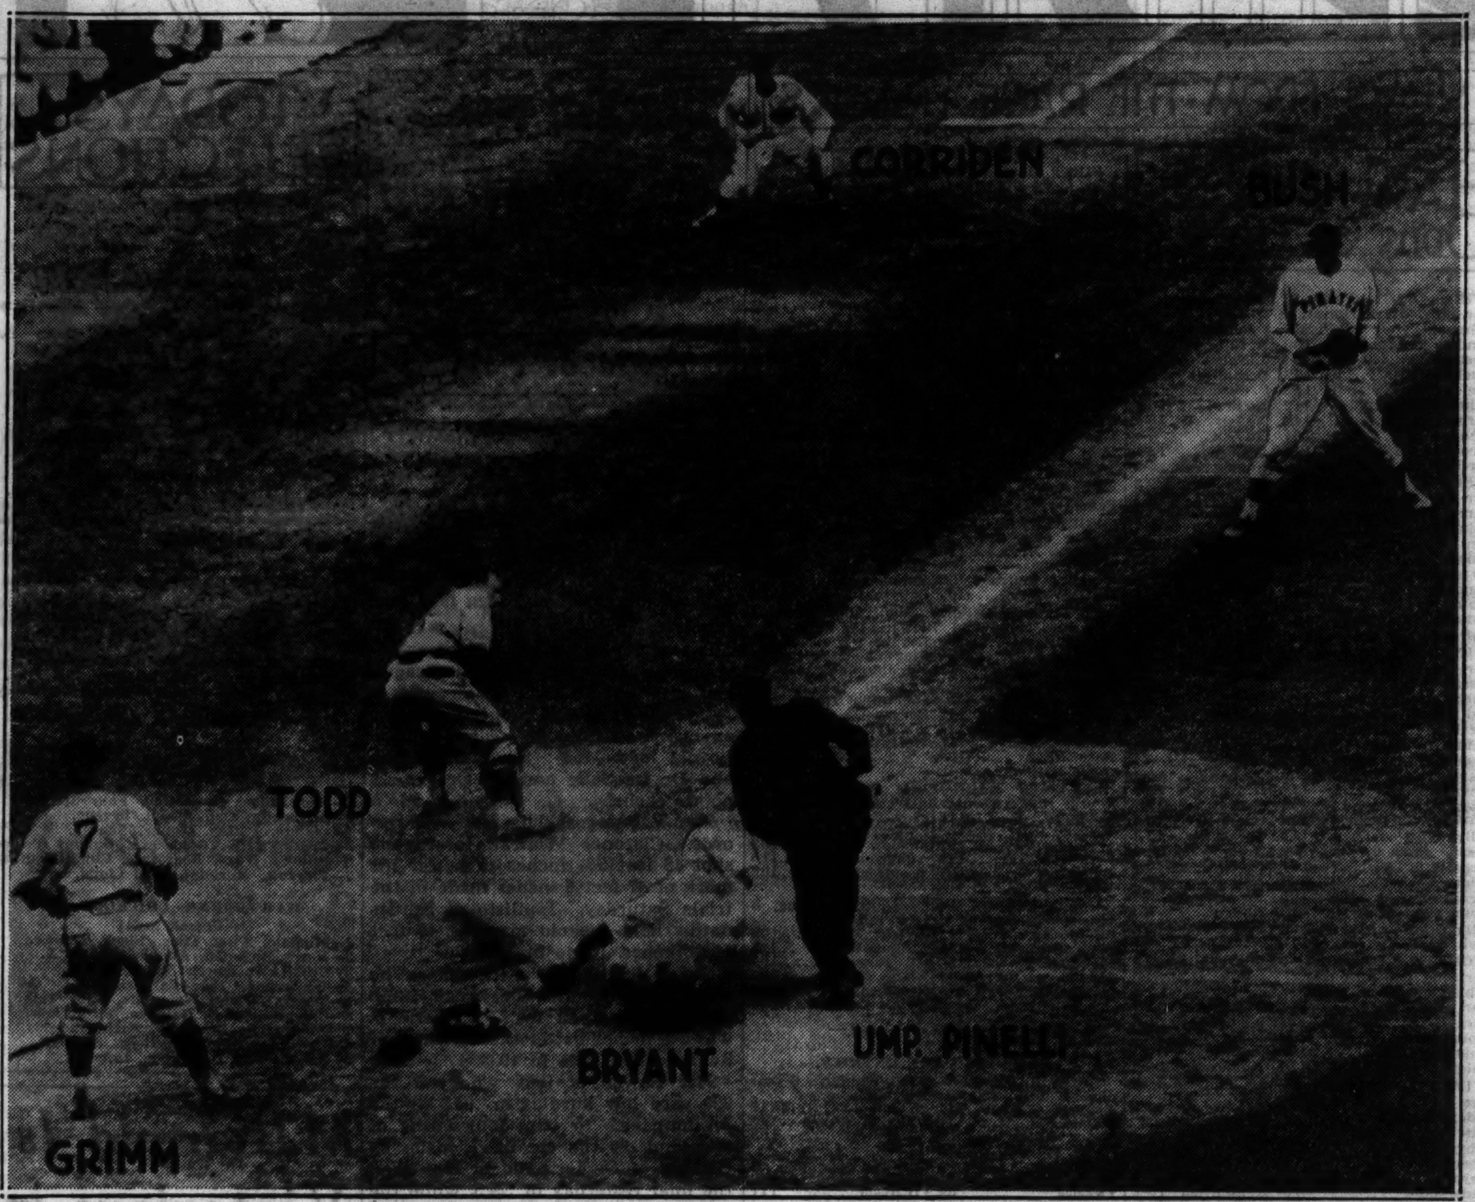
Ruggeriello was scheduled for two sessions, but ran out of the ring with "I've had enough for today" after the first round. Louis subjected him to more gruelling than any of the others. Against Malcolm, Joe only tapped as his opponent tried to simulate the Schmeling attack. Williams, nearly thirty pounds lighter, was in there to develop Louis' speed and timing.

Joe Has His Worshippers.

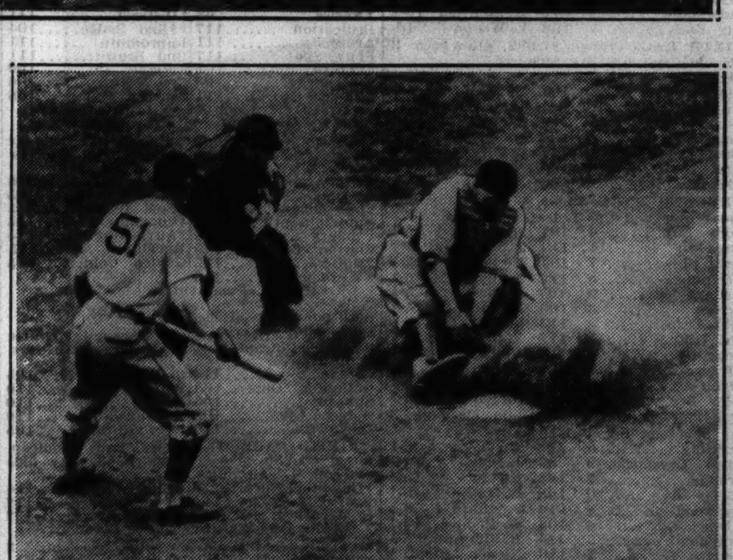
The crowd was almost as interesting as the boxing. About two-thirds of those present were Louis hero worshipers. Any unusual tactics by the Brown Bomber, any sign of trepidation or hurried retreat by a sparmate furnished amusement. These spectators also craned their necks to see Mrs. Louis who occupied a ring side seat but leaves tomorrow to visit a school friend in New York until after the night of the fight.

Except for his customary six miles on the road in the morning, Louis will not work tomorrow. His next ring appearance is scheduled for Tuesday.

A RUN THAT SCORED AND ONE THAT DIDN'T



Pitcher Clay Bryant, running for Gabby Hartnett, slides home with the Cubs' winning run in the tenth inning of yesterday's game with the Pirates. Catcher Al Todd is going after Bud Hafey's throw, while Manager Grimm, Coach Red Corriden, and the Pirates' pitcher, Guy Bush, look on.



Stanley Hack slides home in the ninth inning with what would have been the winning run if Catcher Todd hadn't smothered him completely on Lavagetto's throw to the plate. Augie Galan (No. 51) and Umpire Pinelli look on. [TRIBUNE Photos.]

Talking It Over

[Copyright: 1936: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE idea may be wilder than Congressman Zioncheck, but it seems to this department that something ought to be done about the scoring of boxing matches such as the one between Max Marek and Johnny Erjavec at the Chicago arena last Wednesday night. . . . Marek, who in the opinion of the judges and referee had won every round, was forced to discontinue in the eighth because of a cut over the eye. . . . The result goes into the record books as a technical knockout. . . . Wouldn't a draw have been fairer? . . . This would have given Erjavec credit for the break and wouldn't have been such a severe penalty on the better fighter. . . . What is your opinion? . . . Dominic Crosetti, father of the Yankees' shortstop, used to be a garbage collecter in San Francisco and Jeremiah Cronin, father of the Boston Red Sox manager, formerly was a coal truck driver in the same city. . . . The elder Cronins now are living in a $10,000 home, donated by their son. . . . Bud Taylor has been granted a referee's license in California. . . . Orville Atwood, Michigan's secretary of state, says the demand for small license numbers has been so heavy he has been putting ciphers after the letters on the license plates for this year, such as A 0, B 0, etc. . . . The number on Joe Louis' car is K 0. . . .

Bill Booth, freshman football captain at Illinois two years ago, who transferred to Ohio State after a semester, is rated an outstanding prospect for the Buckeyes' backfield next fall. . . . Robert Cahill, secretary to Notre Dame's athletic coaches, will marry Miss Mary Cass, alumni office secretary, on June 13. . . . It won't be long until Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Discovery gets back to the races. . . . He worked six furlongs in 1:12 the other morning at Belmont Park. . . . Golf professionals today are among the most idolized figures in sport, but such was not the case years ago. . . . A pro seldom was allowed the use of the regular clubhouse facilities. . . . An emancipator freed the paid hands of the game at the national open of 1914, held at a Chicago club. . . . The pros had been ordered to dress in the club's toolshed, but a gangling, apple cheeked lad from Rochester, N. Y., by the name of Walter Hagen, decided he would rather try one of the fancy lockers the amateurs and members were using in the clubhouse instead. . . . The Haig walked in, calmly took himself one of the best lockers and proceeded to dress for golf. . . . Challenged by those in charge, after they had recovered from the shock of such audacity, he told them he would remain there for the duration of the tournament, and did. . . . That gesture proved to be the battle cry of freedom for thousands of professionals.

Babe Ruth's Baseball Advice has been added to the former home run slugger's list of literary products. . . . Designed as hints to boys who want to become stars, it will be sold in 7,000 chain stores from coast to coast. . . . Soccer matches in Soviet Russia draw crowds of 70,000. . . . Catcher Bill McGee of the Cardinals throws with his right arm and eats and combs his hair with his left. . . . Fidgety Phil Collins, former Phillies' and Cardinals' pitcher, has applied for a job with the Chicago Mills semipro club. . . . Charley Hornbostel, former Indiana half miler who will receive a master's degree in business administration from Harvard this month, will join a Boston auditing concern after his graduation.

Ten Years Ago Today—Cliff Heathcote hit two homers as the Cubs beat the Cardinals, 10 to 9. . . . Martin Delaney, physical director of the C. A. A. for more than 30 years, dropped dead on his way to the Midway A. C. . . . The New York athletic commission ordered Jack Dempsey to sign with Harry Wills within three weeks or be indefinitly suspended.

Hartnett and Herman Lead in Early All-Star Balloting

Boston, Mass., May 31.—(AP)—Although the reports of balloting on the makeups of the American and National teams for the all-star game here July 7 are few and scattered, the early voting fans, who are using their favorite newspapers as polling places, show some definite trends.

Manager Bill Terry and Mel Ott of the Giants, Arky Vaughan of the Pirates, and Bill Herman and Gabby Hartnett of the Cubs loom as the favorites in the National league. Manager Mickey Cochrane and his world championship Tigers, Charley Gehringer and Goose Goslin also appear assured of much support,

While Terry has a decided edge on first basemen in the National league, early voting promises a long drawn out fight between Gehrig and Jimmy Foxx of the Red Sox, on the American league team.

Ducky Medwick of the Cardinals and Wally Berger of Boston have almost as much early support as Ott for a National league outfield berth, but only Earl Averill of Cleveland has anything close to a decided edge in the American league voting.

Hartnett has rolled up an amazing early vote as the National league's outstanding catcher.

The voting for pitchers, which is expected to switch violently as favorites slump and improve, is meaningless at this stage. But the nation's fans have rallied to the support of Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals and Carl Hubbell of the Giants, and have not exactly neglected Van Mungo of the Dodgers, Lon Warneke of the Cubs, or Paul Derringer of the Reds.

Lefty Grove and Vernon Gomez of the Yanks are running one-two in the American league,

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., May 31.—Vernon Kennedy went against the Cleveland Indians out of turn today on the prestige of one no hit and one four hit performance in his last two appearances against the Clevelanders. But Vern's wizardry over the Ohioans had fluttered away and the Indians swept the series with a 13 hit, 7 to 5 victory. The Sox have not won a game in five played here this season, Kennedy's aforesaid four hit performance in Chicago, a 4 to 1 affair, being the only verdict the Sox have taken from the Indians this year.

The Sox were ahead today just as they were in each game yesterday, but at no time in any of the three games gave any indication that they could hold an edge once acquired.

Four In Row.

Part of the reversal in Kennedy's form against the Indians may be attributed to the character of what Cleveland is pleased to call its ball park, though this scarcely can be given as an alibi for the outcome. However, a home run by Hale, a triple and double by Averill, a triple by Sullivan and a double by Trosky all hit the right field fence, the nearest point of which is only 290 feet from the plate.

The fence was there while the Sox were batting, but the only Chicagoan who knocked an extra base hit, socked a triple to left center. The Sox now have a losing streak of four games, their third of the season, counting the eight game run they had in the making the last time they were headed east.

Sox Tie Score.

The Indians waited until two were out in the first inning before inaugurating the scoring program. Hale singled to center, took second on a passed ball and scored on Averill's double off the right field wall. Averill scored on Trosky's Texas leaguer to short left.

The Sox were in the throes of an apparent fadeout in the second inning when Sewell produced a single good for two runs. Bonura walked and reached third while Piet was reaching first on Hale's toss into right field on a double play chance. Hayes hit a sharp grounder to Trosky and Bonura was out at the plate by six feet or so. Piet reached third and Hayes second on Dykes' infield tap. Then Sewell singled to left, Piet and Hayes scoring the tying runs. Kennedy grounded out.

In the home second the Sox convinced observers other players can suffer from confusion. Vosmik walked and stopped at second on Hughes' single to right. Vosmik was picked off second by Sewell and seconds later Hughes was picked off first by Kennedy, Kennedy's achievement being the third of the kind in four days.

Hayes Comes Through.

PIRATES TIE SCORE IN NINTH ON HOME RUN

Allen's Single Off Bush Ends Battle.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.

The Cubs were able to bounce back safely yesterday despite unexpected last minute reverses to which they are gradually becoming accustomed. A quiet afternoon party was about to conclude when the Pittsburgh Pirates splattered four runs across the plate in the ninth to tie the score. But in the tenth, with Frank Demaree and Ethan Allen carrying the load, the league champions rallied round their old pal Guy Bush with a run that gave them their only triumph in the three game series. The score was 8 to 7.

Extra labor was necessary because Larry French, after sneaking through one perilous inning after another, couldn't survive the ninth despite a four run lead. With one out the Pirates finally trapped him with a series of hits topped by a homer into the seats with two on by Wilbur Brubaker. Thus French had to surrender his assignment and leave the rest of the work for Tex Carleton. It was French's sixth straight banishment from eight starts he has made this season.

Grimm Has Good Day.

In an attack that was limited compared to the Pirates' 17 hits, only one of them off Carleton, the manager, Charles Grimm, was a prominent worker. He singled to drive home two of three unearned runs off Cy Blanton in the first inning. With a second single he opened a two run attack against the same fellow in the fourth. And in the seventh, Frank Demaree meanwhile having frisked Lefty Birkofer for a homer, Grimm singled for the third time and wormed his way around to the plate with the last run scored by the title holders until the winning item in the tenth.

Bush, who had barely dodged defeat in the ninth, his first inning of labor, invited his own downfall in the tenth by leading with a pass to Galan. Hartnett tried to sacrifice but it resulted in Galan being nipped at second. Demaree lent a helpful hand to the proceedings by singling to left, whereupon Bryant went to second to do Hartnett's running. Then Allen punched a single into right and Hafey whipped the ball back to the plate, but it came in just a trifle too late to keep Bryant from scoring.

Larry Has to Bear Down.

A double to left with which Jensen led off in the Pirates' first inning forced French to do a little bearing down. He dispatched Schulte on strikes, got Lavagetto on a fly to Allen, and Vaughan on a pop to Herman.

The Cubs' first inning, in which Lavagetto gave the Cubs assistance to the extent of three runs, opened with Hack's fly to left. Herman walked and was forced by Galan. Hartnett slapped a single into center, Galan speeding to third. A pass, more or less intentional, to Demaree loaded the bases. The inning should have ended without profit when Allen grounded to Lavagetto, but the Coast league graduate booted the ball all over the infield, Galan scoring. Grimm then singled to center to move Hartnett and Demaree across the plate. Jurges tapped to Lavagetto for the third out.

Suhr's Homer Hurts.

One-third of the Cubs' lead went away when Suhr blew open the second with his homer into the seats in right. A moment later the lead was reduced to one run. After Suhr had made his round trip Brubaker aimed a poke to short and Jurges fumbled. Hafey forced Brubaker and

BOOK LEARNIN' TO BE TAUGHT BOYS AT HAWTHORNE

Race Officials Plan Series of Lectures.

BY FRENCH LANE.

A college for the uplift of persons connected with horse racing has been founded in Chicago, and the first classes will be held at the Hawthorne track some morning this week. Teachers from various Chicago schools will lecture to jockies, exercise boys, and stable hands. In fact, all connected with the race track are eligible to attend the classes.

The originator of the idea is Mr. George Foster, secretary of the Illinois racing commission. He has interested, to the extent of their becoming sponsors, Otto W. Lehmann, president of the Arlington Jocky club; Richard J. Nash, widely known breeder and owner of race horses, and Christopher J. FitzGerald, steward representing the Illinois racing commission.

How, Indeed, Gentlemen?

No doubt the idea is noble and commendable, but how, Profs. Lehmann, Nash, FitzGerald, and Foster, are you going to maintain discipline and dignity in the class room?

Suppose Arthur [The Singing Kid] Loftus is reciting and the question is: "How much is $100 plus $50?"

"Who is the father of our country, Benny?" is the question Prexy Lehmann asks him.

"Who led the American expeditionary forces into Europe?" again asks Prexy Lehmann.

Paul Revere? Who Was He?

"Can any of you pupils tell me about Paul Revere?". Asks Prof. Foster.

"Sure," says Trainer Phil Reilly. "You see I trained the horse he rode on his famous ride through Concord and Lexington."

"Now Bobby," asks Prof. Foster of Robert McGarvey, who trains about half a million dollars' worth of horseflesh owned by Mrs. Ethel V. Mars, "who discovered the law of gravity?"

"I'm not just sure about it," says he, "but it was either 'Bet You a Milloin' Gates or Pittsburgh Phil."

Not a Bad Answer, Tony.

"I'll ask you to recite immediately, and the question is, Who invented the boat race—er, I mean steamboat?"

No wonder there is a great tenseness while everybody waits for Prof. Foster to ring the bell which will call his pupils to school.

Bradley Star to Race Today at Hawthorne

Col. Edward R. Bradley's colors will be shown for the first time in Chicago this year at Hawthorne this afternoon, when Bird Flower goes to the post in the Jackson Park purse. It is the day's feature race and is a dash at 6½ furlongs. Bird Flower's opponents will include Shandon farm's Galmica, Mrs. Emil Denemark's Chief Cherokee, Mrs. G. W. Ogle's Patchpocket, Tony Pelleteri's Where Away, and the Chicago stable's Gyral.

Transmutable, which made an unsuccessful nvasion of Latonia Saturday to run the Quickstep handicap, was returned to Hawthorne yesterday.

The extensive stable of Norman W. Church of California is scheduled to arrive at Arlington Park this week. Several of the horses will fill engagements at Hawthorne while they are waiting for the Arlington season to open.

Yellow Tulip, owned by the Bomar stable of Detroit, 's due to reach Hawthorne tomorrow. This sensational 2 year old is being shipped from Detroit to run in the Hawthorne Juvenile handicap on Saturday.

Fred A. Burton's Everglade stable horses will move from Latonia to Arlington Park within a short time. He may start Deliberator in the Illinois Cwners' handicap to be run at Hawthorne later in the meeting.

MEDINAH CLUB TO HOLD SWIM CARD TONIGHT

The Medinah Club of Chicago will hold a water carnival this evening in the club pool. Many of the swimmers and divers who will compete are National A. A. U. and Olympic record holders.

The highlight of the program will be the appearance of Claudia Eckert, National A. A. U. high board champion, winner of the Central A. A. U. diving championship recently held in the Medinah pool. Jerry Miller and Ernie Hahn, swim stars of the Illinois A. C., will present a series of special swimming feats. Miller in a solo number will demonstrate the swimming styles used by Duke Kahonomoku, Arne Borg, Johnnie Weismuller, and others.

Sparta Beats Olympia in Peel Cup Game

Sparta earned the right to play the Maccabees in the final of the Peel cup soccer matches by defeating Olympia, 3 to 1, in overtime yesterday. The match was a replay of the semi-finals played last week, when the teams tied.

Olympia, playing with the wind at its back, scored after 35 minutes of the opening period, Keberle booting a hard drive past Trasnek. Sparta had the wind advantage in the second period and Wolf scored after 3 minutes. It kept the ball in Olympia territory during the remainder of the period, but could not beat Kratochvil again. Early in the 30 minute overtime period Wolf scored Sparta's second goal and in the closing minutes Kriz clinched the game for Sparta by driving a rebound into the net. Lineup:

PERRY TO MEET VON CRAMM IN FRENCH FINALS

PARIS, May 31.—(AP)—Fred Perry, England's tennis star, had to muster all his cunning today to defeat Christian Boussus, first ranking French star, in the semi-finals of the French hard courts singles championship.

Perry, defending champion, eliminated the Frenchman, 6-4, 7-5, 5-7, 6-2, to join Baron Gottfried von Cramm of Germany in the finals. The German baron easily defeated Marcel Bernard of France in straight sets, 7-5, 6-1, 6-1.

Reaching the finals of the women's singles were Mme. Simone Mathieu of France, who beat Marie Louise Horn, Germany, 6-4, 6-4, and Mme. Hilda Krahwinkel Sperling of Denmark, who defeated Countess de la Valdene of France, the former Lili de Alvarez of Spain.

Perry played carelessly in the first natch and the Frenchman pounced on his mistakes to take his own service at love and even the match at 4 all. Perry rushed back strong, however, winning the next two games and the set although he was within set point six times before he finally broke through to win.

SENATORS SEND ESTALELLA TO ALBANY CLUB

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—Roberto Estalella, young Cuban utility player, has been released on option to Albany of the International league. The Senators let Estalella go on the condition he be played regularly in the outfield. Estalella came to Washington last year from Harrisburg of the New York-Pennsylvania league as a heavy hitting infielder.

The performance of Buddy Lewis, one of the American league's freshman sensations, removed all possibility that Estalella would play in the infield. The availability of several hard hitting outfielders left him no opportunity there, and he has been retained for pinch hitting.

De Young Wins Two Midwest League Games

The De Young Fuels defeated the Raab Tailors, 9 to 0, and Maciejewski Supervisors, 9 to 1, in a Midwest league double-header at Normal park yesterday. The Midwest league will hold its regular weekly meeting at 169 North Franklin street tonight.

De Paul Wins Catholic Prep Track Meet

Table of Points

ON THE SCENE.

LAKEWOOD, N. J., May 31.—[Special.]—Friend Arch—Well, Arch, here I am on the scene or near the scene of the training camps of Joe Louis and Max Schmeling for their fifteen round bout at Yankee stadium in two weeks, the Belmont stakes next Saturday, where Brevity will seek to regain his turf laurels, the open golf tourney at Baltusrol, Princeton's invitational track meet, and other events. So I'm ready to take off my coat and do my usual customary conscientious hard work for you at whatever you suggest first.

Only it's unfortunate I have to start right off worrying a little about my expense account. You said it would be all right if I got here Tuesday or Wednesday for Belmont stakes, but I figured it out another way and hope it will be all right with you. As you know, one way railroad rates to the east go down tomorrow. But round trip rates end permanently.

Well, there was a convention in New York of the Benevolent and Fraternal Order of Expense Account Engineers. As a member, third degree standing, I was entitled to the excursion round trip rate which figured up would save, even with the lower trafic rates, more than my hotel bill and food for the two days. The purpose of this order is to improve the breed of business expense accounts in American life.

I may explain there are three degrees in our order, novice, intermediate and engineer, and one honorary degree, exalted engineer. I'm an engineer, but I'd be an exalted engineer, only retroactive records are barred, for didn't I include "good will," "deficiency" and "missing" in previous Derby expense accounts?

But past performances do not count in our order, whose motto is, "It Ain't What You Used to Be, It's What You Are Today."

So I'm going to rely on you to help me to think up something to qualify anew for exalted engineer before our next annual convention rolls around.

While waiting to begin advance dope on the Belmont, thought you might like me to take a peek at Joe Louis and ascertain whether he still carries an emotionless dead pan in his ring preparation, more particularly whether he still was without bad habits of any kind, also whether he still was good to his folks.

Twentieth Century club promoters estimate the gate for this Louis-Schmeling battle—if it proves such—between $1,300,000 and $1,500,000—the first million dollar house since Jack Dempsey's time. I couldn't see whether their fingers were crossed, and I'd rather not express a personal opinion until I've brushed around a little more. Likewise, these sponsors say $500,000 in advance orders already is in the till.

Admission tops are $40, down to $3.50 bottom. That's a lot of money to see an encounter about whose ending a large majority, almost a unanimous majority, have made up their mind in advance. Previous high was not over $25 in the bouts in which Louis defeated Primo Carnera and Max Baer, unless you bought your ducat from an official scalper to insure your "ringside seat" legerdemain.

Those familiar with such matters say the $40 seats will go well, for always there are the gentry who like to be seen as well as be at a major fisticuffs. What matters largely is how the seats in between will sell, for that is the cushion between profit or loss.

Please let me know when Wilfrid Smith is coming to the scene of hostilities, so-called, for Louis' camp is 67 miles from New York down here in New Jersey, while Schmeling holds forth at Napanoch, 93 miles upstate in New York, an intervening distance of 160 miles. It makes no difference to me to which camp I'm assigned. There's more life, I'm told, here at Lakewood, but on the other hand promoters are centering their heavy publicity from Napanoch to try to build up Schmeling. Was it all right that I came early to attend the convention of the Benevolent and Fraternal Order of Expense Account Engineers? I'll let you know as soon as I need more money, which probably will be right after the Belmont stakes. Hoping you are the same. Regards.

HARVEY T. WOODRUFF.

DODGERS DEFEAT GIANTS, 4-3, TO SWEEP SERIES

Mungo Holds New York to Five Hits.

The winning run was scored in the ninth. Al Smith, fourth Giant pitcher of the day, walked Buddy Hassett with the bases full to force Frenchy Bordagaray home. Van Mungo held the Giants to five hits.

BEES BEAT PHILS, 6 TO 5.

Boston, Mass., May 31.—(AP)—Twice defeated in a double-header yesterday, the Boston Bees beat the Phillies today, 6 to 5, in eleven innings. A crowd of 10,000 watched the game.

Danny MacFayden, relief pitcher, singled to right in the eleventh and took second when Bill Urbanski sacrificed. Sylvester Johnson then purposely passed Moore, but Wally Berger, Bees' center fielder, connected for a double, sending MacFayden home with the winning run.

Yanks Beat Boston, 5 to 4, in 12 Innings

New York, May 31.—(AP)—Joe Di Maggio, the Yankees' sensational rookie, stole the hero's spotlight again today, tripling in the 12th inning to send in the winning run as the New Yorkers defeated the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 4, before 41,781. Di Maggio extended his hitting streak to fourteen straight games.

The victory, the first extra inning game at the Yankee stadium this season, increased the New York lead to four and one-half games over the Red Sox.

Lefty Grove, Boston star and previously twice victor over the Yanks this season, started his first game since he split his thumb more than a week ago, but was relieved for a pinch hitter after going seven innings. Score:

BROWNS, 11; TIGERS, 10.

Detroit, Mich., May 31.—(AP)—Rogers Hornsby, St. Louis Browns manager, made his first appearance of the season today as a pinch hitter in the ninth inning and came through with a sharp single to right field, scoring Rollie Hemsley from second base with the winning run in an 11 to 10 victory over Detroit.

The score was the climax of a five run rally by the Browns and gave them a clean sweep of the three game series.

Detroit had entered the ninth inning with a 10 to 6 lead, largely as the result of a five run outburst in the seventh inning. Score:

Cubs Drill This Morning; Giants Here Tomorrow

The Cubs have no engagements to fill today except for a two hour drill that Manager Grimm has ordered for this morning. Tomorrow the Giants will open a three game series here. Curt Davis will greet Bill Terry's athletes.

When Grimm stepped to bat in the first inning there was a noisy round of handclapping, intermingled with a few faint raspberries. The Wolves who gave Grimm the gay ride on Saturday apparently didn't come back.

Although the going has been tough lately, Grimm has no plans for making alterations in his lineup. He's going to remain at first base as long as he can keep himself together and Bill Jurges will stick to short despite his infirmities.

The double beating taken by the Cubs on Saturday brought on a depression in yesterday's business. The attendance was announced as 13,567.

Grimm was so eager to see Bryant score in the tenth that he ran up to the plate. What he saw pleased him no end, but an instant later he was sent sprawling to the ground. One of the ushers, in the mad rush to form a guard of honor around the infield, crashed into the manager.

The Pirates left third base unprotected while Brubaker was running Galan back to second on Demaree's grounder in the eighth inning, so as soon as Brubaker tossed to Lavagetto Galan turned and raced to third, Demaree meanwhile going to second. This happened with only one out, but both Allen and Grimm popped to Suhr.

Cubs Defeat Pirates, 8 to 7, in 10 Innings

Jurges disposed of Todd for the second out. But Blanton took unexpected liberties with French by doubling to right center, Hafey racing around to the plate. Jensen went to base when hit on the arm, but Schulte lofted to Allen.

Vaughan clouted a single through second with one out in the third, but the Cubs fixed this by turning a double play on Suhr's hopper to Herman. French also had to do a little close figuring in the fourth. Hafey singled to right after Brubaker had fanned. Blanton singled to center, putting Hafey on third. Relief came on Jensen's fly to Hafey.

Cubs Become Serious Again.

Having gone hitless in the second and third, the Cubs decided the fourth was as good a time as any for a little advance on Blanton. They made it so effective that the Pirate star surrendered, two runs scoring. Grimm inaugurated the move by singling to center for his second hit. Jurges contributed a single to right, and both runners moved along on a bunt perfectly executed by French. Hack did the rest. He singled to right, Grimm and Jurges scoring and Blanton departing. Birkofer handled the rest of the inning.

Homer Restores Old Lead.

French had to serve to six batters in the fifth, but completed the task with only one run across. Lavagetto walked with one out and Vaughan popped to Grimm. Suhr singled to right. Brubaker singled to the same sector and Lavagetto scored. Hafey fouled to Hack. Then by way of restoring a three run lead for the Cubs, Demaree stepped up in the home half and thumped homer No. 5 into the left field bleacher. Birkofer tried to sneak a cripple past Frank with a two and nothing count, but it didn't work.

The Pirates were on French's trail again in the sixth, but he matched hits with strikeouts and avoided damage. Todd opened with a single to center, Birkofer fanned and Jensen singled over short. Schulte flied to Demaree and Lavagetto, after forcing the count to 3 and 2, missed his third swing.

For the first and only time during the game French pitched a hitless inning in the seventh. This waranted a celebration, so the Cubs stepped out with one run in their half, giving them a 7 to 3 edge. Grimm singled to center with one out and Schulte inadvertently permitted the ball to roll to the bleacher, Grimm charging to third with his very best speed. Jurges drove him home with a single. French then forced Jurges, Hack walked and Vaughan threw out Herman.

Hack's Pickup Retires Schulte.

The ninth started with Hack making a one handed pickup to retire Schulte. The Pirates went into production immediately. Lavagetto punched a single through short. Vaughan singled to right. Suhr also singled to right to score Lavagetto. The Cubs' three run advantage lasted about 30 seconds longer. Brubaker boomed his homer into the right field seats, followed Vaughan and Suhr across the plate and the score was tied. After Hafey had been thrown out, Todd singled and Young stepped forth to bat for Brown. French was removed in favor of Carleton so Young was recalled to let L. Waner, a left handed swinger, bat. Lloyd lined to Demaree on the first pitch.

Lyons to Hurl Opener Against Yanks Tomorrow

Cleveland, O., May 31.—[Special.]—The White Sox left tonight on an 8:25 train, which will have them in New York at 9 o'clock tomorrow morning. Ted Lyons will pitch the opener against the Yanks Tuesday.

Lyons made his first start of the year on May 1 at Yankee stadium. Ted pitched a fine game in which he held the Yanks scoreless after the second inning, but lost, 3 to 2.

Manager Jimmy Dykes, though somewhat depressed last night because of yesterday's double licking, busted out laughing at intervals. He explained he was thinking about his old pal, Mickey Cochrane, whose world champions had been whipped twice by the tail-end Browns before a fickle capacity home crowd.

RECHECK GIVES PETILLO THIRD IN 500 MILE RACE

Indianapolis, Ind., May 31.—(AP)—Charles Merz, chief steward at the 500 mile Memorial day auto race, announced today an audit of the timing tape showed an error in the original announcement of third and fourth place winners.

Merz said Kelly Petillo's car actually finished third instead of Mauri Rose of Dayton, O., as first announced. He said there was no protest because the timers were aware a mistake had been made, but that it took several hours to check the tape.

third. Radcliff opened with a triple to left center. Kreevich lifted a gentle pop to Galatzer. Haas and Bonura walked, filling the bases. Piet was called out on strikes, but Hayes singled to right, scoring Radcliff and Haas and putting Bonura on third. Dykes popped out.

The Indians tied the score in the fourth before they were halted by a neat double play. Trosky opened with a double along the right line and went to third on Sullivan's sacrifice. Vosmik walked, then Hughes squeezed Trosky home with a bunt along the first base line which went for a single when Kennedy fell after capturing the ball. Harder hit into a double play, Bonura to Hayes to Bonura.

Indians Pile Up Lead.

The Sox went out in order in the fourth and fifth, the process in the third involving two circus catches in the outfield. With one out in the sixth Hayes singled to left for his second and the Sox' fourth hit, but immediately went down with Dykes in a double play.

With one out in the sixth Sullivan got a triple off the wall in right center and scored on Vosmik's double off the wall back of first base. Vosmik went to third on Hughes' bouncer to Bonura and scored on a wild pitch. Dykes threw out Harder.

Galatzer opened the Cleveland seventh with the eleventh hit off Kennedy, a single to right, but went down in a double play with Knickerbocker, Hayes to Bonura. Hale walked and scored on Averill's triple, which took a freak bounce off the right field fence.

Haas opened the eighth with a single to center and Evans was sent out to run for him. Knickerbocker threw out Bonura, then Piet walked. Averill made a fine one hand catch of Hayes' drive to right center, then Dykes singled to left, Evans scoring and Piet reaching third. Sewell flied to Galatzer.

The Sox put on a dying wiggle in the ninth. Kennedy opened with a single and was forced by Radcliff. Kreevich singled to center, Radcliff stopping at second. Washington popped to Knickerbocker. Bonura ran the count to three and two, then flied to Galatzer.

A brisk wind from the west prevailed on the 8 nautical mile course. Asterisk, with Skipper Otter and another youngster, Richard Kixmiller, as the crew, covered the course in the good time of 1 hour 38 minutes 29 seconds.

Neo, which finished eleventh Saturday, was second in yesterday's contest. Flit, Charles Pajeau's Star, had the lead yesterday at the first turn of the windward and leeward course, but lost to Asterisk and Neo at the finish. S. C. Pirie Jr. was at the tiller of his Lake Michigan champion, Gemini, for the first time in an official race this season. John Pirie sailed his brother Lockwood's new Twin Star. Summaries:

INTERNATIONAL HARVESTER COMPANY,

Gentlemen: It will please you to know that we have just placed an order for six additional Model C-40 International tractor trucks. Prior to this, during the last twelve months, we have added fifteen of these models to our fleet and we are enclosing a photograph of one of them attached to a trailer.

It will interest you to know we have found the Internationals to be much superior to other makes operating in our fleet. The mileage on gasoline has been very good for these large units, averaging between eight and ten miles per gallon, and the repair upkeep has been extremely low, running between a half cent and one cent per mile. The above are a few of the reasons why you have had these substantial orders from us recently. We are sure you must be receiving similar favorable expressions from other operators who keep accurate comparable cost records.

Yours very truly,
{Signed} L. N. Harter, DECATUR CARTAGE CO.

STOCK MARKET 'BECALMED' FOR ANOTHER WEEK

Brokers Blame New Margin Rules.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, May 31.—Another week finds the share market still becalmed in about the same spot it has been occupying for the last month or so. Price "averages" edged forward slightly last week, but trading continued as dull as ever. Turnover for the five sessions was only 4,560,000 shares.

Despite the letdown in some lines of business, brokers and their customers alike are as strongly disposed as ever to blame the market's prolonged stagnation to a large degree on the new margin requirements—the rule for margin loans through banks, which went into effect May 1, and the revised rules for collateral loans from brokers which became operative about April 1. These two sets of rules, almost any customer's man will concede, have frozen trade by causing accounts to become restricted.

Restricted Accounts Numerous.

Just how unanimous the trade is in placing blame for the lull on these regulations, promulgated with the idea of further curbing speculation, may be gleaned by expressions to be found in almost any current market letter, to the effect that "the accounts of many traders have become restricted or inactive because of the decline of the account's equity to less than 55 per cent of the market value of underlying securities," or that "the restricted account can sell but not buy."

The broker with a large percentage of restricted accounts must either get new accounts or wait for a rise in the market to "thaw" them out.

How Regulation Works.

Under the reserve board's rule, a customer is permitted to borrow up to 45 per cent of the market value of a registered security. Assuming that he purchased 100 shares of stock at $100 a share, by putting up $5,500 with his broker his account would be properly margined. If the stock declined, the loan value of the shares would continue to be 45 per cent of market value.

At $90 a share, his stock would be good for a loan of $4,050, but he had borrowed $4,500 originally and therefore would have a deficiency of $450 in loan value. The account would be "restricted," but he would not have to put up extra money. He could sell fifty shares of the stock for $4,500 on one day and the next day buy $4,500 worth of another stock.

Denver Train Starts Fastest Distance Run

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

McCook, Neb., May 31.—[Special.]—Recalling the exciting times of the old pony express days, the Burlington railroad's three car Zephyr streaked out of Denver at 4 o'clock this afternoon, mountain time, loaded with passengers and mail, to open the world's fastest long distance service. This streamlined train is scheduled to arrive in Chicago at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning, Chicago time, after running 1,034 miles in 16 hours, or at an average speed of about 65 miles an hour.

The Burlington is putting its streamlined train service into operation between Chicago and Denver a month and a half earlier than expected, to be sure of retaining the mail contract it has held for more than fifty years. The Union Pacific will start its fast train service between the two cities in the middle of June, and Burlington officials acted to protect their mail contract.

Has Touched 108 Miles an Hour.

The train's fastest scheduled time was made as the train ran 143 miles between Akron, Colo., and McCook, Neb., in 113 minutes, or an average speed of 75.9 miles an hour. Its highest speed so far for a short run has been 108 miles per hour. In the first hour out of Denver it covered exactly eighty miles.

This new service means a lot to the Chicago and Denver business men. It will enable the Denver man to get his regular mail—that which doesn't need the speed of the airplanes—into Chicago in time for afternoon delivery after it has been dispatched from Denver on the preceding day. The present fastest mail service for regular mail gives delivery in Chicago in 48 hours or more.

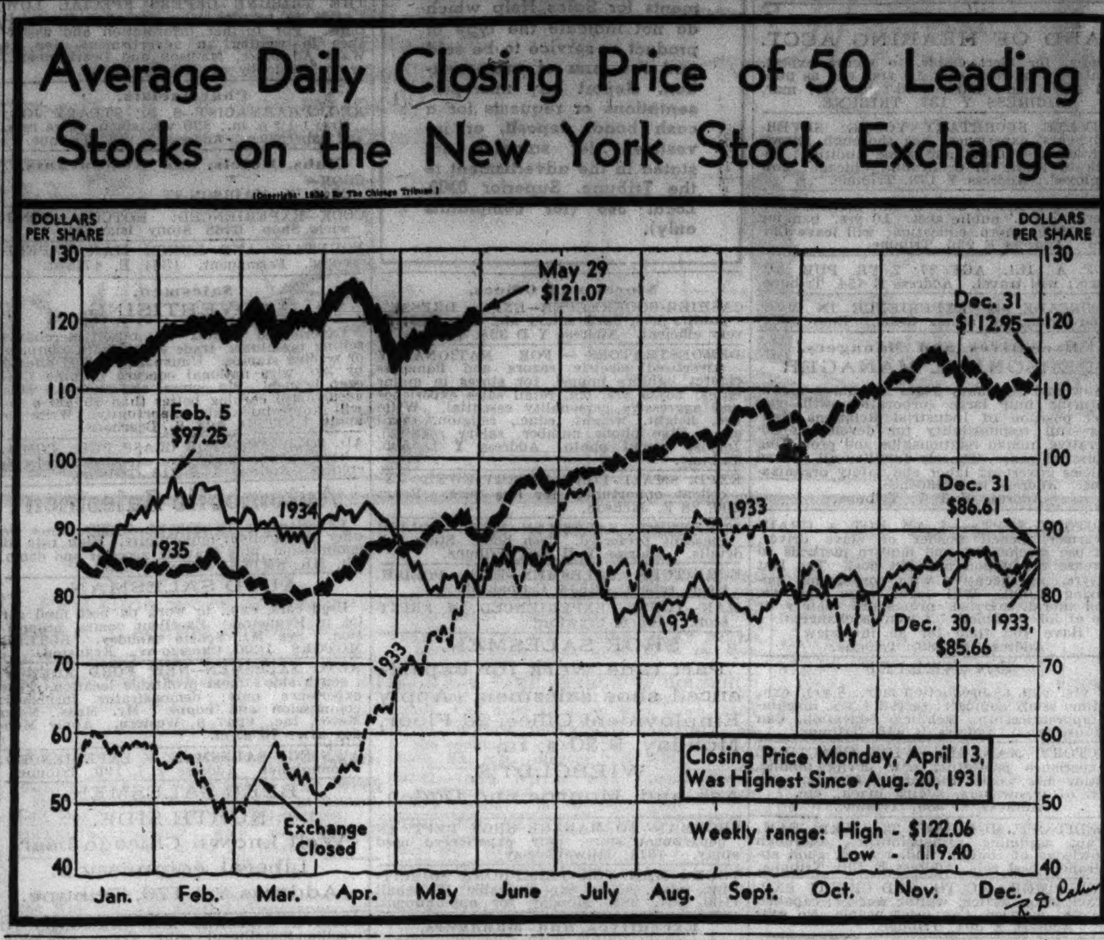
Saving on West Bound Trip.

Westbound the new trains will bring mail from the Atlantic seaboard to Denver 22 hours faster than at present and they will expedite the delivery of mail from Chicago by at least 15 hours.

For the citizens of Chicago and Denver, the streamlined trains will give overnight passenger service between these points. A Chicago business man can lock up his desk in the afternoon and by taking a streamlined train he can be back in the mountains just west of Denver before noon the next day. Denver time is two hours behind Chicago which gives some advantage to the Chicago travelers.

Cigaret Plants Return to Full 40 Hour Schedule

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—The cigaret plants of the American Tobacco company at Reidsville and Durham, N. C., and Richmond, Va., will operate on a full forty hour weekly schedule beginning tomorrow. This will increase the pay of more than 5,000 employés.



Eastern Rails Cut Passenger Fares Today

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—Passenger fares on eastern railroads will drop tomorrow to a basic level of 2 cents a mile in coaches and 3 cents in Pullman cars in compliance with an order recently issued by the interstate commerce commission. The reduction will apply to all tickets, whether for one way or round trips.

The basic rate now is 3.6 cents a mile in the east, 2 cents a mile in the west, and 1½ cents in the south.

Surcharges Abolished.

Present 50 per cent Pullman surcharges will be abolished with the fare cut, but the continuance of extra fare trains now in operation on ome of the big lines will be permitted under the commission's order.

Eight small roads have been exempted from the order. Twenty-three others, comprising virtually all the major lines of the east, have banded together in a court fight to have the ruling set aside as unconstitutional. These roads, however, along with others, put the 2 cent rate into effect pending the outcome of the suit.

Lines That Are Exempted.

The lines exempted from the new fare schedule are the Magma [Ariz.] railroad from Magma to Superior, Ariz.; the California Western Railroad and Navigation company from Willits to Fort Bragg, Cal.; Tonopah and Goldfield railroad from Goldfield to Mina, Nev.; Rio Grande Southern railroad from Ridgway to Durango, Colo. Also the San Kuis Valley Southern railway from Blanca to Jaroso Colo.; Tennessee and North Carolina railway from Newport, Tenn., to Crestmont, N. C.; Colorado and Southern railway from Denver to Leadville; Norfolk Southern railroad for its triangular route from Norfolk to Virginia Beach and Cape Henry.

New Chicago-West Coast Fast Train Starts June 14

The new streamliner, City of San Francisco, will be put into service June 14 between Chicago and San Francisco, the Chicago and North Western railroad announced yesterday. The train will operate over the North Western, Union Pacific, and Southern Pacific lines on a 39 hour 45 minute schedule. The first trip will be eastbound.

MAY DIVIDEND TOTAL HIGHEST SINCE 1931; 62 EXTRA PAYMENTS

New York, May 31.—[Special.]—Increased payments by several of the country's largest industrial corporations swelled the total of dividends declared in May to the highest figure for that month since 1931. The amount was also the biggest for any month since June, 1931. Dividend declarations aggregated $412,340,784 for 866 corporations in May, compared with $172,636,197 for 737 companies the month before and $328,858,312 for 776 corporations in May, 1935.

There were sixty-two extra payments, against fifty-one in May, 1935; thirty-eight initial payments, compared with four; forty-seven increased rates compared with twenty, and the resumption of payments on thirteen stocks, contrasted with eleven. Against these favorable changes, three dividends were omitted.

CREDIT COUNCIL OPPOSES RETURN TO NRA SYSTEM

Most of the members of the Economic Credit council of the National Association of Credit Men are opposed to the return of business to the NRA system, according to a survey just made on the passing of the first year since the national industrial recovery act was declared invalid.

Seventy-two per cent of the members voted complete opposition to return of the system, 25 per cent voted for a revised form of the original NRA, and only 3 per cent of the 96 members of the council favored the return of the NRA in its original form.

Results of this latest survey are in sharp contrast to another made just a year ago, when 57 per cent of the council advocated continuation of the NRA, although four out of each five votes for the NRA were coupled with requests that it be revised.

FEDERAL LAND BANKS IMPROVE AS FARMERS PAY

The Federal Land banks, which provide mortgage money to farmers, are showing steady improvement in their financial condition and operating results, according to a report issued yesterday by the government and farm loan bonds committee of the Investment Bankers' Association of America.

The committee reported a marked improvement in the meeting of obligations by farmers and a decline in demand for new credit accommodations.

STEEL OUTPUT HOLDS UP WELL IN SUMMER LULL

Present Rate 66 Pct. of Capacity.

Steel operations are holding up well against the usual summer decline and only a half point decline was registered last week by the nation's steel mills, according to the weekly estimate issued yesterday by the magazine Steel. The rate now is 66 per cent of plant capacity.

The journal reported that prices of more steel products have been advanced. In addition to the semi-finished materials, on which an increase of $2 a ton was announced a week ago, sheets, hot rolled strip, sheet piling, and hot rolled alloy steel bars have been raised $2. Alloy steel ingots also are up, effective July 1.

With all price adjustments made so far, effective July 1, Steel's index of finished steel prices would be $53.40. The lowest price level during the depression was $45.30 in the spring of 1933.

Expect No Change in Iron.

Prices on pig iron will be announced shortly for the third quarter, according to Steel, and the general belief is that no change will be made.

Lettings of structural steel last week showed a slight increase at about 14,000 tons, slightly below the year's average to date. Inquiry is expected soon for about 25,000 tons for twenty-eight schools in the New York metropolitan district and 6,000 tons for an extension to the west side elevated highway in New York.

After the heavy buying of freight cars ten days ago railroads are now doing little, Steel said. Automotive requirements continued to shrink slowly, in line with smaller production of cars. Total assemblies last week were about 108,300 cars, or 1,500 under the preceding week.

Changes Shown By Districts.

Operations in various districts last week included a 2 point gain to 63 per cent at Pittsburgh, a drop at Chicago of 2½ points to 68 per cent, a sharp drop of 19 points to 70 per cent in the Wheeling district, an 8 point drop at Cincinnati to 72 per cent, and gains of 1½ points to 75½ per cent at Cleveland, 3 points to 81 per cent at Buffalo, and 2 points to 77 per cent for New England. Pennsylvania, Youngstown, Birmingham, and Detroit were unchanged.

Steel's iron and steel composite last week declined 4 cents to $32.83, due to lower scrap prices. The finished steel composite remained unchanged at $53.50. The composite of steel scrap declined 9 cents to $13.04, the lowest level since mid-November, 1935.

Bonds Firm Despite New U.S. Financing

New York, May 31.—(AP)—The largest of all peacetime financing operations by the United States treasury and continued controversy over the "low yield" problem in high grade bonds tended to overshadow actual dealings in existing obligations in the bond market last week, although a steady undertone was maintained.

Particularly favorable performances were turned in by high grade investment ratings. The speculative rails perked up with a turn for the better in the stock market, while standard industrials and utilities held to an even course despite the extremely dull trading.

Brings Temporary Decline.

The $1,000,000,000 strictly "new" money figuring in the treasury operation, while expected in well informed Wall street quarters, nevertheless brought a slight but temporary decline to existing government bonds.

The financial community was apparently prepared for the figure, owing to the uncertain elements involved in the cashing of veterans' bonus bonds which the treasury will have to face during the next three months. Some quarters were represented as believing there would be a higher percentage of these securities turned in for cash immediately than had been generally expected.

Low Yield Bonds Advance.

Notwithstanding the discussions going on in investment quarters concerning the low yield now available as return on invested capital, the 10 bonds in the low yield group of the Associated Press averages reached a new high for the last five years or longer during the week and held steadfastly around the top thereafter. Modest gains were shown by the other domestic groups used in the compilation.

GRAINS HOVER NEAR SEASON'S LOWEST PRICES

Lack of Speculative Activity Blamed.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Wheat and other grains are hovering near the low prices of the season in the Chicago market. In the last week the future contracts based on the 1936 wheat crop fell to a new low price level. Current quotations on corn and oats are only slightly above the year's low prices.

The grain crop prospects for the country as a whole are fair, but many observers believe lack of speculative activity in the market accounts to a large degree for the prices now prevailing. The volume of speculative trading in recent months has been small and the range of prices so far this season in the principal future contracts has been narrow.

No Wide Price Swings.

Absence of wide price swings is illustrated by the recently expired May wheat contract. Trading began in that future last August.

During the ten months' period in which the May contract was traded the highest price at which it sold at was $1.07 a bushel. The lowest price was 88⅞ cents a bushel. The range of approximately 18 cents a bushel was the smallest on any wheat future traded in the market for the last twelve years. During years of heavy speculative activity the seasonal fluctuations in prices are much larger.

The last week of trading in the May contract brought about an unusual market situation. Large com-

Day By Day Story of the Experimental Farms

By Frank Ridgway

Crops vs. Weather

May 31, 1936.

UNSEASONABLY cold weather and lack of rainfall last week caused men on the Tribune Experimental farms to become gloomy over the outlook for crops planted this spring. Corn and oats were both suffering from lack of moisture. Low temperatures, particularly at night, have retarded the growth of corn but favored the development of oats.

The manager at the Yorkville farm said yesterday that this will be known as "the year of the clods unless we get rain soon." It would take several heavy rains to break down the hard clods left in some of the fields. All last week dense clouds of dust were stirred up by the teams and implements as they crossed the fields.

Rain, Warmth Needed.

Rain gauge records kept at the Yorkville farm show that two inches of water fell in April and 2.07 inches in May. But up until last night there had been practically no rain at the farm since May 17. More rain and warmer weather are needed by practically all crops on the farms.

Much of the corn planted last week was left in a bed of dust and small clods. Few of the kernels are expected to sprout until it rains. The corn ground is being given an extra working with rollers, drags, and harrows to smash the clods and to aid in conserving soil moisture.

Corn planted earlier is up but is making slow growth. The young plants are being stunted and are beginning to turn yellow. There is generally a satisfactory stand in the field where the corn is above ground on the Yorkville and Wheaton farms.

Lack of Good Seed.

Visitors at the farms report that many farmers in Illinois have been forced to replant much of their corn. The trouble is due chiefly to planting of poor seeds. A general shortage of seed corn throughout the central west has made it difficult for farmers to get good seed at reasonable prices. The Tribune farmers, however, have been fortunate in securing good seed, all ear tested. It is showing a high percentage of germination where moisture and temperature conditions are favorable.

Illinois farmers who are forced to plant their corn over in June will be late in getting the crop started. They also will be handicapped in attempting to grow a profitable crop because seed corn has been unusually high this spring. The skimpy supply boosted prices of ordinary open pollinated varieties of seed to as much as $7.50 a bushel and in a few cases even higher. Hybrid strains of corn that have been so popular the last two years have been selling this spring as high as $10 a bushel.

Many Pests Feared.

Coupled with high seed corn prices, unfavorable weather and increased costs resulting from higher wages and extra work in handling dry soil, farmers now fear they will have a heavy infestation of pests to deal with. Already cutworms, grasshoppers and other common pests are beginning to show up in the fields. Cutworms are becoming quite common on some farms in northern Illinois. A few of these pests have been found in one of the corn fields at the Yorkville farm. Grasshoppers are expected to cause trouble, especially in some of the western counties of the state, unless farmers put out bait to kill them.

GRAINS HOVER NEAR SEASON'S LOWEST PRICES

mitments on both the short and long side of the market were outstanding when the final day of trading approached. Holders of the May futures were confident that speculators with short commitments would have to come in at the last moment and bid the price up in order to cover their positions.

Short Sellers Win Victory.

The shorts were equally certain the price would fall before trading ceased. As it turned out the short sellers had analyzed the situation correctly. The market collapsed in the last forty-five minutes of trading, with the price falling five cents a bushel, the maximum allowed for one day under the exchange rules.

Elevator stocks of wheat in Chicago at the beginning of May were small, indicating that it would be difficult to obtain grain to deliver on May contracts. As the price of the future advanced, however, in the last week or two of trading, grain began to flow in from other markets. Approximately 2,000,000 bushels of wheat were sent to Chicago from Omaha and Kansas City.

Influx of these supplies resulted in a break in cash wheat prices after the expiration of the May futures. Premiums that cash wheat was commanding over the future price disappeared when attempts were made to sell this wheat.

Other Grains Recover.

The break in May wheat affected other future contracts early in the week, but prices recovered later, partly on the strength of unfavorable reports on crop conditions in the spring wheat belt of the northwest. Closing prices on July and September wheat, however, were slightly below the preceding week.

The following table shows the range of prices in grain futures for the week:

STRAIN ON GOLD BLOC NATIONS IS INCREASING

More of Netherlands' Metal Flees.

[Copyright: 1936: By the New York Times.]

AMSTERDAM, May 31.—Prospects of the gold bloc countries are becoming gradually gloomier. Although Dutch financial circles hesitate to make a definite forecast of probable developments, the common opinion is that the situation never has been so critical as now.

The French financial position already is alarming and will further deteriorate as a result of the Socialist anti-deflation policy, according to opinion here.

Reduces Harbor Dues.

The unaltered Dutch policy is illustrated by today's announcement that the port of Rotterdam will reduce harbor dues by 28 per cent, equaling the belga devaluation. The government is thus prepared to stand a loss in fighting competition with Antwerp.

The latest statement of the Bank of the Netherlands shows gold reserves of 683,000,000 florins, against 646,000,000 florins a year ago, and 809,000,000 two years ago. The ratio to currency was 77.3 per cent, against 72.29 per cent and 79.2 per cent respectively.

Position Regarded Strong.

This position is considered extremely strong. The balance sheets of private banks and of the treasury show a marked liquidity, making recourse to the central bank unnecessary at this time.

Nevertheless, pressure on the florin has been renewed and considerable shipments of gold to New York have been arranged. If they continue, the bank undoubtedly will raise the discount rate.

Reid, president of the Standard Products company of Cleveland, manufacturers of window channels used in automobiles, today reported that the company has filed with the securities and exchange commission a registration statement for the public offering of 101,000 common shares. The offering does not represent new financing.

CHICAGO'S BUSINESS EXPANDING; RETAIL 5% ABOVE YEAR AGO

Retail trade in Chicago continued to expand last week, according to the Chicago Association of Commerce. Turnover was estimated by the association to be about 5 per cent larger than a year ago. Wholesale and mail order business also recorded improvement over the comparable 1935 week, the survey showed.

The demand for summer clothing and other seasonal articles held up well, the association reported.

"Retail automobile sales," the association added, "showed no letdown, with higher priced models in good demand. Real estate transactions and building are being paralleled by a rise in rents. Construction in the suburbs is the best since 1930."

APRIL SECURITY TRADE 83.1 PCT. ABOVE YEAR AGO

Washington, D. C., May 31.—(AP)—The securities commission announced today the dollar value of registered security transactions in April amounted to $2,188,264,102, a decrease of 20.9 per cent from sales of the preceding month but an increase of 83.1 per cent over April, 1935.

Stock sales, including rights and warants, had a value of $1,936,372,916, a decrease of 20.3 per cent from those in March, and bond sales, totaling $251,878,089, showed a decrease of 25.1 per cent.

How You Can BORROW at HOUSEHOLD
1. Whether or not you have furniture or a car, you can borrow here if you can make regular monthly repayments.
2. Payments are small. For example the first payment on $100 is $8—the last payment is $5.15 on a twenty month schedule. Other amounts in proportion.
3. You do not need co-makers or endorsers.
4. You can secure the money quickly—the same day if you apply before 11 o'clock.
5. Rate on loans above $100 is less than the lawful maximum.
6. Repay at any time and reduce the cost.
7. Private offices. Your problem will have our sympathetic attention.

WHY WE DON'T WONDER

We don't wonder why our plan of lending to people who buy new or used cars—or who own one—has met with such a rousing success.

One reason why is that we charge the same rate on a loan secured by an automobile regardless of whether the automobile is brand new or a model of recent years.

Another reason why we don't wonder is because we do not make it a requirement that the borrower takes all kinds of insurance. We only ask that a car be covered by fire and theft. Of course, we advocate that a car owner or a car buyer have collision coverage for his own protection.

And, another reason—we almost insist that the car owner or the car buyer place his insurance with his own agent or broker. If he hasn't one we will refer him to a reputable one. W eask for no commission on the insurance premiums. We are not in the insurance business. We are in the banking business.

But there may be a further reason. In spite of our low rate and in spite of our policy with respect to insurance, a scoring reason may be that people very much prefer to borrow money at a bank where they are assured of banking treatment. This is a State Bank, a member of both the Federal Reserve System and of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

Here is a typical schedule of the rates and terms on amounts commonly asked for by those who wish to use a new or used car as collateral to loans:

Amount You Want.	Total Yearly Charge.	Total Amount of Note.	12 Monthly Deposits.
$ 100	$12.08	$ 112.08	$ 9.34
200	19.00	219.00	18.25
300	23.04	323.04	26.92
400	29.00	429.00	35.75
500	35.08	535.08	44.59
600	41.04	641.04	53.42
1,000	65.00	1,065.00	88.75
